Yearlings, two-year olds and pregnant mares (during the last 90 days of pregnancy) may require 4 to 6 pounds of oats or an oat-barley mixture. Since most horses will eat more hay than they need, the amount they receive should be restricted.

Deciding what hay to purchase is one of the most difficult aspects of feeding horses during the winter because of the tremendous variation in the quality of hay. Mr. Milligan believes that good quality hay can solve many feeding problems.

"When buying hay by the bale", he says, "be aware of its weight." If you pay $2 for a 40, 60, or 80-pound bale, you are paying $67 and $50 per ton respectively. In other words, you would be paying twice as much for the 40-pound bale as you would be paying for the 80-pound bale.

As a general rule a top quality hay is a better buy than a low quality hay because of its higher nutritional value and the fact that there is less waste. Good quality alfalfa at $80 per ton, for example, is a better buy than average quality timothy at $70 per ton.

Mr. Milligan recommends paying attention to the following points when evaluating the quality hay.

Type of Forage - Types of forage vary in descending order of quality from alfalfa, brome-grass, timothy, [illegible] wheat grass, oat hay, Prairie hay and slough hay down to straw.

Leaf-stem Ratio- The leaves in hay are very nutritious, but most stems are low in quality. As hay matures, the proportion of stems to leaves increases and the quality of the feed decreases.

Moisture Content - New hay that feels moist or warm in the centre of a bale is too wet. There is a risk of mold and spoilage.

Mold and Mustiness - Hay that looks or smells moldy or musty should not be fed to horses.

Color - The greener the hay the better. Its color gives an indication of the maturity of the hay and whether or not it has deteriorated through weathering. Brown hay has been badly weathered and will be of poor quality.

Weeds - Avoid weedy hay. Weeds usually have low level of nutrition and are often discarded by horses.

You can obtain an anlysis of the nutrient content of your hay by sending a representative sample to the Alberta Soil and Feed Testing Laboratory, O.S. Longman Building [illegible] - 115 Street, Edmonton, T6H 4P2.

Further information on horse management, including diet, can be obtained from the Horse Industry Branch, 2003 McKnight Boulevard Calgary, T2E 6L2.

THE FALL SESSION

The Legislative Assembly prorogued its autumn sitting last week with few positive accomplishments. The government continues to prove that it's largely a "closed shop" as far as the general public is concerned. We, as official opposition, had no success in attempting to get public hearings into Alberta's position on the anti-inflation program; we got no answers on the question of the natural gas rebate program which may or may not be continued; we were frustrated in attempts to get further investigation into the dealings of the Alberta Export Agency, and are no further ahead in getting any action on land use, particularly the question of foreign ownership.

Further demonstrations of "Closed Government" include the refusal of the government to meet with the A.U.M.A., and the shabby treatment given the Alberta Status of Women Action Committee. In my opinion, the kind of conduct by any government is absolutely inexcusable.

Alberta Social Credit Annual Convention

During the past several weeks, I have extended personal invitations to may people to attend the annual convention of the provincial Social Credit Party. The convention will be held at the Calgary Inn, Friday and Saturday, November 12th and 13th. If you did not receive a personal invitation to attend, consider this an opportunity to become involved in the political process in an active capacity. Join with us as an observer and participate. You don't need a membership card to become involved. We welcome you to help us to establish realistic policies and programs for the coming years.

If you have suggestions, problems or concerns, contact my Edmonton office, 427-2331; my Fort Saskatchewan office, 998-2276; or my home, 998-2216. Call collect.

Honoured

Among those honoured at a banquet at the Camrose Legion on Saturday night was Donald Kyle, a former Tofielder. Mr. Kyle, (right) along with Dr. I.W. Dunbar (centre) received 50 year medals for membership and service in the Legion. Later, Mr. Kyle and his son, Gordon of Tofield, entertained World War I veterans, and both took part in Remembrance Day services earlier today in Camrose. Making the presentation is Tom Coutlis, president of the Camrose Legion.

Holden district

Mr. and Mrs. Ross of Vancouver were Saturday evening callers with Mrs. Frances Hanson, before driving on to Camrose to visit with friends there. Mrs. Ross (Irene) is a daughter of Roy and Dora Evenson of B.C., who resided in the Holden district for many years before leaving to reside in B.C. Mrs. Ethel Brekstad was also to Mrs. Hanson's to visit with Mr. and Mrs. Ross.

Open house was held Sunday afternoon, in the Holden Lutheran Church in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Huitholm, long-time residents of the Holden District who have retired from farming and are now residing in Camrose where they have purchased a home. A pleasant social afternoon was held with members of the Ladies Aid serving lunch. On behalf of the church congregation, Charles Mathews presented Mr. and Mrs. Huitholm with a picture; Mrs. Ethel Brekstad, president of the Ladies Aid presented Laura with a lovely cup and saucer, and on behalf of the community, Lyle Grenland presented them with a purse of money. Aigot and Laura thanked all. They also received several other gifts and expressions of goodwill from friends.

The Holden Curling Club will begin a new season of curling on Monday. Persons wishing to take curling lessons may do so by coming to the rink any evening between November 15th and the 20th. New members are invited to participate. A curling social and "Fun Spiel" will be held on November 21st at 2:00 p.m. Regular mixed curling will begin November 22nd.

Donnie Huitholm was taken to the Royal Alex Hospital, in Edmonton, early Sunday morning for tests.

Oscar Alseth has been a patient in St. Mary's Hospital in Camrose for over a week, having a check-up and treatments. He was hoping to be home towards the end of the week.

Mrs. Ellen Eaton

Mrs. Doris Brown and 3 daughters, Kathy and Lori, were among the ladies who gathered at the home of her aunt, Mickey Niemetz on Oct. 30th to help Mickey celebrate her birthday.

Charlie Niemetz spent from Thursday to Sunday in the University Hospital having tests. Charlie and Mickey's son, Doug Niemetz and Wendy Dobson of Edmonton, brought him home to the farm and spent a few hours with Doug's parents.

Mrs. Theone Jones accompanied her brother, Brian Berreleth of Sherwood Place, on a motor trip to Grand Forks. Their parents, Lillian and Bob Berreleth also went at the same time in their camper. All were visiting Theone's daughter, Betty and Dayle Jones and the acquaintance of their new daughter-born on Oct. 5th which made 4 generations present at one time, Theone, the grandmother, Lillian and Bob, the great grandparents, and Brian, the uncle.

Brian Eaton of Port McMurray was a Friday and Saturday visitor at the home of his grandmother, Ellen Eaton, leaving for home Saturday shortly after noon.

Albert and Ida Koenig and son, Barry of Edmonton, were Saturday evening visitors at the farm home of Ellen Eaton.

Arnold and Deanna Nelson left by plane on Sunday for Prince George, B.C., for a visit with Arnold's sister, Carol Derksen. They expected to return home yesterday Nov. 10th.

Ellen Eaton accompanied Carl and Mavis Jacobsen to Edmonton on Saturday afternoon where they attended the 50th golden wedding anniversary celebration of Glen and Margaret Bailey of Edmonton, at a supper and dance held in the Duggan Community Hall. All their family, including their children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren were present, along with numerous friends and other relatives. Margaret and Glen were former McKenzie district residents.

Howard and Mae Ferguson and granddaughter Wanda Weir, Mrs. Loretta Weir and John Larmour, Nelson Ferguson and Ben-Al Olson, Doris and Howard Brown and family, and Mae's mother, Mrs. Roberts all of Tofield and surrounding districts, motored to Edmonton Saturday afternoon to attend a family re-union and birthday supper held at the home of Mae's sister, Marguerite and Don Bailey. Also present were Mae and Marguerite's sister, Phyllis and Don Fitzpatrick of Calgary. The supper was held to honor their mother and grandmother, Mrs. Roberts' birthday.

Lena Reil

Men are busy laying a gas pipe line from the hotel west and north past Hilsabeche.

Shirley Jansen was home over the weekend from Edberg.

The Ryley Bethel Lutheran Church Women held their regular monthly meeting on Friday. Mrs. C. Sorensen led the group in opening prayer. Mrs. H. Berks conducted the Bible study and Mrs. A. Baggs read the worship meditation. The annual "Love Offering Program" followed with Mrs. W. Wood in charge.

It was decided to have an Easter Dawn Program, along with a sewing and bake sale, at the next regular meeting on Dec. 3rd.

An evening Bible Study will be held on Wednesday evenings starting Dec. 1st. at 7:30 p.m., for the month of December only.

Christian Worker's Conference of the North West Mennonite Conference was held from Nov. 5 to 7, at the Salem Mennonite Church in Tofield.

On Saturday evening, a lovely shower was held for Ed and Beverly Giesbrecht at the Ryley United Church kitchen. Several games were played and then, opening of the gifts, with Marva Maaren in charge of the gift book. Ed and Beverly were seated at the head table on which was a beautifully decorated cake. Seated with the young couple were their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Nesa, parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Giesbrecht, Ed's parents, Marva Maaren and Larry Laughead.

Everyone enjoyed a lunch. Bride and groom passed the cake around. They thanked everyone for coming to make their evening a happy one. Ed and Beverly are attending NAIT.

A social night was held in the Legion Hall on Saturday.

On Sunday, Elmer and Kathleen Anderson were pleasantly surprised when their good friend, Ged Johnson, paid them a visit.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday for John Dunch who passed away suddenly on Friday, at 84 years. Funeral was held in the Ryley United Church.

Harold and Clara Vergette drove to Acadia Valley to visit with their daughter, Annette.

Trondhjem congregation marks 70th anniversary

by Mrs O Lehman

Seventy years of working together was celebrated by the Trondhjem Lutheran congregation on Oct 24th, when they honored the memory of the founders of the Trondjem Church

The first settlers of the Lutheran denomination settled in the Round Hill district in 1901-1902 The Rev Ber svend Anderson from Bardo held services in the different homes Under his guidance the Trondhjem congregation was organized on Oct 29, 1906

In 1911 Trondhjem congregation joined with the congregations of Bardo, Amisk Creek, Ryley, and Holden, to form the Ryley Parish Services were held then in the Meidal and Standard Schools In 1928 the Trondhjem Church was built, two and one half miles east and one mile north of Round Hill

In 1951 the Ryley Parish was divided in two, leaving Amisk Creek, Holden, and Ryley with the Ryley Parish, while Trondhjem joined with Bardo and Kingman to form the Kingman Parish In this way two pastors could more easily serve the congregations of the entire area Pastor H O Haugen was the first pastor of the Kingman Parish

The special service on Oct 24th was celebrated with a program Among the hymns, gospel readings and prayers were individual contributions the prelude by Mabel Gatheridge, Sunday School songs and choruses, and a duet by Mr and Mrs LeRoy Johnson Rev H O Haugen of Camrose delivered the message "The Sower and The Seed" A smorgasobrd fellowship dinner was served after the worship service

An afternoon service was also held, and included in that program were scripture reading and prayer led by Pastor Lokken, words of welcome by Bernie Von Tetenborn, vice-president of the congregation, trio, Helen Barnstad, Dianne Johnson, and Mabel Gatheridge history of Trondhjem congregation read by Mrs Hans Honess, memorial service led by P Gatheridge and E Mathison musical reading by Mr and Mrs Carl Nelson, greetings from Philip Anderson, president of Bardo congregation, Fred Evenson, president of Salem congregation, and William Sanack, St Stans laus Roman Catholic Church written greeting from Pastor Art Dahlen and Pastor Ove Pedersen, words of appreciation by Mrs Mabel Gatheridge president of LCW, musical number by the Mathison and Rude families, message by Rev Herb Keil, Western Regional assistant to Dr Jacobson (president of E L C C), and a vocal solo by Joan Burnstad

Ministik and district news

Mrs Jim Reddick

The Ladies Club annual fall bazaar, held on Friday, once again was a huge success. Patrons came from Edmonton, Fort Sask , Tofield as well as all adjoining districts

After the home baking sewing, candy, etc., was sold, 12 games of bingo were played

Children's bingo was won by Jan Morrow, the senior citizens' one by Mrs Claude Leach, and the last game blackout by Shannon Lucas of Edmonton, who is a grandniece of Keith and Betty Williams The $15 Woodwards voucher was won by Linda Paterson, the $10 one going to Christine Barker, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. A Penrice The number 1 hamper was won by Mrs. S George and the number 2 by Mike Glenmore of Fort Sask.

Mrs A Ferguson once again was convenor, as she has done for 26 former fall bazaars, which must be some sort of record for convenorship

Lunch was served by the ladies, assisted by the younger set of the community

Jean and George Kleinschroth attended the 25th wedding anniversary celebrations last Saturday evening of Stanley and Josephine Wenger, in the Elks Hall in Lloydminster

On Sunday, they were guests of an aunt and uncle of George's the Adolph Woiers of Camrose

On Friday evening, Linda Paterson of Edmonton and the Murray Miles of Sherwood Park enjoyed a birthday supper honoring Pat Paterson at the Paterson home. Linda later attended the ladies club bazaar.

Andrew Ferguson is a patient in Tofield hospital, recovering from pneumonia.

Madame Martha Reayer of Grandview in Edmonton has suffered another setback and is a patient in Misericordia Hospital.

Two ladies who were members of the Ladies Club when it formed in 1948 were present at the annual fall bazaar, they being Kaise Wilhams of Fort Nelson, B C and Dorothy Dick of Edmonton. They remarked that the bazaar is bigger and better than ever

A short congregational meeting was held following church services at the United Church on Sunday, regarding a summer student for 1977 and was found not feasible as enough support from either congregation was not forthcoming.

On Wednesday evening a capacity crowd witnessed Awards Night in the Ardrossan Auditorium. Brent Bowerman received a merit award for grade eight, while Christine Davenport received an Honors Award, also in grade eight. Beverley Heilman was the winner of a merit award in grade ten.

The Ladies Club award was presented to Richard Broenink for receiving second highest marks in grade twelve matriculation

Coffee was enjoyed following the presentations.

Forage picture far from bright

This was not a good year for hay production in Alberta.

According to F.A. Boyce, statistician with Alberta Agriculture, below normal precipitation in most areas of the province during the winter and a dry spring resulted in slow forage growth. He reports that yields from the first hay crop were well below the long time average, but that generous summer rains gave excellent second cuts in many areas.

However, total hay production for the province is estimated at 3.5 million tons, a reduction of 300,000 tons compared with last year Because of the light forage situation, it is anticipated that the volume of alfalfa for processing during the winter may be limited, and that carryover stocks for next year will be low. Hay shortages have already been reported in some areas where yields were poor or substantial losses were sustained from adverse weather

"Areas of particular concern from the point of view of short hay supplies," says Mr Boyce, "include the Peace River region and the Rimbey-Wetaskiwin area where both the quality and the quantity of hay is lacking "

Large quantities of straw are available this year throughout the province, but the low nutritional value of this feed limits the amount that can be substituted for hay without supplementation by grain, dehydrated alfalfa or other supplements

"The weather", Mr. Boyce says, "is going to be the deter mining factor in whether or not cattlemen have problems in overwintering their stock" If the fall is open and the winter mild, livestock producers in all areas of the province should have little difficulty in maintaining their animals in good condition A long, severe winter, on the other hand, could have a serious effect on the viability of many livestock operations

Pete and Josie Ozubko have 40th anniversary

On Oct 31, the families of Peter and Josie Ozubko held open house to honor their parents 40th anniversary

The couple were married in Edmonton and then lived in Holden for six years They moved to Tofield and have lived there since Pete has been a mechanic all these years and now runs his own business

Pete and Josie have raised seven children of which six were present for the happy day.

The families are Pat, Calvin Gill and four children of Edmonton. Joan, at home, Bob and Gail Ozubko and two children of Kamloops, B.C.; Marlene and Jim McKay and three children of Richmond, B.C. Sharon, and Larry Yoder and three children of Tofield. Linda and Ron Hallam and son of Edmonton. Don and Darlene Ozubko of Kamloops, B.C. were unable to be present

The couple were seated at the head table which was beautifully decorated in red and white. A single-layer cake, decorated by Edith Wideman, centered the table Bill and Lucy Miskew were seated with the couple The guest book was attended to by daughter, Joan. Coffee and tea were served by Ella Ozubko, sister-in-law of Pete, and Kay Manchak, a family friend. The C.W.L. catered for the afternoon

The afternoon was spent in visiting with the 220 guests that came from near and far to extend best wishes to the happy couple Son Bob spoke briefly on behalf of the family, reading telegrams which were received and presenting his parents with tickets for a trip to Vancouver compliments of the children and families

Charles Kallal also spoke a few words

The day was very successful as relatives and friends came from Tofield, Holden, Bruce, Viking, Kinsella, Edmonton, Drumheller, Richmond and Kamloops.

Seed cleaning plant may lose its license

A possibility exists that the County of Beaver Seed Cleaning Co-operative Association Ltd. may lose its license to operate a seed cleaning plant.

This information was brought forward at the November 8th County of Beaver Council meeting when L. Weatherill, Agricultural Fieldman for the County, indicated that the quality of seed samples taken from the plant in the last year have declined below provincial standards.

In order for a cleaning plant to qualify for a permit to clean seed they must be rated according to a formula established in which they must score 95 percent. This would qualify for a third class permit. In order to qualify for a first class permit they must score 98 percent

As of November 16th, the Holden plant was scored at 33 percent, far below the necessary 98 percent.

The main reason for this decline, says Mr. Weatherill, is the high degree of wild oats and Tartarian buckwheat present in many of the samples.

In Western Canada no tartarian buckwheat is allowed to be present in seed grain. This does present a problem in northeastern Alberta where the degree of infestation of tartarian buckwheat is the highest.

It is expected that County Council will be arranging a meeting with seed plant officials in the near future. Hopefully the problems involved can be ironed out before it is necessary to revoke the present third class licence of the Holden plant.

Colour party

Following the Last Post, two minutes silence and Reveille, Rev Dave Moddle placed the colours in the stand, for the ceremony of the Remembrance Day service at Tofield Community Hall on Thursday, then later returned them to the colour party to be marched out following the program Having his flag placed is Ralph Dunham The biggest attendance in years was present for the services, and added to the program this year were contributions of prose, poetry, and music from Tofield School children Joining the parade this year also were the Guides, Brownies, Scouts, and Cubs.

Fenske to head Ministik group

By Mrs. Jim Reddick

Dennis Fenske was elected as president when the Ministik Community Association held its annual meeting last Wednesday night

Named to serve as vice-president was Baden Bowerman while Vera Heitman was elected as secretary and Theresa Regier will be the treasurer

Social convener for the coming year will be Kathleen Grummett while John Heitman will serve as sports convenor.

Kari Schreuchow had been president while Joyce Bowerman retired from the secretary's duties and Baden Bowerman had been sports convenor Margaret Jenke had held the post of social convenor.

Plans were made for holding the annual New Year's Eve Frolic with Margaret Jenke as convenor.

Music for the occasion will be supplied by the Shamrocks. A buffet supper will be served to those in attendance

John Vandermeer and Glenn Ferguson volunteered to take turns doing the janitorial work at the hall without remuneration, thus saving the association a considerable sum of money.

It was decided to buy a clock for the hall

Earlier in the evening, the annual meeting of the Ministik Memorial Hall Board was held

It was decided that a special meeting would have to be called to close out the board's business, so that it might cease to exist.

Until such a meeting is held, it was decided that the present executive would continue to act. Members of the executive are Grant Penrice, Barbara Horricks, Theresa Regier, Jon Davenport and Albert Skarwski

The evening ended with a birthday celebration as it was the third anniversary of the association A birthday cake was made for the occasion by Margaret Jenke.

Phillips heads Society

A pancake supper, in conjunction with the Beaver Heritage and Agricultural Society's annual meeting and membership drive, took place in the Ryley Community Hall on November 8th

Chairing the meeting was president Howard Berke

Members were brought up to date on finances regarding the heated swimming pool and ideas were discussed for fundraising

Board members were nominated and from within this group the executive was to be chosen

The Socity's board met on Monday and the following slate of officers for 1977 are: president, Otis Phillips; 1st. vice-president, Murray Lyons; secretary, Gail Booth; 2nd vice-president, Howard Berke, and treasurer, Janet

Committees were set up for the forthcoming year Thank you's were extended to retiring executive for a job well done

Brown shows champion bull

Howard Brown of Tofield showed the Grand Champion Hereford Bull at Farmfair '76.

An 8 year old Brown bardare, 5SS Anxiety Master Cal 622, won the Aged Hereford Bull class when he was shown with two of his progeny at side This bull then went on to win the Senior Champion Hereford Bull of the show and then the Grand Champion

HB Polled Herefords also won many top placings in the female section of the Hereford show HB Beauty Cal 34 G, a yearling heifer shown by Brown, placed first in a strong class of 37 heifers and went on to become Reserve Junior Champion Hereford Female.

Howard Brown also won the Breeders Herd Class - a group of four animals bred by the Judge of the Hereford show was Garry Latimer of Olds.

CLC committee names members

Camrose Lutheran College filled out its slate on the community Scholarship committee by adding one new member and re-appointing two others.

Alice Tate is the new member on the committee. Ms. Tate is well known in Camrose having served the community in many different ways, possibly being best known for her many years of service as secretary on the Merry Christmas Cheer Fund Committee.

Ms. Tate's term of office will be for three years as will be the case of Gus Mirsault who was reappointed.

Doreen Kuntz was named to serve a two-year term, completing a term began by Bob Munson, who tendered his resignation. Mrs Kuntz had previously served on the committee. The committee's prime function is to obtain scholarships and financial assistance to enable more students to attend CLC.

Other members of the committee are Bill Fowler (chairman), Luther Olson, Gerrit Oldekamp, Murray Lauber, Kurt Hartviksen, Bill Samboraki and Leroy Johnson.

CLC plans concerts

Two Christmas concerts have been scheduled for the Convocation Center at Camrose Lutheran College.

Both concerts will be presented by groups from the college, with one group charging admission while the other concert will be free.

The CLC Concert Choir will present their concert on Sunday, December 5th at eight o'clock, with admissions being charged. Tickets for this concert will be sold only at the door.

The second concert will be presented by the CLC Brass Quintet on December 12th, beginning at eight o'clock. There will be no admission charge for this concert which is being sponsored by the CLC Music Department.

Thanksgiving - Psalm 103
1-5 Bless the Lord O my soul! and all that is within me bless his holy name Bless the Lord O my soul and forget not all his benefits Who forgiveth all thine iniquities, who healeth all thy diseases Who redeemeth thy life from destruction Who crowneth thee with loving kindness and tender mercies The Lord executeth righteousness and judgement for all that are oppressed. He made known His ways into Moses, His acts unto the children of Israel The Lord is merciful and gracious, slow to anger and plenteous in mercy

I once read on a bumper sticker the words "Did you thank a green plant today?" Nature bears marvelous testimony to the wisdom of the Creator The interdependence of one life form upon another make us realize that we are part of a wonderful complex system that is characterized by beauty, harmony and balance But thank a plant for this, reminds us of Paul's description of people who worshiped the creature more than the Creator God alone is worthy of our gratitude He set our world in motion and sustains it by His power. Yes, it's wonderful to be alive and deep feelings of appreciation often well up within us. Yet we must always direct our praise to the One who not only gives us the air we breathe, but who also imparts eternal life through faith in Jesus Christ. Nature is an outstretched finger pointing toward God

Good News Bible

The Bible in Today's English Version is a new translation which seeks to state clearly and accurately the meaning of the original texts in words and forms that are widely accepted by people who use English as a means of communication. This translation does not follow the traditional vocabulary and style found in the historic English Bible versions. Rather it attempts in this century to set forth the Biblical content and message in standard, everyday, natural form of English.

Ryley farmer passes suddenly

John Dueck of Ryley passed away suddenly in Tofield Hospital on November 1, 1976 at the age of 64 years. He was born on December 28, 1911, and farmed in the Ryley area for many years. He was still actively engaged in farming at the time of his passing. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Dueck of Chilliwack, B.C., 2 brothers, Peter of Ryley and John of Barrhead; 3 sisters, Elizabeth, Martha, and Lena of Chilliwack, B.C., several nieces and nephews. He was predeceased by a brother, Bill in 1936. Funeral services were held on Nov. 5 from the Calvin United Church at Ryley with Rev. D Meddle officiating. Interment was in the Ryley Cemetery. Loveland Funeral Home of Camrose was in charge of all arrangements.

CARD OF THANKS
May the Lord's blessing and reward be unto each and every friend, relative and neighbour who has given tokens of themselves on our behalf at this time of bereavement. We give God the glory for surrounding us with your prayers and concern, also for the cards and floral tributes.

Jacobsons honoured on 50th anniversary

The Ryley Community Hall was crowded with friends and relatives on September 18, to honor Ben and Ruth Jacobson on their 30th wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacobson were married on September 14, 1926, in Edmonton.

Seated at the head table with the guests of honor were Ruth's mother, Mrs. Shultz; Ben's two sisters, Mrs. Dora Mahlum and Mrs. Olga Ranheim, Ruth's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Shultz; and a niece of Ben's, Mrs. Elsie Hengsvelt of Langley, B.C.

Walter Shultz acted as emcee for the afternoon. A beautiful three-tiered wedding cake was made by Mrs. Helen Jacobson and decorated by Mrs. Alice Munkedal for the occasion. Also on the head-table was a Norwegian cake, called Kranse Kaka made by Mrs. Diana Kathan of Camrose.

After the honored couple were seated, a short program followed.

Mrs. Darlene Albrecht, and Elaine Hammer, accompanied by Eldon Hammer on the accordian, sang a couple of appropriate songs. Next, old-time pieces were played by Martha Lille, Borghild Sandlie and Arnold Bugge. A quartet, consisting of Janet Winsnes, Linda Lyons, Gail Booth, and Ruth Munkedal, accompanied by Janet Johnson on the piano, sang several melodies of old songs.

Many congratulatory messages were received by the honored couple.

Walter Shultz read messages from Prime Minister Trudeau, Joe Clark, Don Mazankowski, M.P. Following this, Mr. Batiuk, MLA, brought personal greetings from Lt. Governor Ralph Steinhauer and Premier Peter Lougheed. Scrolls from Pierre Trudeau and the Alberta Government were presented to Ben and Ruth.

On behalf of the community, friends and relatives, Mrs. Marvin Jacobson and Mrs. Ethel Pepper presented Ben and Ruth with a 15-piece setting of stainless steel tableware and a car warmer. Many other beautiful gifts were also presented to the couple from friends and relatives.

Ben and Ruth both expressed their warm appreciation and thanks to everyone for coming, for the gifts and for making the occasion a memorable and happy one.

The rest of the afternoon was spent in visiting and enjoying lunch served by the ladies of the community.

Many guests travelled from a distance for this event. From Chilliwack, B.C., came Mr. and Mrs. Lester Nolan, Lester being an uncle of Ruth's. From Langley, B.C., came Mrs. Elsie Hengsvelt, Mrs. Beulah Keum, and Elsie's two daughters, Mrs. Mildred Friesen and Mrs. Velma Nelson. Other guests from Alberta were from Red Deer, Wetaskiwin, Camrose, Edmonton, Viking and Tofield.

Mr. Fisk was in Ryley for Remembrance Day services.

On Nov. 7th, Calvin United Church held a pot-luck supper in the church kitchen. Rev. and Mrs. David Meddle were in attendence. It was decided the U.C.W. would hold their annual fall supper on Nov. 27th in the Ryley Community Hall starting at 5.30 p.m. Everyone welcome.

Lawrence and Ann Anderson of Calgary visited with the Lawrence's parents, the Elmer Andersons, over the week.

Earl Hjelter of Calgary visited with his mother, Ida Hunka and Stan of Ryley south over the weekend and he called on relatives in Ryley.

The Ryley High School girls and boys played volleyball against the Irma High School girls and boys with Ryley girls winning five games straight and the Ryley boys winning three out of five on Wednesday evening in the Ryley gymnasium.

Friends from Ryley and district attended the silver wedding for Merrit and Donna Stauffer of Grande Prairie at the home of Donna's folks, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lauber of Tofield.

Merrit and Donna Stauffer of Grande Prairie called on Ida and Stan Hunka on Saturday.

The Ryley High School is holding a bottle drive on Sunday, Nov. 21st, from 2 to 5 p.m. Students will collect the bottles from your homes, so have your bottles ready.

High School Band group along with their music teacher enjoyed a supper at the Ryley Hotel Lounge on Friday evening.

Children are enjoying themselves now since there is ice but remember it hasn't been cold enough to be safe to go on dug outs, etc.

On Nov. 10th, the Calvin United Church Women held their regular monthly meeting in the church kitchen. It was decided to have a turkey supper in the community hall on Nov. 27th.

Used clothing is being collected for the Bissel Centre. These can be left at the Ryley Variety Store. The deadline date is Nov. 25th.

Several ladies plan to attend a lecture on death and dying, being held in Tofield on Nov. 23rd. Hostess for the meeting was Ruth Munkedal.

The Sunshine Club (Retired and Semi-retired Citizens) meet every Wednesday at the Ryley Community Hall. All from Ryley and surrounding district are welcome.

The Sunshine Club recently held a meeting for information on senior citizens plans and activities. Out of that meeting came the information for a "Drop-in-Centre."

The club needs a place to gather and also needs new members. All those 60 years and over in Ryley and district may register. The fee is $1 per person.

The club will be holding a bake sale and hopefully a tea to raise funds for the "Drop-in Centre". Watch The Mercury for further information. All members are urged to renew club ties and support the project.

Hastings Lake news

Lynn Gates

A most successful European-style dinner was held at the hall on Nov. 10. The dinner, convened by Mrs. B. Chernick and Mrs. I. Tiedemann, featured a wide variety of dishes of European origin prepared by the ladies of the community. A large part of the crowd remained after dinner to enjoy the bingo organized by the Hastings Lake Pony Club. Alphonse Fontaine served as caller. Two Christmas cakes, baked by Mrs. L. Tiedemann and decorated by Mrs. B. Chernick, were raffled. The lucky winners were the Henderson and Grant families.

Members of several area families, Dunhams, Cloustons, Moirs and Gates, took part in the Remembrance Day ceremonies held in Tofield. H. Dunham led the service at the Community Hall.

The first of the season's whist drives was held on Nov. 12. High winners were Mrs. M. Patterson and Dale Winder; consolation were Mrs. T. Scott and Art Dunham. The next drive will be held on Nov. 26 at 8.30 p.m.

Poe Pourri

by Lorraine Poulsen

Easterners have always been suspicious types.

Good people, but skeptical.

Even after spending a good many years in Eastern Canada, I was never able to convince any Albertan that Westerners had long given up wearing six-shooters and that chuckwagons are used only during Stampede Days to bring back the old west spirit.

"Is that you, Lorraine? It's me, Peggy, from Toronto. You remember Toronto? Lorraine, what's going on out there? You realize it took me three hours to convince a telephone operator that there really was such a place as Poe, Alberta I didn't know if you had phones there or if I had to send a telegram. The operator wasn't sure either. Tell me that there really is such a place."

I assured her

"Now tell me that this is all just a joke. First a mutual friend of ours tells me that the only is the West the rough and tumble place we Easterners always said it was, but that he had heard that Matt Dillion was stalking the streets of Poe."

"Street. Not streets, Peggy."

"Alright. Street. I thought you told me Poe was a quiet little place with lots of fresh air and friendly people. Tell me that you are really living just out of Sudbury and all those cowboy stories are in the West where they belong."

Somehow I convinced her that Poe actually is a location in Alberta and that it is truly a quiet, peace-loving place and that Sheriff Matt had been reinstated only to symbolize that very atmosphere of tranquillity.

I am not sure where I blew my sincerity act.

It may have been a mistake to tell her about the sound of the coyotes at night, or maybe I shouldn't have told her the one story regarding the history of the store which claims that, at one time, an on-pony express rider had been the store manager. I don't know where I lost her trust.

I received a letter in this morning's mail (she's given up phoning), telling me that she and four Easterner journalists are planning a trip to Ottawa to see the Defence Minister about raising a troop of "pony soldiers" to rescue all Westerners.

We need not worry about an invasion this winter. I told her that the winter winds were starting to blow across the Prairies and that soon snow would cover the roof tops. Westerners I told her, will have a hard time coping.

"Ponies will rebel, Peggy, and pony soldiers will desert."

Next spring, when you hear troops of pony soldiers crossing the Manitoba-Ontario border, headed for Alberta, remember, Easterners are good people, just a bit skeptical.

PREGNANCY TESTING
by Dr. F.A. Baker
Extension Veterinarian
Alberta Agriculture

Pregnancy testing is a moneymaker!

With the current depressed cattle prices, many beef producers tend to view any veterinary procedure as an expense to be avoided. However, there is one thing that a veterinarian can do for his client that has been proved to put money into his pocket. That is pregnancy testing his cows in the fall, before winter feeding begins.

Every farmer knows that it costs a lot of money to feed a cow during the winter months, and with the poor supply of hay this year, feed costs are going to be even higher.

To feed a dry cow unnecessarily during the winter months is indicative of poor management. It is not necessary to feed any dry cow because of doubts about whether or not she is pregnant. Palpation of the uterus through the cow's rectum by a competent veterinarian can determine which cows are pregnant and which ones are dry and should be shipped.

Consider the cold economic facts.

Fees for pregnancy testing vary among veterinarians, but the average fee seems to be $2 to $1.50 per head. It will cost at least $70 to ownwinter a cow. If she is dry, this money will have been wasted. Even at a cost of $2 per head for pregnancy testing, a saving of $68 will have been realized if the cow is shipped.

"Yes" you might say, "but what about the $2 per head paid for those that are pregnant. There's no profit on those." Let's suppose 100 cows are tested and 10 percent of them are dry, which is well above the average pregnancy rate on most farms and ranches. Culling these 10 cows will result in a saving of $680 in feed costs. Subtract from this figure the cost of pregnancy testing all of the cows ($200) and there is a saving of $480.

Add to this the advantages of the early detection of such diseases as vibrosis, an early appraisal of the preceding season's breeding management, and the peace of mind of knowing that all's well. Even if there are no dry cows, it's easy to see that pregnancy testing is one of the best investments a farmer or rancher can make.

A minimum of facilities are required for pregnancy testing; facilities that should already be on any well managed farm or ranch. A sturdy chute with a squeeze at the end for the rectal palpation of individual animals is all that's needed.

A gate in the side of the chute immediately behind the squeeze for the easy passage of the veterinarian is much appreciated by him and greatly speeds up his work. Some veterinarians charge by the hour instead of per cow, and the better the facilities, the sooner the job will be done.

GAS FUMES KILL

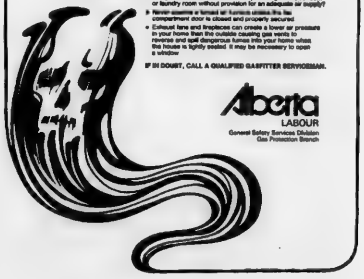
FUMES CREATED BY BURNING NATURAL GAS, PROPANE GAS, COAL, OR OTHER FUELS CAN CAUSE HEADACHES, VOMITING, STUPOR AND DEATH

DON'T TAKE A CHANCE

ARE YOUR FUEL BURNING SYSTEMS PROPERLY VENTED?

- Are fumes leaking from corroded vents or poor vent pipe connections?
- Are the vent pipes properly secured?
- Is there evidence of rust formation or soot on the burners, vent pipes or appliances?
- Watch for moisture or a black liquid dripping from vent pipes.
- Is the top of the chimney (outside) free of obstructions? Check routinely during winter for snow or frost build up.
- Are you using a brick chimney where mortar or other debris may be blocking the vent pipe entries? (Check with a hand mirror at the clean-out opening.)
- Check that the vent pipe is not inserted so far into the chimney that the end is blocked.

APPLIANCES NEED AIR FOR COMBUSTION. VENTS CAN REVERSE AND SPILL DANGEROUS FUMES INTO YOUR HOME.



- Has your furnace been enclosed by building a furnace room or laundry room without provision for an adequate air supply?
- Never operate a fumed air furnace unless the fan compartment door is closed and properly secured.
- Exhaust fans and fireplaces can create a lower air pressure in your home than the outside causing gas vents to reverse and spill dangerous fumes into your home when the house is tightly sealed. It may be necessary to open a window

AFTER THE HUNT

Betty Birch, D.H.E. at Stettler sent the following information of using wild meat.

It certainly has been cold enough to feel like the hunting season and it won't be long before you may be faced with a moose or a deer to do something with. Cooking wild game can be a problem, but handled inversely, many fine meals can result from the hunter's bounty.

Meat from young animals will have a less noticeable flavour than that of older more active animals. During the mating season, the meat is quite strong, so if you object to the flavour, avoid bagging male animals during that time. For deer, sheep and goats, this is the last week in November and the first week in December; for elk, caribou and antelope, it is the last week in September, and the first two weeks in October for moose

Prior to cooking, trim away the dried outside crust of meat and fat as this contains most of the game flavour Gamey meat can be soaked in salt or vinegar water but this tends to leave it waterlogged and flavorless. If you suspect the meat will be quite strong, you might have it made into sausage

When cooking game, your usual recipes for beef or lamb will work well.

Generally wild animals don't have as much fat as domestic ones, so the meat is dry and lean. You will need to add fat in most recipes

Game has a darker colour than domestic meat so it may appear to be done before it actually is.

TENDER CUTS

When roasting game, don't cover it. Wipe the meat with a clean, damp cloth. Add fat or cover the roast with strips of bacon. About ¼ of the weight will be lost in shrinkage but although there are some drippings, there are not usually enough to make good gravy without beef bouillon or gravy mix.

Roast at 275 degree - 300 degree for ¾ to 1 hour per pound.

POT ROASTING

Use a heavy pot and melt enough fat to cover the bottom to a depth of ¼ inch. Brown the meat on all sides, cover the pot and bake at 275 - 300 ½ to 1 hour per pound. Add seasonings and vegetables during the last hour.

MARINATED ROAST

Wild meat may be tenderized and flavoured by marinating. Mix 1 part vinegar or lemon juice with 3 parts salad oil. Start with about ½ tsp. spice to 2 cups marinade, then add more if you wish. A dash of garlic with ½ tsp. dill seed gives a pleasant subtle flavor

Soak the meat in a covered bowl, turning from time to time. 12 hours is plenty of time to allow.

After marinating, roast as usual, using the marinade to baste during roasting.

Wild game recipes are available from any office.

Recreation Board okays master plan

The five-year Master Plan for recreation in the County of Beaver was accepted by the Beaver Regional Recreation and Parks Board at a meeting in October

After some discussion, the Board decided to have George Baker write to Bob Cress to see if the county would allow 1975 surplus money to be placed in a trust fund.

Proposed changes in rules and regulations were discussed and it was agreed that each town council and recreation board representative should bring in a written decision for the November meeting

There was some debate over who should take over Bruce School and the matter was tabled until the next meeting of the Board.

Written and oral reports presented by George Baker and Val Charteris were accepted and Mr. Baker was advised to set up a policy committee meeting prior to the next meeting of the Board.

Following the regular meeting, members of the Board held a short session without members of the staff being present.

Representatives were in attendance from Tofield, Bruce, Holden, Kinsella, Ryley, Viking, and the County of Beaver

Information for this story was obtained from the minutes of the meeting.

Despite the fact that the meeting was held on October 27th, the minutes submitted for publication were listed as unapproved.

50th anniversaries celebrated

Two former area couples recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversaries in Edmonton. Celebrating were Mr. and Mrs. Glen Bailey, formerly of the McKenzie District and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wilson, former Tofield residents.

MR. AND MRS. WILSON

An open house was held recently to honor Earl and Lillian Wilson of 2305 - 18th St., on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary. Attending were friends and relatives from Kamloops, Salmon Arm, Enderby, Armstrong, Kelowna and Vernon.

Congratulatory messages were received from The Governor General; Prime Minister Trudeau; Conservative Leader, Joe Clark; M.P. Howard Johnston; Premier, Bill Bennett; M.L.A Pat Jordan; and Mayor Stuart Fleming.

The Wilsons met at a dance in Alberta and were married in Edmonton on November 18th, 1926. Mr. Wilson was a farmer at the time, and Mrs. Wilson was a registered nurse.

They farmed at Tofield until the fall of 1945, when they sold their farm and moved to Enderby, B.C. where they lived for three years.

They then moved to Salmon Arm where they bought a fuel business which they operated in partnership with their son, Bob, until June of 1958. At this time they moved to Vernon where they owned and operated Wilson's Grocery until it was destroyed by fire on July 20, 1964. It was after this that Mr. and Mrs. Wilson retired and moved into their present home on 18th Street.

They had three children; the eldest, Mrs. Corinne (Harold) Howard of Vancouver passed away in June of this year. Mrs. Lois (Ken) Owen of Vernon, and their son, Bob, who lives in Kamloops. They also have ten grandchildren, and one great-grandchild who was born only four days prior to the Wilsons' golden anniversary, and is the daughter of Bertie and Rod Calder of Kamloops, eldest daughter of Bob and Alice Wilson.

After returning from a two-week holiday in Hawaii, the Wilsons will again be guests of honor at a family dinner to be held at the Vernon Lodge.

MR. AND MRS. BAILEY

Former residents of the McKenzie district, Glen and Margaret Bailey now of Edmonton celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on November 6th, at the Duggan Community Hall in Edmonton with a dinner and dance.

There were 140 guests present, among whom were their son and 2 daughters and their families.

The guests were from Vancouver, Chilliwack, and Penticton, B.C., and Stony Plain, Spruce Grove, Golden Spike, St. Albert, Eleven Lake, Tofield, Foremost, Lethbridge, Fort McLeod, Millet, Wainwright, Lloydminster, Minburn and Bear Creek.

Jack Adolph of Golden Spike was master of ceremonies and their granddaughter, Connie Bailey of Chilliwack asked the blessing at the dinner.

Telegrams were received from the following: Telegram and plaques from Prime Minister of Canada, Pierre Trudeau; Premier Peter Lougheed of Alberta; and Lt. Governor of Alberta, Ralph Steinhauer, telegrams from Terry Cavanaugh, Mayor of Edmonton; Dr. Freebury, Mayor of Tofield; Dr Fritzinger, Mayor of Stony Plain; and from the Patenaud and Bailey families from Australia.

The toast to the bride was from Glen's cousin, Archie Malcolm with Glen responding. Neil Bailey presented the gifts from the family, Connie Bailey presented those from the grandchildren and Dennis Bailey the gifts from the great-grandchildren, and a purse of money and gifts were received from their many friends present as well as numerous cards of congratulations.

The music for the dance was supplied by the Beaurists Orchestra. A very enjoyable evening was spent followed by a lunch near mid-night.

Block Parents to start

Parents of children in Tofield and surrounding area have been invited to attend a meeting in the Tofield School Library on Wednesday night.

The purpose of the meeting is to organize a program which is designed for the protection and safety of children, called Block parents. The meeting is to get underway at eight o'clock.

Attending Wednesday's meeting will be Cpl. Bob Braham of the RCMP who is in charge of all such programs east of the City of Edmonton. Cpl. Braham will outline the program involved and illustrate his talk with a slide showing.

If enough residents and parents attend Wednesday's meeting and indicate their support, this could be the start of a number of programs along the same line, with other programs offering safety programs for adults and residential areas

Correction

by L. Weatherill
Agricultural Fieldman

In recent advertising and news articles, it was stated that the County of Beaver Seed Cleaning Co-operative Association is operating under a class three licence.

This information is untrue as the plant is currently operating under a class two licence.

However, this error does not change the general content of any previous published material, as recent grading of samples has indicated a decline in the purity of cleaned samples.

One reason for this decline could be the increasing incidence of extremely dirty grain being delivered to the plant for cleaning.

Farmers should make an effort to deliver to the plant only grain which will make reasonable seed grades after cleaning.

County council recommends that all farmers attend the annual meeting of the association, so that this and other matters can be discussed in the presence of as many shareholders as possible.

Tofield obtains own photographer

George A Swann, a well known photographer in Toronto, Ontario and area, has located in Tofield.

Mr Swann has covered every type and phase of photography, having his own studio's in both Peterborough and Toronto, Ontario. He has freelanced with both CBC and CTV Television Networks as a Cinema-photographer and still photographer. He had Outboard Marine Corp under contract for three years to do all their publicity and advertising photography.

He has worked with some of Canada's top photographers, such as, Al Gilbert, Gerald Campbell, and many others. Mr. Swann had two one-man artist photography shows in Toronto which won him high praise as a photographer and as a result, he photographed many well known Canadian artists, for publicity photo's and record album covers.

There will be a display of some of his works, in the centre window of Tofield Sports for viewing each week.

Mr Swann would like to work on a part-time basis in this area, and is now taking bookings for portraits, weddings, and family sessions.

"Insect Parables"

by Robert Baker

The author knows his insects and well he should. He's taught biology for a quarter century. He also knows the Lord, and isn't bashful about sharing his belief.

For Robert J. Baker it is natural to draw spiritual lessons from the miniature world of six-legged creatures.

Chapter titles in Insect Parables include:

- The Pious Tiger
- An Early Astronaut
- The Unliberated Male
- Tougher Than the Dinosaur
- A Knight in Dotted Armour
- Seventeen Years as a Teenage Insect

The thirty-one short chapters are excellent for personal reading, will be quoted widely by speakers and provide a ready resource for nature study in a camp setting.

Tickets for "The Hawaiians" at Jubilee Auditorium, Dec. 3rd are available at "That Place".

TOWN OF TOFIELD

The Planning Act 1970 as Amended

TAKE NOTICE that the Council of the Town of Tofield proposes to pass an amending zoning by-law pursuant to Section 134 of the said Act.

The purpose of the proposed by-law is to rezone that parcel of land known as Block Z, Plan 5457AH and having an area of 11.77 acres, from U.R.-Urban Reserve to R-1 Residential Zone.

At 7:30 p.m. Monday, December 13th, 1976, a Hearing will be held, at which time objections may be made or discussed.

A copy of the proposed by-law may be inspected at the Town Office during regular business hours.

Dated at Tofield, Alberta, this 25th day of November, 1976.

J.N. Brodie,
Administrator

"Here's how to keep your fireplace cozy~and safe."

Ron Gibbons, Northwestern's Residential Marketing Representative, has these words of advice for wood-burning fireplace users.

"When using your fireplace, please remember that an extra supply of fresh air is essential. Otherwise, there's a possibility of depleting the supply of air to your gas appliances — the air they need for proper combustion and venting. You can ensure a sufficient supply of air and avoid the possibility of a hazardous situation by:

1. Opening a window when using the fireplace.
2. Closing the fireplace damper when the fireplace is not in use. You'll prevent loss of heat up the chimney and conserve energy.

For more information on home heating safety, pick up our free pamphlet, 'Take Time For Home Heating Safety', at your nearby gas company office."

Holden district news

Mrs. Olive Good with her daughter, Denise Warawa of Red Water, were in Calgary over the weekend to see an aunt of Olive's who was very ill in the hospital.

The November meeting of St. Gregory's CWL was held Thursday evening, with 15 members present. Regular business and other matters were attended to and various committee reports were given. Plans were made for the Children's Christmas party to be held on Sunday, Dec. 19th. At the conclusion of the meeting, lunch was served by the hostesses, Jessie Kolodychuk and Bessie Zemlak.

Mrs. Mary Slywka had her son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Slywka and girls of Sherwood Park, also her daughter and husband, visiting with her Sunday.

Leif and Eleanor Mielinaka, Anne and Pete Milinaka were Sunday guests with the girl's mother, Mrs. M. Zuzak.

Mrs. Kate Nichols was a Monday visitor in Edmonton driving in with Mrs. Helen Trellenson.

Sam Sroka, his mother, Mrs. Tekla Sroka and her daughter, Mrs. Nellie Kaluzny, drove to Edmonton on Sunday, visiting with an old friend of Mrs. Sroka's who had returned home from the hospital after surgery on her hip.

Joe Sroka has purchased the house previously owned by Mr. and Mrs. Hallet, but will not be moving in until sometime next summer, after they have done some renovations.

Cecil and Gwen Hooper are back home from their holiday trip, visiting at Calgary, Banff, Radium and Kimberly, where they stayed a few days with Cecil's brother, Chester and wife, Tillie; visiting at Kimberly with their niece, Betty and husband, Sonny Danell; then at Nelson with nieces Sharon Howard, Arlene and Bob MacLean, Donna and Jim Paterson; travelling back through Creston, B.C. to Elkford, where they visited with Cecil's brother, Milton who is married to Gwen's sister, Phyllis, also their nephew and wife, Bob and Edith Hooper, driving home through the Crowsnest Pass and Fort MacLeod, Calgary to Edmonton, staying overnight there with their daughter, Wendy and husband, Randy.

Visiting over the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hooper were their son Grant and wife, Pat Hooper, Tim Hooper, Randy and Wendy Sunby, all of Edmonton.

Mrs. Gwen Hooper and daughter, Shirley Scott, were last Friday visitors with Gwen's mother, Mrs. Phena Evans at Vista Lodge and also with Gwen's niece, Gaye Cumming and small daughter and Gwen's sister, Mrs. Audrey Runyon.

"I'm not believin' Chubby and his band, eh!"

Horse Nutrition

Was the main topic of the November meeting of the Hastings Lake Pony Club held Tuesday evening at the Hall. Chairing the meeting was leader Judy Hokanson.

The Regional Pony Club are holding their Christmas Party on November the 27th at the Horse Hills School in Edmonton. Members can pick up the tickets from Marie Jurgens.

The next meeting will be held Dec. the 7th with Rolly Rushfeldt as the guest speaker on Horse Shoeing and Care of the Hoof.

Everyone is welcome to attend these meetings.

CLC hoop teams start

The basketball season for the CLC Vikettes and Vikings will officially start on Friday evening.

Both CLC teams will play their first ACAC Basketball League games in Red Deer against the College Kings and Queens.

CLC will then have a ten-day break before they host their first home games on December 7th when NAIT will provide the opposition.

Both CLC teams competed in pre-season tournaments as the Vikettes won a consolation playoff in Medicine Hat while the Vikings failed to win a game in Edmonton.

Poe Pourri

by Lorraine Poulsen

One day the re-modelling of Poe Store is going to be nothing but a memory. Not necessarily a pleasant memory, but, a memory just the same.

When Bert Schwab and his crew installed the water and sewer system late this summer, I tolerated the noise, the mud and the mess, knowing that the end result was worth the hassle

I swept up patiently after the furnace had been installed in the basement and the Kjelland Electric workers had completed their job.

I didn't mind wearing a kerchief all day when the painters from Town and Country Decorating in Tofield gave the entire building a face lift with electric powered spray paint guns.

I even retained my calm when Bob decided he (WE) would do the drywall taping in the downstairs bathroom.

And when the upstairs was being gutted and installation being fitted in place, I did curse the fine dust and the tracked kitchen floor but, somehow, the job ended and sanity was still mine.

True, I have never heard the expression "What's a poor man to do?" as often as I heard it from carpenter Letty Anhill during the upstairs revamping nor did I know the true meaning of the old cliche "Patience is a virtue. . ."

But it really isn't fair.

Why must my toleration be tested?

With the final days of renovation in sight, enter Taylor of James Construction.

I have listened to the problems of plumbers and painters; heard more cost estimates than I care to remember, spent many the night trying to plan the "best" way to renovate and know what a job re-painting an old building can be. But, in all that time, I have never been subjected to a carpenter who talks to himself, analyzing all the above and more.

Taylor.

The only person I know that arrives at work muttering about the job of the day and leaves still carrying a rapid self-conversation about the cost, the problems and the work yet to be done. I don't know how long I can stand it.

But I will. I've put up with the others and I have vowed that Taylor, his self-chattering and his insistance of a job never-ending, will not get to me.

Soon it will be a memory.

Beaverhill community

by N. Ferguson

Susan Brewster and Ted Shaw were married Nov. 13 at the home of Susan's mother, Mrs. Catherine Brewster. During the afternoon and evening, friends and neighbors called to congratulate the newlyweds. Susan and Ted will be living at Fort McMurry, where both are employed.

Ruth Brewster of Calgary spent the weekend at home.

Albert and Ray Ferguson of near Sherwood Park visited with Ed and Nola on Sunday evening.

Clifford and Christie Ferguson became parents, on Nov. 17 to Curtis Russell, weighing in at 8 lbs., 3 ozs.

The Kids Dance at the Beaverhill Hall was well attended and enjoyed by all present.

Ruby and Earl Hopf, formerly of Grande Centre, are visiting at the Ralph Hopf home. They will shortly be moving to a new home in Ryley.

Larry and Nina Willson and family were Calgary visitors last weekend helping celebrate the 30th birthday of Nina's mother, Mrs. Morgan. Forty-five family members gathered at the "Stampeder" to honor her with a dinner, birthday cake and gifts. This is the first time the family has ever been all together. Sons and daughters attending came from Southern California, Vancouver Island and Terrace, B.C., Hines Creek, Tofield and Calgary. Mrs. Morgan has fifty-five grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Arm yourself, against the Flu.

(Get your Flu shot.)

The flu which could threaten Albertans this winter is commonly known as 'Swine' flu. This does not mean you can get it from pigs or eating pork...rather, it seems that pigs can suffer much like humans, from a similar strain. The flu is caused by a new type of virus, and a lot of people are unprotected against it.

Most people have experienced the miserable discomforts that come with winter flu...coughing, soreness, nausea and depression. These disabilities are not too serious, but the disease can be accompanied by a viral pneumonia which could prove serious.

A provincial immunization program to protect Albertans against the flu will be started as vaccine supplies become available.

Your local health authority will be making announcements in your area.

The program is directed to those most likely to be affected severely by a bout of the flu. It is also aimed at those workers who must keep essential services operating. The program will begin soon, with immunization of the chronically ill; this will be followed by immunization of all other eligible groups.

If you belong in one of the categories listed, then you should receive the vaccine.

Who is eligible?

- All persons with a chronic illness...those with heart, lung, kidney disease or diabetes.
- All persons over 65 years of age.
- All essential services workers of any age...hospital and health, police and fire workers.
- All persons 20 to 50 years of age.

If you're in these groups, watch for notices from your local health authority.

Times, dates and locations of clinics will be announced through your local media.

Arm yourself, against the Flu.

Adair - Francis

The wedding of Carol Ann Francis, daughter of Mr and Mrs Glenn Francis of Tofield, to Reginald Adair, son of Mr and Mrs James Adair of Donalda, took place on September 18 at Bardo Lutheran Church in Tofield with Rev Oscar Lokken and Rev Arthur Dahlen officiating. The newlyweds are residing in Fort McMurray.

Viking and Ryley win 'ball crowns

A County of Beaver senior high school volleyball tournament was held recently in Tofield with teams from Viking and Ryley coming out on top.

In the girls' playoff, Ryley went undefeated in three straight games to emerge with top honours. Viking finished in the runner-up position with a 2-1 record while Holden was third with a 1-2 record and Tofield finished in last place as they did not manage a victory.

Viking picked off top honours in the boys' category as they were undefeated in their three outings while Ryley took one loss to finish in second place. Holden and Tofield ended in the same positions in the boys' competitions as they had in the girls'.

Basketball practices have been underway for junior and senior teams for the past two weeks at Tofield School.

Due to a lack of interest, there will not be a senior boys' team in Tofield School this winter.

The senior girls will make their season's debut this Friday evening when they play host to the Alumni team. Game time is 7:00 p.m. with all former students invited to attend and play.

League action for the senior girls will commence on December 3rd when the team travels over to Viking.

Action for the junior boys and girls will start on December 1st when Tofield's teams will host their counterparts from Ryley.

Oslunds celebrate anniversary

On Nov. 13th, family and friends of Walter and Mary Oslund gathered at the Ryley Community Hall to honor their 35th wedding anniversary.

The couple were married in Camrose and have lived in the Ryley district where they raised 8 children.

Their families are Terry and Ellen Sutton and Christine of Tofield; Bill and Myrtle Saunderson of Edmonton; Peter and Pat Kovalchuk and Kelly of Ryley; Lyle and Anne Oslund and Danny of Edmonton; Dale, Donald, Gordon and Ronald still at home.

The couple were seated at the head table which was beautifully decorated with flowers. A three-layered cake made and decorated by Mrs Laura Gagne, centered the table. Mrs Lois Clement and Mr. Milfred Oslund were seated with the couple. The guest book was attended to by Shirley Jensen.

Acting as emcee for the evening was Norman Gossman. A short program began with Vanessa Maaren singing a lovely song, accompanied by Janett Johnson on the piano. The Hisey group sang with Marlene Magnuson sang and played a number of songs. A comedy song was sung by Janett Johnson, Janet Winzaus, Ruth Blunkedal with Audrey Knudsion playing the guitar.

On behalf of the community, friends, and relatives, William Maaren presented Walter and Mary with a card and money. Many other beautiful gifts were also presented to the couple from friends and relatives.

Walter and Mary both expressed their warm appreciation and thanks to everyone for coming, for the gifts and for making the occasion a memorable and happy one.

The rest of the evening was spent in visiting and enjoying lunch, followed by a dance.

Many guests travelled from Chilliwack, B.C., Tofield, Holden, Viking, Edmonton and Camrose.

Progressive Farming

Farming Solonetzic Soils

A high sodium (Na) content is characteristic of solonetzic soils, more commonly known as blow-out, gumbo or hard-pan soils. These soils are also characterized by 1) poor physical condition of the surface soil, which often makes seed bed preparation difficult, 2) a hard-pan layer which restricts water and root penetration, and 3) a soil pH less than 6.5. Crop growth is usually characterized by patchy or uneven germination and growth.

On solonetzic soils of the Brown and Dark Brown soil zones, (crop areas 01, 02 and 03 on the soil test report), profitable cropping may be limited to those years when summer rainfall is ample and ideally distributed during the growing season. In the Black, Thin Black and Grey Wooded zones (areas 05, 06, 08, and 09), these soils can be fairly productive if certain tillage, cultural and fertilizer practices are used and long dry spells are not encountered.

Recommended Management Practices

1) Drainage - Surface drainage should be provided whenever possible to prevent temporary accumulation of water (ponding) prior to and after seeding. This will reduce uneven germination and will allow more timely cultivation of the entire field.

2) Seed Bed - Seed Bed preparation is relatively difficult on solonetzic soils since they dry out rapidly with excessive cultivation, and they tend to form large hard clods when worked wet and left to dry. Seeding should be done as soon as the soil temperature and moisture conditions are favorable for good germination. Press drills work best for seeding, however, disc drills can be used if followed by packers. A very important general rule for obtaining even germination is "Seed to Moisture".

3) Fertilizers - A good fertilizer program is necessary to complement other soil management practices. Nitrogen is usually the plant nutrient limiting growth of cereals and forage grasses. When fertilizing cereal crops, both nitrogen and phosphorus should be drilled with the seed to promote early season growth and vigor of plants. Up to 30 lb. - acred (33 kg-ha) of nitrogen can be safely drilled in with cereal crops.

When nitrogen and phosphorus levels are low, a good fertilizer to use is 23-23-0, whereas when phosphorus levels are medium to high, a better fertilizer choice would be 27-14-0, which can be safely drilled in with the seed at rates up to 100 lb. - acre (110 kg-ha).

The use of nitrogen fertilizer on forage crops, especially those containing a high percentage of grass, is very important. Forage production on solonetzic soils is often very low unless adequate nitrogen fertilizer is applied. A number of different nitrogen fertilizers are commercially available, however, the most suitable form for forage grown on solonetzic soils is ammonium nitrate.

4) Organic Matter - All straw and stubble as well as available supplies of manure should be worked into the soil to increase organic matter content, and thus improve surface structure and tilth. Manure will also supply considerable amounts of nutrients to replace the need for heavy applications of commercial fertilizer.

5) Forage Crops - Solonetzic soils are usually capable of producing good forage crops. Growing forage crops is another way of increasing organic matter content and improving soil structure. Forage crops should be seeded shallowly, ½ to 1 inches (13 to 25 mm) with a press drill into a well prepared seed bed. Brome grass has out-yielded all other forage crops in field experiments on solonetzic soils. Crested wheatgrass, creeping red fescue, and intermediate wheatgrass are also well adapted crops. Alfalfa is recommended only on the more productive solonetzic soils and produces best in mixtures with the forage grasses. The drainage of surface water to prevent flooding or ponding in the spring or after heavy rains is also important on forage crop land.

6) Liming or Deep Plowing - Some solonetzic soils may respond to liming or deep plowing to 2 ft. (60 cm). Liming is usually restricted to those soils with a pH of less than 5.5 and deep plowing to those with a thin topsoil layer and very tough hard-pan. Both of these treatments are relatively costly, but if severe production problems are occuring on your land, soil specialists can advise you further on either of these improvement schemes.

Junior exhibitors show in Edmonton

Junior cattle exhibitors from the area made a fine showing at Farmfair '76 which continues this week in Edmonton.

The Supreme Interbreed Junior Futurity Grand Championship crown was won by a 1975 Angus heifer shown by Harold Reich of Bashaw. The heifer, a winner in the Angus competition, took two of four titles awarded to Reich.

Reich also won the Reserve Championship in the Angus class with a 1976 heifer, Miss Pride GV. In addition, Reich finished in second place with an entry in the Charolais competition.

Reich exhibited the Reserve Junior Champion in the Finished Market Steer competition with a Charolais-Angus cross. Reich went on to finish in third place in junior showmanship competition.

Ken Gisteldhaus of Vegreville showed the best group of five animals in the Finished Market Steers category while Colleen Ziegler, also of Vegreville, took second place in junior showmanship competition.

Howard Brown of Tofield exhibited the Grand Champion and Senior Champion with a purebred bull in Hereford competitions. Brown finished in the runner-up's position in junior Hereford competitions with his entry of HB Beauty Cal.

Miss Vanneck, a fifty per cent bred Blone D'Aquitaine owned by Ed Vanneck of New Norway, was the highest priced female sold in that particular category when she went to E.T. Hauer of Bruderheim for $500.

Leola and Bill Thomas of New Sarepta paid the highest price for a member of the Gelbvieh breed when they shelled out $5,700 to buy a purebred female from Bun Ranches.

This was not a good year for hay production in Alberta.

According to F.A. Boyce, statistician with Alberta Agriculture, below normal precipitation in most areas of the province during the winter and a dry spring resulted in slow forage growth. He reports that yields from the first hay crop were well below the long time average, but that generous summer rains gave excellent second cuts in many areas.

However, total hay production for the province is estimated at 5 million tons, a reduction of 300,000 tons compared with last year. Because of the light forage situation, it is anticipated that the volume of alfalfa for processing during the winter may be limited, and that carryover stocks for next year will be low. Hay shortages have already been reported in some areas where yields were poor or substantial losses were sustained from adverse weather.

"Areas of particular concern from the point of view of short hay supplies," says Mr. Boyce, "include the Peace River region and the Rimbey-Wetaskiwin area where both the quality and the quantity of hay is lacking."

Large quantities of straw are available this year throughout the province, but the low nutritional value of this feed limits the amount that can be substituted for hay without supplementation by grain, dehydrated alfalfa or other supplements.

"The weather", Mr. Boyce says, "is going to be the determining factor in whether or not cattlemen have problems in overwintering their stock." If the fall is open and the winter mild, livestock producers in all areas of the province should have little difficulty in maintaining their animals in good condition. A long, severe winter, on the other hand, could have a serious effect on the viability of many livestock operations.

CHRISTMAS IS COMING!

It is one month until Christmas and the rush is on. Jobs and activities are piling up. How can we possibly get everything done?

The first step is to think; then plan. Decide what kind of Christmas you want. Decide who you want to have as guests and who you want to visit.

Try using a write in calendar to help your plan. Write in planned activities like Christmas programs, parties, etc. If you need a babysitter, arrange for one well in advance.

Make lists, even if only for the joy of crossing off items as they are done, a list is a plan of action. You might have a card list, gift list, Christmas dinner list, etc. Don't forget to allow some time for leisure and unexpected happenings. Be flexible. You want time to enjoy the Christmas season.

As we get closer to Christmas Day, you may find there just won't be time for all the things you want to do. Set priorities. Go back to your decision about what kind of Christmas you want and decide which activities best fulfil your goals. Don't forget to get other family members inputs when you are planning goals.

Get as many jobs that can be done early out of the way. Major cleaning, some cooking and baking, entertainment supplies, etc. can all be arranged well in advance.

Do take time for yourself. Plan a manicure, a new hair do, something special to wear. Take time to allow the special magic that belongs to Christmas alone to work.

Area's exhibitors excel at Farmfair

Farmfair '76 concluded on Friday in Edmonton with area exhibitors having made an excellent show in different categories of competition.

Miller Angus Farm of Bashaw won the Aberdeen-Angus Breeders Herd Award as well as the Top Herdsman Award.

Miller Farm's winning entry was Pride of Rock H, winner of the Grand Champion Angus Female and Senior Championship honours.

Reserve Champion in Senior Angus competition was exhibited by Moltzahn Agnus Farms of Bashaw.

The Grand Champion Aberdeen-Angus bull was owned jointly by Spearhead Ranch of Westlock, Henderson Cattle Company of Lacombe and Freeway Angus of Alix. The Reserve Senior Champion was shown by Freeway Angus.

The Reserve Grand Champion Female and the Senior Female Champion was exhibited by Wesley Jones of Vegreville.

Judging in Aberdeen Angus competitions was by Gotthold Reich of Bashaw.

Harold Reich of Bashaw received the highest price for a market steer when his reserve grand champion sold for $1.34 per pound and was purchased by Woodwards of Edmonton.

An animal entered by Irmgard Reich of Bashaw placed fourth in carcase class competition after having been placed in fourth place while alive.

In the same competition, Ken Gisteldhaus of Vegreville placed an animal first in the live category with the carcass coming in 14th. Third place in this category was taken by Allan Gill of Tofield.

Shirley Congdon of Meeting Creek won the 4-H Dairy Judging competition while Kerrie Long of Vegreville finished in second place. Miss Congdon also won the "open" judging competition.

Jos Vandenberg of Camrose purchased the champion and reserve champion Yorkshire sows from Roderick Mac Millan of Clandonald at a price of $650 each.

Dake Cole of Vegreville, earlier announced as the winner of the Jersey Premier Exhibitor Award, also took top honours in four other categories.

Mr. Cole's entries took Junior and Junior Reserve championships in the female competition, the reserve senior female crown, the reserve grand championship for Jersey bull calves and in addition, his reserve champion female also won the reserve grand championship title.

Gary Diolelyk of Vegreville placed second in showmanship competitions for the 14-16 age group in the market hog category.

Mrs. Ellen Eaton

Mrs. Ellen Eaton returned home Thursday after spending a week in the Tofield Hospital having X-Rays and treatments

On Friday, Emily and Ernie Roberge of Edmonton came out to the farm to visit Emily's sister, Mickey and Charlie Niemetz. Ernie stayed with Charlie while Emily, Mickey and Lil Van Buskirk motored to Lamont where they visited the nursing home and attended the annual tea and bazaar of work done by the residents of the nursing home.

Friday afternoon visitors at the home of Howard and Doris Brown were Doris's parents, Howard and Nae Ferguson of Lakeshore and John and Evelyn Moore of Tofield. They were looking over the stock Howard and Doris are getting ready for their coming sale. All enjoyed a lunch before returning home.

Doug Niemetz and Wendy Dobson of Edmonton spent Saturday to Sunday evening at the home of Doug's parents, Charlie and Mickey Niemetz.

Leroy and Shirley Eaton and son Ronnie of Fort McMurray arrived Saturday afternoon and were overnight guests of Leroy's mother, Mrs. Ellen Eaton, leaving for home on Sunday.

The Lakeshore U.C.W. met at the home of Mrs. Mavis Jacobsen on Nov. 17th, with 9 members present. It was decided to hold the next meeting (which will be the Christmas meeting with exchange of gifts) at the home of Irene Warner on Dec. 15th.

Fred and Nancy Onyschuk of Edmonton on Saturday afternoon visitors at the home of Charlie and Mickey Niemetz.

On Friday evening, ladies of Holden and district held a family night turkey supper in the Holden Community Hall, sponsored by the Holden and district Agricultural Society. A variety show followed the supper and the Ryley - Tofield Stage Band took part in the program. Each section of the band was featured in a short 30-second piece from a song. This is a prelude to the many more concerts that Mr. Norris will be having.

Johnny Fish is a patient in an Edmonton hospital where he will undergo surgery.

Alfred Solberg of Berwyn visited his sister-in-law, Julia Anderson. Mrs. Solberg was in hospital in Edmonton for a check-up.

Bert Kirkelund is home and feeling fine again after spending a few days in hospital in Edmonton.

Ryley Junior High boys and girls lost their volleyball games against Viking last Thursday.

In the volleyball tournament in Viking on Saturday, Holden beat Ryley junior girls and Viking beat the Ryley junior boys.

The Sociology 30 Class of Ryley High School went to Ponoka Mental Institute on Friday.

It was open house and the students visited with the patients and staff.

Supervising was a teacher, Mrs. Oasle, and Rudy Mizera was the driver of the bus.

A swim-a-thon will be held on Dec. 5th by the juniors and up, taking swimming

Wrestling returns

Stampede wrestling is returning to Camrose on Tuesday night after a ten year absence.

Five bouts will be staged in the Drill Hall on the Fairgrounds with the first bout getting underway at eight o'clock.

Promoters of Tuesday's card are stressing the fact that this group has no connection with groups that have appeared here in the past few years.

The main bout will feature Danny Babich against Super Assassin. Other bouts will see the Morin Brothers against the Cuban Assassins, Rag Parts will meet John Foley, Keith Hart (Stu's son) against Gamma Singh, and Mike Sharp against Larry Sharp.

You get a higher score when you count your blessings rather than when you add up your troubles.

Speaker

Hon Marvin Moore was the guest speaker on Wednesday night on the Round Hill-Dodds Farmers Protective Association held its second annual meeting in the school gym with just over one hundred persons in attendance.

Tofield's PTA facing crisis

. . . may be disbanded

by Doris Brown

The Tofield PTA met on November 16 at the Tofield School Library.

Slated for the agenda was the election of the 1976-77 executive; however, the attendance was so very poor, nineteen people, that no elections were held.

The constitution of the Tofield PTA states that in order to hold an election, there must be twenty-five members of good standing (registered members) present. On Tuesday evening this quota was not met. Nearly half of those in attendance were members of the Tofield School teaching staff

Also on the agenda for the evening was a talk by Dr. Neil Gannon, Superintendant of Schools for the County of Beaver, on "Future Expansion at Tofield School".

Although Dr. Gannon did not present a very optomistic outlook, this proved a very interesting and informative topic. Unless the school enrollment at Tofield increases drastically over the next few years, it is not likely that a new school or an addition to the present structure will be built. Department of Education regulations dictate that there must be a definite trend of increased enrollment before any modifications to existing facilities can be undertaken. Dr. Gannon distributed copies of the School Buildings Act and also copies of the Tofield School enrollment for the past few years.

A question and answer period followed Dr. Gannon's talk, with many points of interest being discussed. The most alarming aspect of the discussion being that some grades at the school are now operating with thirty or more students per classroom and the way the town and surrounding area are developing, it is very likely that these classroom numbers will increase each year, with no provisions having been made for additional classrooms or teaching staff. This means that the teacher-student ratio will become even higher and it will be almost impossible that each child receives the individual attention he requires.

The December meeting of the Tofield PTA will be held on December 16th at 8 p.m. in the Tofield School Library, one week ahead of the scheduled meeting, to accomodate the Christmas season. At this meeting an election of officers will be again attempted.

Should a quorum not be present, as per the constitution, sixty day notice will be given to disbanding the PTA.

Attending this meeting also, will be the Tofield Attendance District Representatives on the County school Committee, C. Sears, H. Wilkie and Dr. N. Gannon, Superintendent. The topic of discussion will be School Committee Policy.

Ryley greets 45 newcomers

Forty-five (45) newcomers and their families were welcomed by the Ryley Community Association at a pot-luck supper in the Community Hall on November 17th.

About two hundred and fifty people gathered in the hall to extend a welcome to the newcomers who had moved into the community since April of 1975.

George Knudsden acted as master of ceremonies for the evening's program and introduced each of the newcomers and their families.

The pot-luck supper was a joint effort by members of different organizations in the community, although a number of non-members also participated. Chairing the committee arranging the meal was Alice Munkedal.

Newcomers were greeted at the door by Harriet Ruddy and Harold Parsons, assisted by Cindy Rekos and Dale Oslund.

Wolfgang Oeste, accompanying himself on the piano sang two selections while Roger Oslund and Lorne Booth played a trumpet duet, accompanied by Gail Booth on the piano.

The organizing committee for the event consisted of Beulah Oslund, Margaret Booth, Alice Munkedal, Evelyn Lyons, Ona Strilchuk, Greta Phillips, Anna Kongerud, Keith Robson and Jack Davison.

Greetings to the newcomers were extended by the following:

George Knudslen - County Councillor.

George Baker - Village of Ryley.

Bob Crump - Lions Club.

George Knudslen - Ryley Legion.

Anna Kongerud - Ladies Auxiliary

Lucille Knudslen - Rebekah Lodge.

Randy Ness - on behalf of all churches.

Harriet Ruddy - Ryley Library.

Swim-a-thon goes Sunday

by Lena Reil

A big swim-a-thon has been planned for the Ryley Pool on Sunday afternoon.

The money raising project will run for two hours starting at one o'clock with participants being swimmers who have just completed the latest in the series of swim lessons being offered at the pool.

All proceeds raised during the two-hour swim will be used towards the operational costs of the pool.

Anyone interested in taking part, as a swimmer or sponsor, may obtain pledge sheets from Howard Berke.

Christmas card helps get money

by Grace Phillips

The Community Christmas Card will once again give Tofield [illegible] an opportunity to extend Christmas greetings to their local friends and to have the money, saved by this device, used for the benefit of local youth.

Very soon, the Co-op window will have the large Christmas card in its window.

Donations may be left with J.B. Baergen at the Co-op or with Bert Everitt at Everitt's Foodland. As soon as a donation has been received, the donor's name will appear on the large card, extending greetings throughout the Christmas season.

The money received will be used for minor sports and each donor will receive a receipt.

Wesley will head further education

A meeting of the Further Education Council was held on Nov. 1 at the County Building in Ryley.

The meeting was called to order by Chairperson D. Lahs. Following this, approval was given to the minutes of the last meeting, the treasury report, and the correspondence.

Elections were held for a new chairman and vice-chairman for the Council. These resulted in Jim Wesley of Viking being elected in the position of Cahirman and Paulette Erickson of Bruce was elected as vice-chairman.

Local representative positions also came under discussion at this time. Job length and finding replacements were of top priority and several motions were made to set policy in these areas. Local representatives have a two year term of, office with one person changing each year. Finding new council members is to be the responsibility of the Council. Any member leaving the Council must give notice one meeting before the annual meeting. The annual meeting will be the last meeting of the school year; and both new and retiring members should be present.

Reports were heard from the various agencies and representatives. Programs are underway in all centers. The names of some new instructors were given out and some program and advertising problems were discussed. The Co-ordinator reported on setting up a filing system and working four office days. Course forms had been finalized and printed and were ready for distribution.

The Fall conference of the Alberta Association for Continuing Education was discussed and a motion was made that the Co-ordinator attend this conference.

Under old business, the printing and postage costs for the program booklet were discussed. Some people submitted postage expenses.

Under new business, advertising policy was discussed. A major promotion on winter programs will be done right after the first of January. A search of the minutes of meetings is to be completed and a list of all policy and procedure motions is to be compiled.

The Council agreed to give [illegible] approval to Lakeland College courses which meet our guidelines.

Moving in!

Point FOR Trudeau

We were just about to compliment the Trudeau government on its decision, announced a few weeks ago, of emulating the program of Premier Lougheed in trying to decentralize some of the huge concentrations of government in capital centres, when along came a blast over the same program from the Innisfail Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion.

As in Alberta, the program involves moving certain offices, or entire departments, to areas widely dispersed around the Dominion, often to areas which have been affected by dimming economic conditions.

In this light, the first move was to involve a large part of the Department of Veterans Affairs, and allied services. Specifically, they include the Canadian Pension Commission, the War Veteran's Allowance Board, the Bureau of Pension Advocates, Pension Review Board, and from the Department of Veterans' Affairs, Veterans Service, Treatment Services and the administrative programs.

All the above would be moved to Charlottetown, on Prince Edward Island, and would undoubtedly be a major boon to this small island. In fact, it might take over as the Island's leading industry.

The Innisfail Legion, however, notes that nearly 500 present employees of the various departments have indicated they will either retire or seek other employment rather than move to the Island.

Deploring this fact, the Innisfail branch will urge its own members and those of other branches to strongly denounce the government's move.

For the life of us, we can't see why. It seems the members are not thinking intelligently. Especially in smaller centres across this nation, centres such as Innisfail and Camrose, there has been concern over the concentration of government, concentration which requires sons and daughters to leave these smaller communities as the government moves more and more jobs into major centres. At long last, Ottawa is moving in the opposite direction, and offering a chance for the sons and daughters of the provinces, in this case Prince Edward Island, to work for the government, but still remain in their home province.

Why on earth should we oppose such a scheme? It's insulting to the Islanders to suggest that replacements can't be found for those 500, and there's very little chance they'll be unable to find work in other Ottawa departments, if they really want to. After all, when was anybody fired down there?

We can't think of an Alberta government office which has moved to Innisfail, and maybe this is why the Branch there would exhibit this attitude. But when we think of the effect on Camrose of the extra jobs with the Agricultural Development Corporation, in Ponoka with the Alberta Opportunity Corporation, in Stettler with the Livestock Brands Inspection Branch, and in Wetaskiwin with the Dairy Branch, we can't help but feel this is one program initiated by the Trudeau government which should be applauded and supported by us all. As far as we know, no workers lost in the move proved irreplaceable.

The Legion suggests the cost of the move would be high to Canadian taxpayers, but surely nothing could be more expensive than maintaining these offices in Ottawa, where life seems to have lost touch with the realities.

Peter Ward's Ottawa Viewpoint

Canadian comment

OTTAWA — (CP) — Former Defence Minister James Richardson is still under considerable fire for his resignation from the Trudeau cabinet on the bilingual issue. He's being called legal and racist, irresponsible, and stupid.

Tommyrot! Richardson is certainly no racist; nor is he a bigot. There is no question he made things tougher in a delicate French-English situation by opposing the decision in a patriated constitution of further French language rights, but he was accurately reflecting a deep concern in parts of the country. Apparently the Prime Minister's advisers are too much of the "yes man" variety to tell it like it is in the East Block, or Mr. Trudeau has not got the sense to listen.

He'll listen now, if not to his advisers to others who are also well aware of what's going on.

He should also listen to Richardson's complaints about government handling on the economy. There is indeed too much government interference in the private business sector, and it was marvellous to read in the Financial Times that less paper work will be required in future from small business. Richardson also complained about the size of the bureaucracy, another question touched upon when Parliament opened by the government.

The promise is that the civil service will be allowed to grow at no more than one per cent annually in terms of man years. Yet there are a flock of new boards, commissions, and study groups proposed, which make the promise suspect, particularly when it comes from a government not overly respected for keeping its word.

Richardson's other complaints against the Trudeau government have struck a sympathetic chord in many quarters because he couched the two chief reasons for Liberal unpopularity - handling of the bilingualism question and the economy.

Those who should him forget that he has exposed by inference things which he may have known as a member of cabinet, but still cannot say, because of his oath of secrecy.

He quit to answer questions which he was himself to support while still a member of the government, and that's the course of an honest man.

There is no guarantee that the Prime Minister would listen but the rest of the country is on his intentions until they have an accomplished fact. After all, that's the way he has handled things often in the past.

Report from Parliament Hill

Don Mazankowski, M.P. Vegreville has introduced a government Notice of Motion calling for the removal of all federal sales tax from items purchased by municipal governments.

Under current legislation, only a very limited number of items are eligible for the remittance of federal sales tax back to municipal governments. Mr. Mazankowski cited a typical case in point concerning the Town of St. Paul, Alberta The Town purchased a crane for use in installing culverts for road-making and other tasks as well Since the crane was not to be used specifically and solely for road making the current Act required sales tax to be paid. This tax cost St. Paul $4100 of taxpayers money The Vegreville M.P. said that the current federal sales tax law is totally unacceptable. Municipalities should not have to levy additional local taxes in order to fill federal coffers. Often the tax base to obtain additional revenue just isn't there and the community is forced to curtail necessary spending on local improvements. This double taxation represents another example of the lack of consideration which the federal government has shown for local governments.

The citizens of the villages, towns and cities of Canada already pay a large percentage of their incomes to the federal government in the form of income and other taxes. The present situation where local taxes are siphoned off by the federal government as well, says Mr. Mazankowski, is ridiculous, incomprehensible and unjustifiable.

ADDITIONAL QUOTA FOR ALBERTA DAIRYMEN

Marvin Moore, Alberta's minister of agriculture, has announced that Alberta's dairy producers will receive additional allotments of market share quota (M.S.Q.).

The additional quota, recently made available by the Canadian Dairy Commission, will be distributed to producers by the Alberta Dairy Control Board. Alberta's allotment should be sufficient to cover the needs of most quota holders who are presently in difficulty. Producers will receive notification of the new quota by the second week of December. A specific restriction of the new quota is that it cannot be transferred during this dairy year. Subsidy will be paid on all shipments within the new quota.

The categories of individuals who will benefit from the additional quota are those whose current quota is less than their 1974-75 production, new producers who need additional quota and producers whose current production levels are such that they will have insufficient quota to carry them through to the end of the dairy year.

Effective immediately, the Alberta Dairy Control Board will discontinue deducting the over-quota levy on all milk and cream shipments. This will enable existing quota holders who are short or out of M.S.Q. to continue to deliver milk or cream without penalty. This over-quota levy will not be effective again this year unless Alberta's production increases to such an extent that it will exceed the provincial allotment. It should be understood that while over-quota shipments will not be subject to the over-quota levy, they will not be eligible at the present time for federal subsidy. It may become possible, however, for the dairy board to make such shipments eligible for subsidy prior to the end of the dairy year.

Dodds-Round Hill group could fold

. . . warns president

"The Round Hill-Dodds Farmers Protective Association could die from a lack of something to do". That was the warning issued twice at the association's second annual meeting by its president, Fred Gotheridge.

Mr. Gotheridge told members, in his annual report, that they had won the battle to prevent good agricultural land from being used for coal mining and that it would be a long time before another attempt was made to take the land away from the farmers.

"In the meantime" said Mr Gotheridge, "What are we to do? We must have something to occupy ourselves with or we'll just die a natural death from lack of interest".

Later in the meeting, after hearing Provincial Agricultural Minister Marvin Moore predict that it will be at least ten years, if then, before another attempt is made to mine the area, Mr. Gotheridge repeated his warning to association members that the group must keep its executive busy or lack of interest would see it fold.

A suggestion from the floor was that the executive should look into the rapid developments taking place in acreages and country residences which is taking good farm land out of production.

Farmers' Advocate Helmut Entrup, in attendance at Wednesday's meeting, urged the association to make its views on acreage and country residential development known to the Battle River Regional Planning Commission.

Mr. Entrup indicated that a public inquiry into land use would be held early in 1977 and suggested that the association prepare a brief to be presented at one of the hearings.

Another suggestion from the floor was that the association closely monitor the reclamation test strips being tried in the area by Calgary Power.

Mr. Gotheridge told the assembly that the executive would be watching the situation very closely, although he felt the test plots would prove very little "as it is easy to carefully remove the soil from such small areas and then put it back after mining has been completed. On the other hand, it wouldn't be quite so simple on a large area and would be a better test to see if the soil could be removed and replaced without being mixed improperly, with its value being lost".

In his report early in the meeting, Mr. Gotheridge told the gathering that the executive had been very active during the preceding year as they had held sixty meetings in an attempt to keep on top of the situation.

Mr. Gotheridge also brought attention to the fact that the County of Camrose was the only rural area to declare itself on the side of protecting good agricultural land throughout the entire controversy, and he commended the county for its stand.

One of the directors, Bernie Von Tettenborn, gave a quick review of his committee's activities during the past year in presenting briefs and talks with various groups, clubs, schools and civic organizations in an attempt to drum up support for the association's stand in opposition to mining coal in the Round Hill-Dodds area.

Poe Pourri

by Lorraine Poulsen

There are times when things slow down in Poe. Sheriff Matt rests quietly on the front step knowing all is well and locals move slowly in and out of the store accepting a slow, easy routine.

During these slow, lazy times, writing a column can get to be a chore. But, we may have a solution.

Sylvia Moiesko and I have decided that what the area needs to pull its residents (and its writer) through these times is a monster.

When things get quiet in the news world, there's always the old reliable monster stories editors can turn to. Scotland has her Loch Ness; Newfoundland has a supply of ghost stories that would boggle the mind of Hitchcock and the Bermuda Triangle has supplied more newspaper copy than most major events.

Why not a Poe monster?

We've got it figured this way: First, we will cast a huge foot from the jointing cement left over from the drywall taping. Next, we'll gather scraps of material from all Peoples and sew a huge long-fingered glove (our monster need not be beautiful, just convincing) and finally, we'll name the Poe elevator (with the consent of Lyons Farms) as the Monster's Haven.

That completed, we are ready to create the greatest monster-story ever to hit the wires.

When things get too quiet in and around Poe, Sylvia and I will drag the foot cast from the garage (late at night); slap it with whitewash and carefully place tracks from the store to the Poe elevator across the Highway (with any luck, a slow spell will hit Poe in accordance with a snowfall and we can eliminate the whitewash.)

Come morning, if the footprints don't cause enough excitement, we'll move to the second phase of the plan. At that point, we will need the help of a neighbor, Jim McClennan, to place the huge glove near the top of the Poe streetlight. That should clinch the existance of a monster. If not, Sylvia and I will take turns sitting behind the elevator late at night with flashlights and cassettes of recorded screams and laughter.

Think of the advantages.

The monster will bring tourists to the area; the elevator will become known from coast to coast; and last but not least, slow times will be gone from Poe forever.

I only regret that we missed out by not having the foot cast ready for last week's snowfall.

If eggs square, chicken perfect

The chicken is truly a marvelous provider.

It provides drumsticks for our last food franchisee. It provides wishbones for our secret hearts' desires. It provides baby chicks for Easter memories. It provides therapeutic soup for our ills.

There is, indeed, only one thing wrong with the chicken.

It lays oval eggs.

Oval eggs, alas, tend to roll off the table and are hard to stack in the fridge.

In this age of convenience foods, such shortcomings can be disastrous.

If eggs were only flat-sided it might go a long way toward offsetting the so-called cholesterol scare that has hurt the egg business.

Over the centuries, poultrymen have tried valiantly to breed chickens that would lay square eggs. Fortunes have been spent in the quest. But to no avail.

Chickens have steadfastly resisted such genetic improvements. There was no problem with the roosters, but the hens just wouldn't go along.

Now, at last, the egg industry may be on the verge of the breakthrough it has been looking for.

Coming on the market is an egg cuber. When an egg has been boiled and shelled, this new kitchen gadget will compress it into a square block.

It's too early to say for sure but the cubed egg would appear to be an improvement over the oblong egg developed for use in restaurants.

The latter process is more of a mass production in which boiled eggs are disassembled and then conjoined into a cylinder, or egg roll, that makes for uniform slicing.

The problem is that the slices are uniformly round, which means that if they are spread on square slices of sandwich bread, you get an awkward lid.

Cubed egg slices, on the other hand, would be flush with the bread corners.

In fact, cubed eggs may have a potential above and beyond an egg's traditional function.

Stick the requisite number of peppercorns on the various sides of a pair of cubed eggs and you could shoot craps with them.

Now that cubed boiled eggs are a reality, perhaps the industry will go back to the drawing boards for another go at cubing fresh eggs. There is no reason we consumers should be deprived of that convenience merely because the hens won't co-operate.

The Ladies Group met on Nov. 18th at the home of Irene Scott. Several topics were discussed, among them the Christmas meeting. This meeting will be held Thursday, Dec. 16 at 1.00 p.m., at the hall, and will feature a gift exchange and whist, at 8.30 p.m., families are invited to join in a pot-luck supper.

A small but energetic work party made considerable headway on the kitchen renovations when they met last Saturday.

The annual Christmas concert will be held on Sunday, Dec. 19 at 2.00 p.m.

Tofield students take culture trip

On the weekend of October 29-31, Bob Garneau's Social Studies 20 class from Tofield school travelled to the Stoney Wilderness Centre as part of their studies on Indian culture.

The centre, which is located near Morley, approximately forty one miles west of Calgary, is operated by the Stoney Indians on whose reserve the centre is located.

The twelve students spent the two nights in authentic Indian tipis warmed by blazing wood stoves located in the centre of each tipi. The experience was a back-to-nature education of how the original inhabitants of Alberta lived.

The activities of the weekend included telling of Stoney Indian legends, a nature walk to identify edible berries and roots and demonstrations of Indian tracking and trapping methods as well as beadwork. Saturday morning, the students had the opportunity to put up their own tipi. Sunday afternoon was spent horseback riding to the site of Bow Fort, a Hudson's Bay trading post built in the mid 1800's overlooking the Bow River. Other sites visited included a Sun Dance lodge and the location of an Indian conference held last summer which involved over five thousand Indians from every tribe in North America.

The highlight of the trip for most of the group was a two-mile hike through a dried riverbed cut into the side of a mountain, at the end of the winding, boulder-strewn trail were found some etchings on the towering cliff walls, which date back thousands of years, made by ancient Stoney warriors as part of their religious ceremonies.

The students paid for the trip through fund-raising activities including hotdog sales, raffles, football pools, bake sales and a car wash. Parental support was instrumental in their successes. This was the second year for the Social Studies 30 trip to the Stoney Wilderness Centre. Another visit, for the next semester's Social Studies 20 Class, is tentatively planned for June.

COMMENT AT ONE

Christmas generally means a lot of shopping. Shopping can be frustrating. The following article by Marion Williams, District Home Economist at Vermilion, gives some good tips for consumers.

With the growing interest in consumerism most of us are now beginning to realize our responsibilities as consumers as well as our rights as consumers As a responsible consumer we must shop with care, caution and control. Here are a few ideas to help us make a responsible decision:

1) Refuse to buy shoddy merchandise.

2) Don't buy on impulse.

3) Rely on facts. Consult magazines like Canadian Consumer or contact a District Home Economist for information.

4) Don't rely on verbal promises - get it in writing.

5) Read contracts carefully before signing.

6) Read labels carefully.

7) Make a shopping list and stick to it.

But what happens if the product or service is unsatisfactory?

You have the RIGHT to complain. So often we feel that our complaints did not receive the attention they should have. Consider, maybe a complaint cannot be followed up because YOU have NOT remembered enough information.

To make a clear complaint, the consumer should know: the name of the product, store where purchased, with address, date of purchase, manufacturer's name and address, if canned or packaged - the code number, if possible. It helps to have a copy of the sales bill.

The Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs suggests these steps for a more effective complaint:

Step One: If you are angry . . . Cool Down! Nobody listens to a "Mad Man".

Step Two: The first person to complain to, is the person who sold you the product. If the seller doesn't help you

Step Three: Complain to the manufacturer. Write a letter including the information suggested above for a clear complaint.

Step Four: If the manufacturer does not help you . . . Contact: The Department of Consumer Affairs, Box 1616, Edmonton, Alberta.

Mrs. Jim Reddick

The annual meeting of the Senior Citizens Crafts Centre was held on Monday evening with approximately 30 members present.

Memberships were renewed and many topics for discussion arose. A re-wiring job is to be completed in 3 weeks time which includes flourescent lighting in the work shop in the basement, a 220 cable installed for a kiln and a recently purchased stove for the kitchen.

The plumbing is to be completed soon.

A social and games afternoon was planned for old and young alike for December 11th commencing at 1.30 p.m. All who reside in the Lakes districts are invited to attend. Lunch will be served at 5 p.m., and a silver collection will be taken to go towards the centre's upkeep.

A new slate of officers was elected replacing the executive which existed before.

Elected as president was Glenn Ferguson; vice-president, Kathryn Peterson; secretary, Barbara Allen, treasurer, Theresa Rogier, and Frank Dunham, past president, is the fifth executive member.

Retiring officers were Rita Lech as secretary of the Senior Citizens section and Nell Dunn of the Arts and Crafts group. Traute Wilson, as vice-president, also retires from the crafts group.

Paul Lawrence of Strathcona County was guest speaker on activities for Senior Citizens while D. Morrow, councillor for this area also spoke.

Lunch was served to all present. Crafts on display made by the Thursday group in recent weeks were sold.

Gary and Karen Swabey and children and Cheryl and Rod Johnson, all of Calgary, were weekend guests of Gary and Cheryl's parents, Ron and Laurie Swabey.

Recent word received from Mrs. Alma Holmes of Victoria B.C. is that she is fine and there is cold weather there.

Jean and Russell Rowland are proud grandparents of a grandson, born on November 18th. Proud parents are Joan and Rene Taylor of Edmonton.

Margaret Paterson was pleasantly surprised at ceramics class last Wednesday when a birthday cake made by Olivine Sears, was enjoyed by all the ladies. Your correspondent was equally surprised on Thursday when lunch hostess of the Thursday group, Eva Davenport, made a lovely cake complete with candles for her birthday.

Those celebrating wedding anniversaries this past week were Verden and Olivine Sears on November 25th, going out to dinner for the occasion. On the 26th Paul and Bertha Laforetaine celebrated their 27th anniversary by being treated to dinner by their son, Pierre and daughter-in-law, Marianne.

Jim and Olive Love of Hardisty were Saturday guests at the home of Jean and George Kleinschroth.

Margaret and Pat Paterson and Jean Kleinschroth attended the Splitrad bazaar and bingo on Saturday evening.

Winter Games being planned

Plans are being formulated for the County of Beaver's participation in the 1977 North Eastern Alberta Winter Games.

The games will be held in Lac La Biche on February 25, 26 and 27 and will include badminton, cross-country skiing, downhill skiing, volleyball, speedskating, table tennis, broomball, ringette for ladies' and social activities for senior citizens.

Zone playoffs will be held in the different events prior to February 11. More information may be obtained from the Recreation Department.

The Wrong Route

THE SPECTACLE of Quebec dairymen throwing milk powder and eggs at Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan in Ottawa is unlikely to promote public sympathy for farmers caught in the current milk quota squeeze. Nor will Ontario dairymen help their cause by pouring milk over the steps of the provincial legislature in Toronto.

True, the dairy industry is in a mess. Federal and provincial milk control officials deserve much of the blame. Federal authorities were aware of the potential surplus problem a year ago, long before it reached overwhelming proportions. They chose to take no action, hoping, apparently, that the problem would simply go away.

At the provincial level, producers were encouraged to expand and invest almost up to the very end of the last dairy year. Officials knew that quotas were about to be cut but they wanted more production in order to maximize their provincial share of 1976-77 industrial quota.

Dairymen should remember, however, that they themselves elect many of the people who control national and provincial milk policies. They should also recall the reason for this. When, in years gone by, milk and cream production was uncontrolled, producers fought for marketing boards for the very reason that they wanted to regulate the market. In periods of oversupply, they wanted the power to reduce production rather than see prices collapse. Their argument went something like this: "When General Motors can't sell all their cars, they cut production. We want the right to do that, too."

Producers now have that right and they have little choice but to use it. Milk supply is running at levels well in excess of demand. Consumers in Canada won't buy the excess at current prices. Overseas markets don't want it either. When General Motors runs into a surplus, the company doesn't create a riot on Parliament Hill. It cuts production, even though costly facilities must lie idle. Milk producers now find themselves in the same situation.

The dairy industry is currently having an unpleasant lesson in economics which other sectors of agriculture would do well to note. No market for any commodity can be completely stabilized. With difficulty, it is possible to control supply. But demand cannot be manipulated in the same manner. There are too many variables involved. When Mrs. Consumer declines to buy more of a product at a particular price, that's the end of the story.

ATA meets

by Grace Phillips

With president Bob Garneau in the chair, the November meeting of the Tofield sub-local of the Alberta Teachers' Association was held, last Thursday.

John Blades, reporting for the Professional Development Committee, gave notice of the planned PD on February 16, 1977 with speakers, one on "The Basics" and the other on "The Role of the Teacher". The speakers will occupy the morning session while special interest groups will be held in the afternoon.

The annual Christmas party of the sub-local was discussed and some preliminary plans made.

LABOUR

It costs so much . . .

Regardless of any effects on Ministerial careers, the recent uproar concerning Hon. Otto Lang's air travel to Western Canada has pinpointed an important fact. Canada's geography makes this country difficult and expensive to govern.

Mr. Lang is reported to have said that if he had to depend on our commercial airlines, he would never get to Western Canada. Air schedules and connections are such that a busy executive, such as a Minister, just would not be able to adequately serve a Western riding or a Western-based industry.

The same problems face Western Canadian business executives. In order to consult with the government of Canada, the Western executive must spend $324.00 economy class return fare Calgary to Ottawa for each trip. He will travel six or seven hours, and will utilize a good part of an adjacent working day in the process since the early flight from Calgary arrives in Ottawa too late for most business and government offices that day.

Compare this situation with the company vice-president who travels to Ottawa from Montreal or from Toronto. Ignoring the early flight in each case, the executive boards a flight to Montreal at 7.45, or Toronto at 7.40 a.m. In either case, he is in Ottawa by 8.30 a.m. The fare from Montreal is $68.32; from Toronto it is $80.72. He will have no problems doing a full day's work in Ottawa and be home in time for the evening meal. While there, he may invite the Minister to attend the next meeting of some group in his city; an easy trip for the Minister of course.

It is little wonder if Westerners feel isolated, alienated and ignored by Ottawa. It is small wonder if Western representatives are in government offices in Ottawa too seldom. It is no mystery why Albertans who compete with Ontario or Quebec companies think the Eastern lobby is so effective. It is so easy and so cheap for the Eastern lobby to be there.

It is too bad that government cannot move around Canada. A good rotation might be four years in Winnipeg, followed by four years in Halifax, Edmonton, Quebec, Vancouver, Moncton, Ottawa, etc. There is a new appreciation for regional disadvantage in this country. Otto Lang dealt with it in a forthright way. We sympathize with his dilemma.

Tofield seeks resignation of recreation administrator

At its last regular meeting in November, Tofield Town Council decided to pursue a policy of actively seeking the resignation of the administrator of the regional recreation program.

By way of motion, council instructed its representative on the Regional Recreation Board to introduce a motion, at the next Board meeting, asking for the administrator's resignation.

Further, council determined that if the motion was lost, the Tofield representative was to try and arrange a meeting of all co-operating authorities as soon as was possible.

Council met with a delegation from Viking at a special meeting earlier in the month to discuss the purpose of regional recreation agreement.

It was indicated by Viking's representatives, that if the agreement was not adopted, Viking would drop out of regional recreation.

Following Viking's presentation, council decided to contact Municipal Affairs and Provincial Recreation for information and ask that representatives attend council's next meeting, if possible.

Representatives of the School Committee attended a meeting of council suggesting they would like to close the Avenue on the school grounds in Tofield and have all school buses loaded on the east side of 49 Street, facing north, as they would like to fence the entire school area. No action was taken.

Council tabled any appointments to the Rural Development Council No. 4 until its December meeting. As well, council agreed to meet with Alberta Environment to discuss the town's water supply. The meeting will be held in Tofield.

Three readings were given to a by-law which would provide for yield signs to be erected on 48 Street at 53 Avenue and at 52 Avenue.

Council decided to purchase a truck from W.A. Swift at a cost of $7,396. This was the lowest price of two quotations received.

The firm of Reed Shaw Stenhouse indicated that a review should be made on the insurance policy presently in effect on the arena. Council decided to refer the matter to Andy Heiberg for consideration.

Council agreed to allow the Lions Club free use of the Community Hall on December 11th for the annual Santa Claus Day.

Construction of another pit at the nuisance grounds was referred to committee for study.

Information for this story was obtained from unapproved minutes of a meeting held on November 22, a special meeting on November 15th, and a regular meeting held on November 8th.

PTA meets

What could be the most important meeting in the history of the Tofield PTA has been scheduled for Tuesday night.

The life of the group could be on the line as the last meeting did not have enough people in attendance to hold an election of officers. If not enough people attend Tuesday's meeting, there will be a motion presented to disband the organization.

Elimination was planned on the recently passed school policies put into effect by the School Committee.

Tuesday's meeting will be held in the Tofield School Library and will get underway at eight o'clock.

Recreation Board votes for Baker

After a vote by secret ballot, the Regional Recreation Board rejected a motion that would have asked George Baker, administrator of the regional recreation department to resign.

The motion was presented at the Regional Recreation Board's regular meeting on November 24th. The motion was made by a representative from Tofield and seconded by a representative from Viking. The motion was lost 10-8.

A motion was then presented asking for a meeting of all co-operating authorities as soon as possible. This motion was amended to include all councillors, local recreation board members and regional board members, with the amended motion passing. No date was set for such a meeting.

Bob Cross, secretary-treasurer for the County of Beaver attended the meeting to explain the issue of surplus funds from the regional recreation department.

It was decided that the 1977 Playground Workshop be held in Bruce School and the question of who was to take over the school was tabled until the next meeting of the Board, scheduled for December 29th.

It was decided that communications at all recreation levels in the county could be improved if the administrator's and program supervisor's monthly reports were sent to local recreation boards.

There was a verbal report by Viking in regards to the changes in the regional recreation concept and a notice of motion was presented by Viking that it will present a brief suggesting a change in the organization of the regional recreation board and department and that copies of the brief will be forwarded to all local and regional board members [illegible] to all governing authorities.

Proposed changes in rules and regulations was tabled until the next meeting. Revised policies covering registration fees, school use agreements, leadership reimbursements and other matters was adopted by the Board.

Jean Gabelhaus reported that Further Education Programs were operating at full capacity and that a major advertising program would soon be published announcing courses to be offered in the spring.

It was noted that all citizens of the county should attend the annual ratepayers meeting when it is held in January to present their concerns on issues concerning them.

The meeting was chaired by Dennis Cooper with representatives from Tofield, Bruce, Holden, Kinsella, Ryley, Viking, County of Beaver, Further Education Council and Recreation Department staff in attendance.

Information for this story was obtained from the unapproved minutes of the meeting.

$3,500 is raised

In just two hours on Sunday, swimmers raised approximately $3,500 to help pay the operational costs of the Ryley Swimming Pool.

A two-hour swim-a-thon was held on Sunday afternoon with about forty youngsters participating.

Each swimmer was sponsored at so much per length of the pool completed with each age category being limited to a definite time period in the water, so that they could not hurt themselves by trying to do too much.

After it was all over, officials estimated that about $3,200 had been raised, according to the pledge sheets, with the money now to be collected by the swimmers.

Pool Supervisor Beth Cherniawski took The Mercury yesterday (Wednesday) that she was delighted with the response and extended a big "thank you" to the swimmers, sponsors and everyone who helped make the swim-a-thon a success.

Santa visits

Santa Claus will be paying a visit to Tofield on Saturday.

The Jolly Gentleman from the North Pole will be the guest of the Lions Club as he pays his annual call to see if the children of Tofield and surrounding area have been behaving themselves during the past year.

Starting at one o'clock, children will be able to go for a hay ride and then, will return to the Community Hall for a movie "Jack and the Beanstalk".

Then, the big moment, as Santa Claus makes his arrival to visit with the children and pass out treats.

It's seasonal

Years ago, everybody knew that the coming of December heralded the birth of Jesus, and then as time evolved, it came to mean also the coming of Santa Claus. And for many the coming of Santa Claus seemed to overshadow the coming of Jesus.

Then came what many felt was the overcommercialization of Christmas, pushing both Jesus and Santa into a corner. And then there was the flood of Christmas cards.

And then, as everybody knows, came Joe Davidson. And threats of strikes within the large Post Offices. So that the Christmas cards can't go through. And Santa can't get all his presents delivered. And the Christmas spirit rapidly degenerates into a feeling of frustration and hostility. And Jesus, and all he came for, is pushed still further into a corner.

Probably it's not all Davidson's fault. Probably intransigent and heedless bureaucracy is also to blame. But wouldn't it be great if we could get away from the idea that December brings Christmas, brings Santa Claus, brings commercialism, brings Joe Davidson and strikes.

Equality or freedom

THE COLLAPSE of Britain's currency is welcome news to those planning a vacation there this summer. Otherwise, the event seems remote and is of little interest to most Canadians. It contains a lesson, however, for all of us.

In a long continued drive to create the good life for everyone, successive British governments have allowed the country, year after year, to consume more than it produced.

"Equality for everyone; cradle-to-grave security" has been the driving force in British politics for several decades. Joe Citizen's rising standard of living was not accomplished through higher production of goods and services. It was financed by casting in the investments of earlier years; by "living off depreciation", by borrowing from anyone and everyone who was willing to lend and generally by debasing a currency that was once the world's strongest.

The collapsing pound sterling is a signal from the rest of the world that the free ride is over. Britons now face a period in which their living standards will actually decline. Those most affected will inevitably be the people for whom the country's massive social welfare programs were primarily designed.

It could happen in Canada. In fact, it is happening in Canada. The process is gradual and insidious and very difficult to stop. Witness Federal NDP leader Ed Broadbent's recent remarks at a meeting in Saskatoon, Sask. "The task of the NDP," he said, "is to create in Canada a society grounded on fairness and compassion and committed to the spirit and practice of equality."

Who can dispute a statement like that? It's almost like criticizing motherhood. However, it has been said (by someone with far deeper insight into human affairs than Mr. Broadbent) that a country which places equality ahead of freedom ends up with less of both. And, likewise, that a country which places freedom before equality enjoys more of both.

It is therefore upsetting to see so many M.P.'s (Liberal, Tory and NDP) up in arms at the Federal Government's sorely needed tightening of the much-abused unemployment insurance program. It is even more distressing to hear the CBC hail a proposed guaranteed income plan as "a giant breakthrough for the working poor." Worse still is the objective of one provincial premier to redistribute wealth so that the largest personal income in his province is only two and one-half times the smallest.

Far from representing progress, these massive handout schemes are, or should be, a national embarrassment to a country like Canada. It is not enough to justify a social program on the basis of "equality" or need. Any such program can be justified on those grounds

Rather, it should be asked whether it is really necessary, whether it can be afforded and what consequences it might eventually have on the

Canada's rich and productive economy can afford a certain amount of support for those who, temporarily or permanently, are unable to support themselves. It can also offer productive employment to anyone who really wants to work. It cannot afford to foot the bill for people who simply don't wish to pay their own way.

Gigantic giveaways are beloved by politicians with sights set on short-term voter support. They neglect to mention that more government involvement and regulation means less freedom, less encouragement of personal ambition, less scope for the inventive and hard-working and, ultimately, a lower standard of living for everybody. It has happened in Britain and it could easily happen here.

Country Guide

Report from Parliament Hill

Don Mazankowski M.P.

The major news item in recent weeks in Ottawa is the report made by the Auditor General of Canada, Mr. J.J. Macdonell, on the financial management and control within the government.

The massive document was a severe indictment of the way our tax dollars are being spent. The Auditor General called the systems for financial management and control "grossly inadequate". He went on to say that he was "deeply concerned that. . . . Parliament and indeed the government has lost or is close to losing effective control of the public purse". For a man with the experience, expertise and responsibility of the Auditor General to make a statement such as this is absolutely astonishing. Yet, after the Report was published, Mr. Macdonell went out of his way to say that he, his staff and 70 of Canada's top professional accountants on loan to him had carefully gone over and approved every word in the report.

To the non-accountant such as you and I these statements alone do not carry as much impact as they do to a professional. However, in the Report there are many examples of what this loss of control means in terms of waste and extravagance. A few examples of the many brought out will serve to show how bad the situation is. Agent's fees of some $10.5 million were paid to questionable firms to help sell nuclear reactors to Korea and Argentina. In the Argentina case, $2.5 million was paid into a Liechtenstein bank account for an unidentified sales agent who helped negotiate the contract which will lose $25 million. Something is wrong when Canada pays millions of dollars to agents to help sell a nuclear reactor to a politically unstable country and lose a fortune doing it.

Other horror stories include $625,000 paid to purchase and modify a fishing vessel to donate to a South American country which the country refused to accept because modifications made the ship unfit for navigation. Nearly $6 million was paid to acquire an interest in Vancouver waterfront property for which the government has no use. Fraud, default and mistakes of public employees cost the taxpayer $217,131. The Company of Young Canadians, before being disbanded, paid its members $185,585 in completely unauthorized severance payments.

The list goes on but the implications are crystal clear. This administration has lost the capacity to govern. Its attitude towards this whole matter is shown by the government's response to the Auditor General's report. Rather than acting on the recommendations which Mr. Macdonell deems are so necessary to restoring control over spending of funds, Mr. Trudeau has created a Royal Commission to study the matter. This Commission will start from square one and go over the same ground that the Auditor General did in his comprehensive two-year study involving 150,000 professional man-hours.

Opposition M.P.'s, the public and the media have all seen this Royal Commission for what it is, a stall tactic. In fact, the very make-up of the Commission has come into question since one of its four members has already resigned because of possible conflict of interest. This Royal Commission is designed solely for the purpose of sweeping the matter aside until the next election.

We, in our party, are determined to pursue this matter vigorously and thoroughly. We will not allow anything as fundamental as the control of the public purse to be brushed aside.

It is our duty to ensure that public funds are handled as a Trust Fund. The Government has a responsibility to act as the trustee. The Opposition has a duty to ensure that such trust is upheld.

UIC jumps in January

OTTAWA The U.I.C will adjust effective January 3, 1977 the minimum and maximum weekly insurable earnings of Canadians, it was announced today by the Honourable Budd Collen, the Minister of Manpower and Immmigration.

Maximum insurable earnings will be raised from 300 Dollars to 320 Dollars per week or 11,440 per annum. The maximum benefit payable which is 66 and two-thirds per cent of the maximum weekly insurable earnings, will therefore increase from 133 Dollars to 147 Dollars per week.

Minimum insurable earnings will be increased from 60 Dollars to 64 Dollars per week. The minimum benefit payable will be raised from 27 Dollars to 29 Dollars per week.

Mrs. Ellen Eaton

Mrs. Ellen Eaton was among some 30 senior citizens or more who went by bus to Bonnie Doone Shopping Centre in Edmonton on Saturday to spend the day Christmas shopping. Ellen also visited her brother, Johnston Campbell, at the Grandview Auxiliary Hospital where he is a patient, and has been for over two years. Mary Roberge and her son, Brendan and family took her to the hospital so she could have a couple of hours with her brother. Sister Bertha gave her a ride back to Bonnie Doone so she could catch the bus home.

Isabel and Rod Rudzki were Friday evening visitors at the home of Hans and Reseal Jensen.

Sharon Rudzki of Edmonton spent the weekend at the home of her parents, Rod and Isabel Rudzki. Michael Warner was a Sunday guest of their son, David. Also there on Sunday was Isabel's brother, Gordon and Leslee Kyle.

Arnold Nelson left on Nov. 30th to work in the Arctic for the winter months. Deanne and family are staying on the farm to look after everything.

Charlie and Mickey Niemetz were Nov. 30th visitors at the home of their daughter, Patsy and George Niemetz and girls at Ryley.

Mavis and Carl Jacobsen were Wednesday evening visitors at the home of Charlie and Mickey Niemetz.

Mrs. Blanche Goodair of Lloydminster spent from Nov. 18 to Dec. 1st at the homes of her two daughters, Donna Nelson and Gail MacAdam.

Mrs. Loretta Weir, daughter of Howard and Mae Ferguson, accompanied her aunt, Mrs. Marguerite Bailey and her friend, Carol of Edmonton, on a trip by plane to Las Vegas on Friday where they will spend a few days.

Mrs. Mavis Jacobsen spent from Friday to Sunday with her daughter, Clarice and Peter Anderson and little son, Leif, at their home in St. Albert.

Cold weather hit on the weekend with snow and winds starting Saturday evening and continuing until Monday with approximately 4 inches of snow covering the ground and more in the drifts and temperatures dropping.

Accident claims young Bruce girl

Mona Dallas Babbitz, the eldest daughter of Irving and Joan Babbitz of Bruce died on Tuesday evening, October 19, 1976 at Fort MacLeod. Her death was the result of multiple injuries sustained in an automobile accident while on a return trip from Cranbrook, B.C., where she had made arrangements to live and work. She was 19 years, 5 months and 25 days old.

Mona was born April 24, 1957 in Viking. She was received into God's Kingdom of Grace through the Sacrament of Baptism on June 9, 1957, and confirmed her Baptismal covenant on May 30, 1971 at Immanuel Lutheran Church, Bruce.

She received her elementary and high school education at Bruce and Holden, graduating in September 1975. Upon completing her high school, she worked in Edmonton for six months. In September of 1975 she entered the University of Calgary. This past summer she worked with a survey crew. Most recently she had been at home.

Mona had been active in community and church organizations and participated in sports being very enthusiastic in skiing and playing hockey. She very much enjoyed anything to do with the outdoors and nature.

Mona is survived by her parents, Irvin and Joan Babbitz of Bruce, 1 sister, Bonnie and 3 brothers, Dean, Dennis and Grant all of Bruce. Her godparents Evy Hissett and Adam Giebelhaus, many aunts, uncles, cousins and a host of friends. She was predeceased by a brother Brent in 1968, her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Clint Armstrong in 1971, her paternal grandfather, Mr. H. Babbitz in 1972 and her paternal grandmother Mrs. Wanda Babbitz in July 1976.

The funeral service was held at the Bruce School Gymnasium on October 23, 1976 with Pastor H. Heinemann of Vegreville officiating and Mrs. Sonja Heinemann was organist. The pallbearers were: Randy Stefaniyw, Dwayne Erickson, Jerry Oberg, Jim Warren, Ole Shykora and Allen Lukowiecki.

Her mortal remains were laid to rest at the Bruce Cemetery; there to await the trumpet call to the final resurrection.

Funeral arrangements were made by The Chapel of Chimes, Roy and Owen Ltd., Edmonton.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Mona Babbitz wish to thank our relatives, neighbors and friends for the messages of condolences, flowers and memorial donations received during our recent bereavement. We would also like to thank Pastor and Mrs. Heinemann, the ladies for serving lunch after the funeral, the pallbearers and those who looked after the grave.

Your acts of kindness and thoughtfulness will long be remembered.

Sincerely,
Irving, Joan, Dean, Dennis, Bonnie and Grant.

Spilstead Ladies Society held their fall bazaar recently which was a huge success. George Lee was auctioneer and Arnold Bruner was bingo caller. Jeannette Damberger was winner of the quilt and J. Babiuk was winner of the cash solution prize of a pair of pillow cases.

Ernest Belcourt has returned home from an Edmonton hospital after having eye surgery.

The December meeting of Spilstead Ladies Society was held at the home of Alvina Gibson. Decided to donate a sum of money to the Children's Home at Geyser. The Christmas party was discussed. Next meeting to be held at L. Heimbeckner's home in January.

On Friday night, a house warming was held at the home of Louisa Winder in Tofield. It came as a complete surprise for her. Many gifts, plus a purse of money was presented to Mrs. Winder.

CLBI presents Xmas program

"Born a Child and Yet a King" is the theme of the Christmas Program of the Canadian Lutheran Bible Institute, to be held in Messiah Lutheran Church on Sunday evening, December 12th, at 7:30 p.m.

Prepared by the student body under the guidance of the faculty, the program is planned in an original manner. Involved in the program will be the choir, under the direction of Rev. Daniel Bloemquist; a group presenting the musical "Get Ready"; and a drama team under the direction of Mr. Gordon Cavers which will depict the kind of quest and response that people accord the Saviour, in coordination with Clare Watson as narrator. In addition there will be a visual presentation on the significance of the Saviour's birth. Mr. Karl Fuhlin, a senior student at the school, is chairman of the committee, with president Arnold Hagen as advisor.

The program is being presented in Messiah Lutheran Church in order to provide more seating space to accommodate the many people from Camrose and surrounding community who attend the annual Christmas program. The public is invited to attend. There is no admission charge.

GIFTS FROM YOUR KITCHEN

It's getting down to the crunch as far as Christmas shopping is concerned.

There aren't many days left. Perhaps you want it to. Agriculture Canada sent the following suggestions.

Now is the time to create some Christmas treats . . . cookies, squares, candies, fruitcake, and other concoctions; they're quick and easy gifts from your kitchen . . . and they say that you care. All can be made ahead to give away. Heap them in glass mugs, jars and bowls for a double present which can be enjoyed over and over, when the food is long gone. Tie the glass containers with ribbons, colored tissue, or ornaments. Why not include the recipe if you want to share it, or also give a recipe for some new way to use your gift. The clear containers set the presents speak for themselves.

With a festive ribbon, why not tie one of your favorite recipes to a wooden spoon, garlic press, ravioli slicer, grater or other inexpensive gadget that's important to the recipe. For example, place the recipe and fluted cookie cutter with "Mincemeat Treats" as well as a jar of mincemeat in a basket.

MINCEMEAT TREATS
3 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup shortening
2 cups sugar
4 eggs
2 teaspoons water
1 - 14-ounce jar or 2 cups mincemeat.

Sift flour, baking powder, salt and nutmeg. Cream shortening and sugar. Beat in eggs, vanilla and water. Stir in dry ingredients. Shape dough in two balls, wrap in wax paper and refrigerate 1 hour. Roll one half of dough to one-sixteenth inch thick on lightly floured surface. Cut dough in 3 - inch circles. Place 1 tablespoon mincemeat on each. Roll out remaining ball of dough to one-sixteenth inch thick and cut in 3 inch circles. With a 1 - inch round cookie cutter, cut the center out of the circles. Place one cut-out circle on each whole circle and press outside edges together lightly. Place on a greased cookie sheet and bake 12 minutes at 400 F. Makes about 3 dozen.

Good luck as you turn out your holiday goodies from your kitchen. I know the recipients will be pleased with your gift.

ATTENTION EMPLOYERS AND EMPLOYEES

Maternity Leave

Board of Industrial Relations Order No. 71(1976) governing maternity leave becomes effective January 1, 1977.

As of this date, an employer is required to provide an employee, who is pregnant, and who has been employed for a period of at least one year, with maternity leave, without pay, consisting of;

- a period not exceeding twelve weeks immediately preceeding the estimated date of delivery or such shorter period as the employee may request,
- the period, if any, between the estimated date of delivery and the actual date of delivery and,
- a period not exceeding six weeks immediately following the actual date of delivery.

Upon completion of maternity leave the employer shall;

- reinstate the employee in the position she occupied at the time her maternity leave commenced,
- or provide her with alternate work of a comparable nature at not less than the same wages and other benefits accrued on the date the employee commenced maternity leave

Progressive Farming

ALBERTA
AGRICULTURE BOB ESTEY

A qualified soil specialist should always examine the chemical and physical properties of a solonetzic soil before it is deep plowed.

This is one of the conclusions reached by those carrying out the Deep Plowing Feasibility Study, embarked on by Alberta Agriculture's Soils branch in 1973, to test research data under field conditions.

Solonetzic soils, often refered to as blowout or gumbo soils, restrict crop growth because the hardpan they form in them restricts moisture and root penetration. This hardpan layer can be anywhere from two to 12 inches below the soil surface.

The hardpan forms when a high percentage of sodium ions on the clay particles causes the particles to disperse and form a hard, impermeable layer in the soil. Soil scientists have known for years that if most of the sodium on the clay is replaced by calcium a more desirable and permeable soil structure results. This situation can be achieved by adding calcium to the soil as a surface amendment or by bringing calcium salts, such as gypsum or lime, which occur naturally under the hardpan layer of many solonetzic soils, to the surface and mixing them with the hardpan layer through deep plowing.

John Hermana, soils specialist with Alberta Agriculture, reports that sites used in the solonetzic soil study were picked on many different types of solonetzic soils and in different agroclimatic zones so that the possible benefits of deep plowing could be evaluated under the variety of conditions that occur through-out the province.

The plots are located in areas which have the highest percentage of solonetzic soils and extend from Chipman, north-east of Edmonton, through Vegreville, Coronation and Hanna down to the Brooks area. Ten counties, three special areas and one municipal district are involved in the study.

After the plots have been plowed, they are farmed in the same way as the rest of the field so that the effect between, and the economic feasibility of deep plowing, can be evaluated under normal farming conditions. Those carrying out the study have to rely heavily on the farmer on whose land the plot is located and on the agricultural fieldman and district agriculturist involved to provide accurate yield data on the deep plowed area and the rest of the field. Alberta Agriculture personnel also take soil samples so that any chemical or physical changes in the soil, after it has been plowed can be recorded.

Over 120 sites of approximately 10 acres each have been deep plowed in the last three years. Only a few additional sites will be needed for testing new plow designs and to further evaluate specific soil types. "We hope", says Mr. Hermana, "to concentrate our main effort on several of the representative sites to establish baseline information on the soils and to study, in more detail, some of the problems which have been encountered.

An example of some of these problems are areas of poor germination, encountered on many test plots. Mr. Hermana says, "in most cases these area appear to correspond to the areas of poor growth before the plot was deep plowed." The hard to one-inch blocky-shaped soil particles left on the surface after the ground has been deep plowed forms a poor seedbed and does not hold enough moisture for a crop to germinate. Another problem is that the surface material breaks down easily under a light rainfall and forms a heavy crust which prevents additional moisture from penetrating the soil and restricts or retards the emergence of germinating seedlings. "However, if the seed does germinate in these areas, crop growth appears to be much better than before it was deep plowed," Mr. Hermana says.

A new plow has now been developed by Alberta Agriculture's engineering field services branch and the engineering research service of Agriculture Canada in an attempt to minimize some of the germination problems by saving most of the topsoil. Although the plow is still in the experimental stage, results to date are very encouraging. More tests will be carried out in the future.

According to Mr. Hermana, results from many of the sites which have been plowed are also very encouraging, but he stresses that there is still not enough information to determine the long-term effects on the soil and the economic feasibility of deep plowing. "It is known," he says, "that some soils do not lend themselves to deep plowing and that they may even be put out of production for several years if deep plowed." Saline, discharge areas and low, wet spots should never be deep plowed. However, information currently available indicates that between one and 2 million acres of the estimated 13 million acres of solonetzic soils in Alberta (approximately 25 per cent of the arable land in the province) could benefit from deep plowing

1. Racing Toward Judgement! Sequel to the Vision. $1.50
by David Wilkerson
David Wilkerson speaks out on American Death Wish, false prophets, mercenary missionaries, the enemy within, the plague of pornography, vice and violence, cancer in the body politic, the collapse of marriage, family and sexual identity. It's all here - the bad news and, above all, the good news - a shining message of renewal for everyone, everywhere.
2. The Secret Hope $1.50
For years Casandra dreamed of leaving the city and returning to her home town. At last, it was happening. "Crazy Quilt", her boutique, was opening up. Casandra was on her own - and two handsome strangers walked into her life. Moreover - and two handsome strangers walked into her life. Moreover, by was her neighbor, suave and self-made, Royn her landlord and a pillar of the church. Both men wanted Casandra - and she didn't know who to choose!

Horse club holds meet

By Kathy Illsley

The 5th meeting of the Ryley-Holden 4-H Horse Club was held on November 9th in the Holden School.

There were 14 members in attendance at the meeting. There were new nominations for vice-president and treasurer.

Lyle Albrecht was nominated for treasurer and Linda MacKay for vice-president.

The 6th meeting was held on November 23rd in the barn of Grace Albrecht. Kathy Illsley was president for the meeting that day.

The bake sale was a great success with a profit of $60.00.

The lumber sale was also a success with a profit of $19.05 from the coffee and doughnuts sold.

The next meeting will be held in the Holden gym for the Christmas party. This will be held on December 14th from 8:00 to 10:00 p.m. The raffle on the quilt will also take place that night.

Wool production declining

The total Canadian wool clip is down about four per cent from 1974, according to recently-published figures in Agriculture Canada's 1977 Wool Grading Report.

Only three provinces - - Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia - - increased production in 1975 over the previous year. The downward trend in Canadian wool production can be attributed to a decline in sheep numbers because of predators and the production costs involved in wintering sheep.

Poe Pourri

It's here!

The Sheriff is happy about it; the customers all have accepted it and I am still dancing on weather or not I am pleased.

Winter.

It's not something that can be avoided. It's just that I somehow thought maybe this year the snow wouldn't come. But it did.

Poe is no longer shades of brown and yellow. The entire settlement is covered with white stuff, lending a solemn, final setting to everything.

The Sheriff is probably enjoying the snow more than anyone. For him, it makes tracking villians that much more possible. (Not to mention the fact that his free-hours can be spent rolling and playing in the white stuff.)

For Pontiac, the snow is something "that had to come" and they have all accepted it in their stride.

I must agree, I do favor the clean appearance the snow gives Poe but, somehow I do think I could have done without the snow for a few months yet.

True, the Poe Monster will have no trouble attracting tourists and Santa will find landing his sleigh at Poe all that much simpler.

So why am I uncertain about the snowfall?

It is my own fault.

Two months ago husband Bob reminded me to put snow tires on the car, but, on the prediction of many store customers, I chose to believe that winter wasn't really going to come and the car is still sitting on summer tires.

I envy Sheriff Matt his love of the white stuff; wish all children a happy winter and wait hopefully for the arrival of Santa.

That said, I am going to go out in the car and see if I can't talk it into getting me into town before husband Bob finds out why I am not all that excited about snow.

Ministik pioneer passes Saturday

Claude Brunswick Leach of Ministik (R.R. 2, Tofield) passed away on Dec. 4th at the age of 88 years, after a short illness. He was born on Oct. 23rd, 1888.

He came, as a young man with his family, to Edmonton from London, England, in 1908, and married Constance Giles in 1915. They came to farm in Ministik in 1926 and resided on their farm ever since, a period of 50 years during which Mr. Leach was continuously active in community affairs.

The Leaches had celebrated their 61st wedding anniversary last March. Mr. Leach had a strong love of music, and will be remembered among neighbors and friends for his fine singing voice and his musical participation in church and at community events.

He is survived by his wife, Constance; two sons, Chesley and Ralph, both of Ministik; and two grandchildren.

Funeral service was conducted from Hainstock's Funeral Chapel in Edmonton on Wednesday with Rev. G.H. Rodgers of Sherwood Park officiating, and Miss Mary McFarlane assisting.

Interment was in South Cooking Lake Cemetery, with Hainstock and Son Funeral Chapel Ltd. of Edmonton in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Arthur Rowland, Ted Stewart, Lawrence Gill, Glenn Ferguson, Joe Davenport and George Kleinschroth.

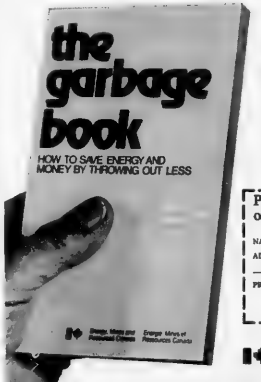
How to cut the high cost of garbage



Each one of us discards an average of 4 pounds of garbage a day — 1,500 pounds a year. That's energy we're throwing away!

By avoiding unnecessary products, and reusing and recycling the rest of them, we can save a tremendous amount of energy for Canada. And money for ourselves.

The Garbage Book shows you how to reduce your garbage. It's new and free. Separate chapters deal with packaging, consumer products, food waste, yard waste, composting and setting up a recycling program in your community.

"Now's the time for a change-to save you some change."

Fred Russell, Northwestern's Superintendent of Customer Service passes along these tips on furnace filters and how you can save money and increase your heating efficiency.

Forced-air heating system filters are designed to trap dust and lint from the air. When they become clogged, the flow of air is restricted, reducing heating efficiency, thus costing you money.

If your furnace filter is of the disposable glass fibre type, it should be cleaned monthly and replaced at least twice a year. Permanent type filters should be cleaned and oiled according to your furnace maintenance guide. If in doubt, check with your furnace contractor, particularly before the onslaught of winter.

Besides checking your filter, be sure your furnace motor and fan bearings are lubricated according to manufacturer's instructions. Registers should be cleaned of dust and other objects. Furniture and rugs should not obstruct hot and cold air registers.

Get all the heat you pay for this winter by paying a little attention to your heating system now.

For more information pick up the free pamphlet "Waste Watcher's Guide To Energy" at your nearby gas company office.

Festival moved to Tofield

The annual Spring Music, Arts and Crafts Festival for the County of Beaver will be held in Tofield.

This decision was made at a recent meeting of the Beaver Regional Arts Committee which was held in Holden with Val Charters in the chair.

The committee decided to use the Community Hall and a specified portion of the Arena for the festival. As well, committee members were told that the Legion Hall could be made available, if needed.

Bill Simon has agreed to act as adjudicator for competitions among choirs, choruses and bands. This information was relayed at the meeting by Faye Holtkovich.

It was decided that businesses should be approached for gift vouchers to give in the winners in the poster contest. The posters are to help promote the festival.

Information for this news story was obtained from the unapproved minutes of the meeting held on november 16.

Former local man sees strife in Middle East

Mr and Mrs. Orvil Bray of Victoria, B.C., formerly of Starling district and of Ryley, recently wrote to The Canadian's Palmer-Earling correspondent with news of their son, Dr. Donald William (Bill) Bray, and his family who spent 14 years in Beirut, and of their recent departure from there made necessary by the war in the Middle East.

Bill attended the University of Alberta, graduating with a B.Sc. degree. He worked for the Dominion Government at Fort Vermilion for three years. His post graduate studies were taken at Oregon State University at Corvallis, Oregon, where he received his Masters and Ph. D. in genetics and plant breeding. He then went to the Middle East where he taught at the University of Beirut for 14 years.

Mrs. Bray reports that Orvil has been house-bound for the past two years, and is 84 years old this month. They enjoy keeping in touch with those they knew in Alberta, largely through the news of The Canadian and The Tofield Mercury.

Mrs. Bray's letter follows.

"From Victoria we greet you and others in Alberta, especially Ryley and Camrose districts. I thought it might be of interest to friends there to hear about the welfare of our son Billie and his family. We read the Canadian each week and we have always sent the Palmer-Earling news to our family in Beirut.

Billie, Dr. Donald W. Bray, has been in Beirut, Lebanon, for the past 14 years, a professor at the American University in Beirut. When fierce fighting was raging in the civil war there, life became very dangerous.

The British Embassy there arranged enough security for a convoy of cars to leave for Damascus, Syria, on June 22nd. Bill and his family joined the convoy and after 11 hours of torturous driving over mountains and back roads arrived in Damascus, Syria. This is ordinarily a three hour drive but to avoid the shooting and sniping on the main highway they had to stay away from the dangerous roads.

There were no hotel rooms available in Damascus so they slept in their car overnight. The next morning Bill's wife, Jean, and their two sons, Robert, 15, and Donald 12, got a plane to Denmark.

Here the Danish people were very helpful in re-arranging their flights via New York to Buffalo, rather than direct to Toronto as had been planned. The re-scheduling was a result of the air traffic controllers strike in Canada just then.

It was from the hotel in Buffalo that we heard Jean Bray's welcome voice. She was being interviewed by a C B C reporter telling how they had left Beirut and were now safe. Jean's brother of Waterloo, Ont., came to meet them and took them to his home.

Bill stayed in Syria for about three weeks working for the "World Bank" from Washington, D.C., doing a survey of forage production potential in Northern Syria at the big new Euphrates River irrigation project.

He was in Washington, D.C., for a week with his Washington colleagues to give his report. He spent a few days with his eldest son, Timothy, who is a mathematics major at the University of Guelph. He then caught up with his wife and the younger boys visiting Jean's relatives in Regina, Sask., before coming on to Victoria, B.C. to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orvil Bray.

Their future in Beirut was uncertain. There seemed to be no end to the fighting there. Bill was discouraged over the uncertain prospects of continuing his work at the American University of Beirut.

The university had 4,500 students last year. However many would not return for this year's classes. This trip home was his home leave for three months. He has now resigned his position at the university.

In August, Bill accepted a position with the Government of Saskatchewan. He will be working with agriculture problems pertaining to science and with an advisory board to the Cabinet. They are now living in Regina.

Mr. and Mrs. Orvil Bray, Bill, Jean, Robert, and Donald Bray, and Allen and Lisa Bray were together in August for a family reunion in Victoria. All were relieved when Bill and his family were safely out of Beirut. To be away from danger, the tensions, fears, and noise of the war was indeed a blessing for them.

During the first part of October Bruce seemed to be a lull in the war in Lebanon, so Bill decided to return to Beirut to wind up his affairs and pack their belongings. He flew to Damascus, then rode with the van which takes oxygen to the hospitals in Beirut. He spent two weeks in Beirut packing to get his personal effects packed and sent by boat from a small port.

He found that many students had not returned. The university will operate for just one year with a very small enrolment. He returned to Damascus where he sold his car which he had left there late in June. Then it was back to Canada to stay.

Artwork for a writer

It was a case of presenting a bit of historical artwork to the historical writer last Wednesday, as J.G. McGregor received a set of three prints of old Camrose scenes. Albert Olson, right, presented them to Dr. McGregor, on behalf of Northwestern Utilities, while Dr. McGregor was at the Camrose Museum autographing his new book, Battle River Country, as it made its first appearance off the presses. The presentation was made in the museum's "County Store" setting.

William T. Holmes, corner of The High River Times of High River, Alta., has been elected president of the Alberta Weekly Newspapers Association for 1976-77. He succeeds Jack Ging of The Leduc Representative. Mr. Holmes has been an active member of AWNA for the past 10 years, having served as convention chairman and membership committee chairman, as well as having charge of many other facets of the AWNA operations. He is a native of High River, and is perhaps best known in CCNA circles as the designer of the CCNA crest.

Locals

There was a good turnout on Friday at the Tofield Gun Club's annual wildgame supper. Along with the usual dishes of moose, deer, grouse, goose, etc., there was an unusual dish, featuring snipe. Entertainment consisted of an interesting wildlife movie as well as musical numbers by Don Tiedemann and David Kleinschroth. Out of town members able to attend were Carol Ann and Reg Adair of Fort McMurray, John Hutchinson of Wainwright and several persons from Edmonton.

Mrs. Bob Lawrence and Andrea of Grande Prairie spent a week with Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Schacher while Bob was in Edmonton on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Laidlaw have returned to their home in Winnipeg after visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Ted Laidlaw and getting acquainted with their new grandson.

A provincial 4-H leaders' conference was held in Edmonton recently with Bev Foss and Betty Lutz attending. Attending the regional 4-H council meeting in St. Paul were Bev Foss, Grace Albrecht and Betty Lutz.

Jim and Renata Lewis were feted by the staff of Tofield School on Monday, at the home of Mr and Mrs. Neil Phillips. On behalf of the teachers, R. Garneau presented the Lewis' with a book about Canada. Jim told the gathering that, although they had enjoyed their year in Canada, they would be glad to be home if Kinmonth.

Mrs. J.A. L. Smith visited her parents last Thursday and attended the A.C.W. meeting at the home of Mrs W.H. Freebury.

Little angel

At this time of year, many concerts are staged by young and old alike as everyone prepares for the birth of Christ. Somehow, little children, such as this girl dressed as an angel, portray much better, the true spirit of Christmas.

Joe Fornal heads Holden Agricultural

The annual meeting of the Holden and District Agricultural Society was held on Nov. 25th in the Holden Complex.

Thirty one people attended the meeting.

Last year's president, Joe Fornal, gave a report on last year's activities, showing the Agricultural Society had a successful year. The majority of the work at the Complex has been completed using funds from a L.I.P. grant. Last years financial statement was presented and discussed.

The election of new officers took place resulting in the following people being elected.

President: Joe Fornal; 1st vice-president, Don Hultholm; and 2nd vice-president, Bill Dery.

Board of Directors are Mary Zeiterschke, Don Gabrysh, Lawrence Hrabec, Marie Keith, John Michlich, Doris Ogrodnick, Bill Ogrodnick, Paul Shiokal, Milt Malick and Adelle Story.

Alfred Sorensen was elected as auditor and Christine Mackay will continue as secretary-treasurer.

Bonanza winners to date have been - April, Jim Tymchuk, Holden.

May, Alne Jensen, Tofield.

June, Connie Anglers, Edmonton.

July, Erling Sand, Camrose.

August, Lawrence Hrabec, Holden.

September, Lyle Andrusky, Holden.

October, Steve Christian, Holden.

November, Story and Malick Children, Holden.

There are four draws left in this series.

Various other money making projects were held during the year along with several cash donations being made.

Anyone still wishing to donate to the Complex may give same to any Board member.

At the first board meeting on Nov. 30, the following committees were set up.

Building Committee: Bill Dery - chairman, Milt Malick and Dan Gabrysh.

Fund Raising and Finance: Bill Ogrodnick - chairman, Doris Ogrodnick, John Michlich and Paul Shiokal.

Membership: Christine Mackay and Bill Ogrodnick.

Reporter: Marie Keith.

Operating Committee: Don Hultholm - Chairman, Milt Malick, Lawrence Hrabec and Christine Mackay.

Fair Committee: Doris Ogrodnick and Mary Zeiterschke.

Bingo Committee: Christine Mackay and June Cooper.

Concession Committee: Adelle Story - Chairman, Marie Keith, Mary Zeiterschke and Doris Ogrodnick.

Catering Committee: Marie Keith - Chairman, Adelle Story, Doris Ogrodnick and Mary Zeiterschke.

Curling Sub-Committee: Bill Dery and Don Hultholm.

Any ladies who are willing to help with concession or catering please phone Adelle Story at 688-2681 for concession and Marie Keith at 688-2191 for catering.

The Agricultural Society, in conjunction with the department of Agriculture, hosted a successful workshop on Dec. 3 and 4th at the Complex. Representatives from Agricultural Societies and Recreation Boards in the County of Beaver were in attendance.

A list of winners at the turkey bingo sponsored by the Agricultural Society in Holden on Dec. 15 will be given in the next report.

Teachers have party

by Grace Phillips

Curtis Hastings, chairman of the social committee of the Tofield sub-local of the A.T.A. was chairman for the annual teachers' Christmas banquet held in the United Church social room on December 10.

Mr. Hastings called on Erwin Wiens to say grace, and later thanked the Ketchamont Unit of the U.C.W. who served the delicious banquet.

At the close of the banquet, R. Garneau, president of the sub-local, presented Larry Watson with a gift on behalf of the sub-local. Mr. and Mrs. Watson and daughter, Erwa, are leaving Tofield for Red Deer very shortly.

Judy and Curt Hastings invited the guests to come to their home to finish the evening.

Next edition last for year

The next issue of The Mercury will be the annual Christmas issue and will also be the last edition of the paper for 1976.

Anyone wishing to have a Christmas greeting ad in next week's issue should have this ad into The Mercury's office by noon on Tuesday of next week.

The same deadline applies to all ads and merchants and correspondents are reminded that The Mercury will not be printed on December 30th.

Following next week's edition of The Mercury, the next printing will be on January 4th with an advertising deadline of noon on Tuesday, January 4th.

Satellites win "Three of four"

The Satellites have played four of their 76-77 League Games.

The opener with Smoky Lake Imperials was Satellites 11, Imperials 3 with Ted Wirsta picking up a hat-trick for the Satellites.

The next game brought Andrew Aces to Tofield with Satellites winning by a score of three to one. Dougie Nachtigal's hat-trick accounted for all of the Satellites' scoring.

The Satellites dropped the third game to the Flyers from Ryley, 5-2.

Game four was a fast-paced contest with the visiting Holden Beavers taking a 13 to 4 drubbing from the Satellites. High flying Ed Doman had six goals in that game.

Satellites have obtained a good crop of local rookies. They are Gary Hilkewich, Ed Doman, Doug Nachtigal, Rick Neufeld, Randy and Rick Jeffrey, Henry Ooman, Wayne Olson and Danny McLeod. Gumper Halverson and John Doman have been sharing the goal-tending chores.

Ticket passes are for sale at the Tofield Sports Shop.

Up-coming games: Dec. 23: Andrew at Tofield; Dec. 28: Tofield at Ardrossan; Dec. 30: Ryley at Tofield.

Can't afford Santa

Santa Claus is an over-weight, over-age, over-priced myth, and Canada can't afford him any more, declares the Rev. Terry Shillington of The Pas, Man., in the current issue of The United Church Observer.

Mr. Shillington's rather unpopular and unorthodox view is that the yearly worship of Santa Claus "baptizes our children into a lifestyle which is proving to be suicidal."

Far more than the incarnation of Christ, he says, the coming of Santa Claus symbolizes the spirit of our culture: spending and getting. In fact, Santa might be called the patron saint of a people unsurpassed in wealth, yet with an incredible hunger for more.

Mr. Shillington's comments are obviously concerned that Santa is pushing Christ out of Christmas, yet we found them highly interesting in view of another letter we received from an American subscriber some time ago, who wrote of a recent Christmas issue of The Camrose Canadian "Your paper was full of Christmas, and you and I know very well that day is meaningless, it is a pagan day, so why don't you use some of your effort in reporting what is worth while reporting?" (The complaint was over what was considered inadequate coverage given an obituary.)

The two comments, which are obviously poles apart in their thinking, remind us that we should never just continue blindly along the same pattern, without occasionally thinking, and rethinking, why we are doing something. Most of us start out with a warm personal belief in Santa, and most of us, though we grow to recognize it as myth, nevertheless wish to retain the spirit of Santa Claus. Religious people tell us that this warmth of spirit can mature and ripen into acceptance of the spirit of Christ. Yet at the other end of the pole is our writer who charges that Christmas is meaningless, that it is pagan.

Possibly all of us should reflect on Mr. Shillington's comment that "This preoccupation with getting things is a lifestyle we can no longer afford. We simply go on producing more, consuming more, and throwing out more garbage. Surely both the times, and the gospel make it imperative to teach our children radically different values."

Terminated

Under the impression that capital punishment, that is, the death penalty, is completely illegal in Canada, a recent announcement from the gaol at Fort Saskatchewan proved rather startling. Coming from the provincial public service commissioner's office, it read "Three Alberta government employees involved in last week's illegal strike at the Fort Saskatchewan gaol have been terminated."

It seemed like a rather drastic punishment, like being liquidated. It's so final, so terminal, so ultimate. And the question arose, how was it done? Especially if hanging isn't legal.

Further reading, of course, revealed that only their employment at the gaol had been terminated. The employees were free to find other work. What the writer meant was that they had been fired, but in today's euphemistic society, one can't use a dreadful word like fired. Instead, we cower behind camouflage words, (many of which debase the Queen's English), such as dis-engage, de-hire, terminate.

And, like the White Queen in Alice in Wonderland, what we actually say is not really what we mean to say. No wonder universities and businesses are complaining about the inability to communicate.

Peter Ward's Ottawa Viewpoint

Canadian comment

OTTAWA — (CP) — They're jumping for joy over at Canadian Forces Headquarters because of the appointment of Toronto's Barnett J. Danson as Minister of National Defence.

Barney Danson was the happiest choice for the top defence job that Prime Minister Trudeau could possibly have made. He's one of the few ministers in the cabinet who would have chosen defence on his own, and he's ginger-keen to tackle the job.

I remember in 1968, when Barney was first running for Parliament, he told me in an interview that his ambition was to become Minister of National Defence. Barney came up through the ranks in World War II to become an officer with the Queen's Own Rifles. He was wounded in 1944, and the back injury still gives him some trouble.

Early days in his new job found Barney swapping military jargon with his senior officers and impressing them with his feel for the military. Out in the field, he's already demonstrated that he knows how to talk to the troops, and they love him.

The first tough nuts Barney faces are decisions about closing Canadian Forces bases. The cost of maintaining bases has escalated faster than inflation, and before his resignation, former minister James Richardson was almost ready to announce base closures. Now Barney Danson has instituted one more review, because he is extremely conscious of the local economic damage which could be done by closing some bases.

He has also begun a rapid study of Canada's Search and Rescue operation, which has come under political fire for being too thin. It's virtually certain that we will be getting an expanded service with more equipment, though it is doubtful that the budget will spare enough funds to silence all the critics.

The big one, though, is the decision which must be made about obtaining a new jet fighter aircraft for Canada. Price tag: something in excess of $2 billion.

The air [illegible] of the Canadian Armed Forces have been paving the way for purchase of a flashy new fighter for nearly two years, marshaling their case with great skill. Former minister Richardson was sold on the program; now the problem faced by the airmen is to sell Danson.

It's highly unlikely that Barney Danson is going to buy an argument which would result in tying up virtually all of the Defence Department's capital spending budget for the next 10 years, and give Canada, in the end, a force which would be badly out of balance.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

For the first nine months of 1976 net payments under the Unemployment Insurance Act amount to $2.6 billion, an increase of 6 per cent over the corresponding period in 1975.

Average payments are $81.30 per week and an average of 534,000 people received benefits. These figures compare with an average weekly payment of $82.04 paid to an average of 707,800 over the past nine months.

NEW TAX EXEMPTIONS, 1977

Personal exemptions and tax brackets will be increased by 8.6 per cent for the 1977 taxation year as a result of the indexing plan for personal income tax.

The basic personal exemption will increase to $2,270. The married exemption will increase to $1,980 and the deduction for the aged and disabled will increase to $1,420. Maximum exemptions for children under age 16 will increase to $630 while for those over 16 a $780 exemption will apply.

BEEF TENDERNESS

It's common knowledge in the beef industry that aging beef in a cooler improves tenderness. But scientists still don't know why this is so, or why there are variations in tenderness between beef [illegible].

Scientists at Agriculture Canada's Lacombe, Research Station are looking for the answer. So far, they have confirmed findings from other research that most of the benefits from the aging process occur within 10 days after slaughter.

How to Select And Install An Automatic Livestock Waterer

Even though there are thousands of kinds of automatic waters, they all work about the same.

A unit consists of a water tank fed by a pressure or gravity water system, a heating element and an insulated housing which supports and insulates the tank. The flow and level of water are controlled by a float-operated valve. The temperature of the electric heating element is regulated by a thermostat set between 40 and 45 degrees.

Selecting An Automatic Waterer

Size: Buy the smallest unit that will provide the needed watering spaces for your livestock. Cattle waterers will handle between 20 and 30 animals per watering space if the animals have access to it all the time. Additional watering space can be provided with tanks or waterers not protected against freezing. The larger the number of cattle drinking out of a waterer the less chance there is of the unit freezing, and the heating element does not need to operate as often.

Heating Element: select a unit that has the heating element immersed in the tank or one that has the heating element attached to the underside of the tank. These types are more efficient and use less electric power than those that warm the space enclosed by the housing.

Be sure that the heating element is moisture resistant. If moisture gets into the heating element, it corrodes the resistance wire. Corrosion of this wire is a common cause of heater failure.

Thermostat: Choose a waterer equipped with a thermostat that has a narrow operating range. A thermostat that has a 5 - degree range between the on and off operating points will use less power than one that has a 10 - degree range.

Insulation: Make sure the waterer you consider is well insulated with fiberglas type insulation or other moisture-resistant material. Insulation on the sides of the waterer reduces the amount of electricity used.

Cover: A cover reduces heat loss and the amount of electricity needed to keep the water from freezing. Keep a cover over any unused drinking spaces. A cover on a big waterer keeps the water clean and saves heat.

Cleaning: Select a waterer that can be cleaned easily - one that is equipped with a drain or a dumping device.

Other: A non-siphoning type is best. With the water inlet above the overflow level of the trough, a health hazard cannot be created by contaminated water being sucked back into the supply lines to the pressure tank in the event the pump or power fails.

HOW TO INSTALL AN AUTOMATIC WATERER

Location: Place the waterer in a protected place out of the wind. Waterers in protected locations - back of a windbreak, under a shed, or in a barn - use less electricity than those in the open. But do not place the waterer in a shed or barn if it will interfere with manure disposal or if it will be in or near a bedded area.

If possible, place the waterer in a fence line where two pens of cattle can be watered from the same unit. Install it 25 ft. or more from feeders to reduce the amount of feed that is dropped into the waterer.

Base: To prevent mudholes, mount the waterer on a concrete pad at least 4 ft. square. This acts as a base for the waterer as well. Reinforce the pad with rods to prevent cracking. A cracked slab will channel all the water toward the waterer rather than away. Don't pour the concrete pad until the excavation has settled. Build the pad with a slope away from the waterer of ½ to 1 in. per ft.

If a pad isn't used, then set the waterer on a solid base built about 6 ins. wider and 4 ins. longer than the waterer. Set this base on top of chimney blocks built up from 3 ft. below the water pipe level. Then mound the area to let water drain away.

Install aluminum foil on the concrete pad inside the waterer cabinet. This reduces heat loss to the cement slab and cuts power costs about 10 per cent.

Water Pipes: Install the connecting water pipes below the frost line. Bring the riser pipe to the surface through an 8-in. clay tile, 4 - in. plastic sewer pipe or the cindercrete chimney blocks. Extend tile, pipe or blocks 3 ft below the frost line.

Warmer air from below the frost line and from inside the waterer will surround the riser pipe and prevent freezing. Do not attempt to insulate inside the air space surrounding the riser pipe. This will keep the warm air from rising. The insulation may also collect moisture and cause the riser pipe to freeze.

Install a stop and waste valve where the water pipe enters the tile if a valve for disconnecting the water supply is not already available.

Wiring: The wiring can en-

Mrs. G.H. Taylor

Mr. and Mrs. Alan Tiedemann of Edmonton visited with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Tiedemann on the weekend of Dec 4th, coming down for their little girl who had spent a few days with her grandparents, also taking in the U.C.W. turkey supper on Sunday evening before leaving for Edmonton.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Tchir returned home Saturday afternoon after spending the week in Edmonton with their son and family.

Members of the Holden Ladies Auxiliary of the Royal Canadian Legion held their annual Christmas supper party at which they entertained husbands and escorts, with a good turn-out of members and guests. A turkey supper with all the trimmings was enjoyed, after which several card games were played with coffee and lunch served at the conclusion, ending an enjoyable evening.

Malvin Hooper is a patient in the General Hospital, Edmonton, going in Sunday morning after an attack of gallstones.

Mrs. Carol Chomick and her mother, Mrs. A.M. Sizer, were visitors Saturday in Camrose. Mrs. Sizer was an overnight visitor with her daughter and family.

The meeting held December 1st of the Bruce Busy Bees was opened by repeating the pledge and everyone answering by saying what they hoped to gain from belonging to 4-H. During the business session, it was decided to hold a bake sale in the Bruce Cafe on December 12th. Anona Lukawiecki then gave a very interesting talk on choosing sewing equipment. They then split into groups for their project work 1st year clothing talked about the project book, how to use sewing equipment and hand and machine sewing. The 1st year food group made marshmallow crunchies and milk shakes which everyone enjoyed for lunch. The next regular meeting was to be held on Wednesday (yesterday) in Bruce school.

Mr. and Mrs. William Chrystian were recent visitors with Linda's father, Chester Lund at Parkland Nursing Home in Viking.

Gordeykos show at Winter Fair

Gordeyko Bros. of Ohaton have returned home after an excellent showing at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto.

Taking eight horses down, the Gordeykos returned home with two second place ribbons, two thirds and two fifth place finishes.

A light draft team and four-horse hitch managed the second place showings while third place ribbons were taken by a heavy draft team and a six-horse hitch.

A heavy draft gelding and a light draft gelding managed to finish in fifth place in halter class competitions.

The Royal Winter Fair ran from November 11-18. Dennis Gordeyko trucked the animals to Toronto, leaving on the first of November while Allan Gordeyko left home in time to help at the Fair itself.

Next showings for the Gordeykos will come at the end of March when they will attend the Brandon Winter Fair.

John 4:39. Come see a man who told me all things that ever I did is not this the Christ?

Beside a lovely country road in Northern Ireland stood a small enclosure that protected a well. The residents for miles around knew of the good drinking water that could be found there. One godly woman seeing an opportunity to witness for her Lord, placed a bunch and a cup beside the well. A sign near by carried the following words: Dear friend whoever you may be or whatever your color or creed; use this seat to rest awhile and have a drink of cool water. it will quench your thirst. And if you would like to hear about the Living Water, just pay a visit to the little cottage with the white picket fence across the way". Many stopped at that welcome place of refreshment, by the side of the road, and as a result they were directed to a faithful believer who told them about Christ and His power to [illegible] their Spiritual thirst.

This story reminds me of the woman at the well in Samaria. After talking with Jesus she went back to her friends and said, "Come see a man who told me all things that ever I did. Is not this the Christ?"

All around us are parched souls trying to find satisfaction in the things of this world. But what they really need is a taste of the refreshing water of Life. As born again believers you and I have the privilege of making the gospel available to them by our faithful testimony for the Lord. We may not be able to think of such an ingenious method of witnessing as was used by that lady in Ireland. But if our hearts have found fulfilment in Christ, we should seek ways to attract others to the Living Water who can fully satisfy their souls.

Are all your days running smoothly? No problems? No rough spots to overcome? They do come into every life! The question is then, where do you go for help?

Day by Day with Billy Graham $2.95
Whenever Billy Graham preaches a sermon or writes a book, he presents a clear uncompromising message of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, the Lord. His words also cover other subjects that affect each one of us as we live from day to day — loneliness, joy, depression, guilt, and victorious Christian living, to name a few.

Alone — by Kattie F. Wiebe $4.95
Katie Wiebe's husband died of a rare disease, only two months after moving to a new community, far from relatives. Katie was thirty-eight, four children to support and her business skills were rusty. She was alone. Here is practical help and encouragement from someone who knows that God cares for the widow and fatherless.

Minimum wage no aid to jobless

By Peter Cook
Financial Times Service

WASHINGTON — If politicians mean what they say about pursuing realistic economic policies and a more enlightened approach to the business of creating jobs, then a sensible start would be to lower the minimum wage.

In both the United States and Canada, any such move would bring howls of outrage from the labor movement, and protests from liberal politicians who maintain that business must be made to pay a fair wage for a fair day's work. In reality, however, this is not what the minimum wage does very often.

What it does is discriminate against the unskilled, driving unemployment rates up and creating a situation in which job-seeking teen-agers are finding out that they are unemployable and must either go on welfare or resort to a career in shoplifting to get by.

If that sounds like a harsh judgment on what seems to be a socially-ameliorative measure, it is not. In the U.S., there are signs that Washington is finally waking up to the inequities that a wage floor creates. In his most recent testimony to Congress, Dr. Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, included the minimum wage question among the structural reforms that are needed if the economy is to create more jobs.

As the law stands, if the XYZ Corp. of New York wants to employ Jones at a wage of $2 an hour and Jones agrees to this salary, they cannot. Jones who, by the law of averages, is probably a black teen-ager (unemployment among this group is running at 36 per cent) must go without a job or find one that pays a minimum of $2.35 an hour. In Canada, newcomers to the job market face an even harder task. In Quebec, they must find an employer who values their services at $2.60 an hour. In British Columbia, an unskilled first-timer in the job market has to earn $3 an hour.

The result is predictable. The economy loses the services of Jones. XYZ Corp denies him a job. No one is better off. If any proof of this cause-and-effect were needed, then Canada where minimum wage rates vary from province to province provides a test-tube example. Unemployment rates have been consistently higher among teen-agers, and highest of all in those provinces — such as Quebec and British Columbia — which insist on the highest minimum wage rates.

The argument for a government-set wage floor is based on the vague notion that no person can survive on less than the going rate. That hides the fact that they may have to go without a job at all. And, if current wage minimums are accepted, it suggests that for some reason known only to the governments in Victoria and Quebec City, it costs more to live in Trois-Rivieres, Que., and Trail, B.C., than it does to live in New York City or Los Angeles.

The other favorite argument is that, if the job market were to operate freely, wages would be bargained down. A firm would replace an employee making $3 an hour with a newcomer prepared to work for $2 an hour. That might happen in a totally-stagnant economy where there were limits on the number of jobs, and the creation of new jobs had slowed to a standstill. But it is unlikely to be the case in the relatively dynamic North American economies. Nor are there many jobs where the unskilled can be as productive as those who have acquired skills.

The existing evidence suggest the minimum wage causes unemployment. In the case of Canada, there are other side-effects. The arbitrary selection of high minimum wage rates sends investment to areas where production costs are lower. It also hampers efforts to improve the country's trade position, encouraging lower cost imports and making whole industries (for example, textiles) uncompetitive.

The basic question is: for a country with mounting unemployment, and a severe balance of payments problem, does it make sense to price young, unskilled workers out of the job market?

A.I. is fast growing

Artificial insemination is a growing business in Canada.

Last year, our semen exports rose by 15 percent and earned $9 million in foreign exchange.

Most semen was exported last year than was used in Canada. There were 1,500,000 vials of canada semen exported and 1,325,000 cows bred by AI domestically.

The United States purchased the bulk of the exported semen - about 1,000,000 vials, while Canadians imported only 90,000 vials of semen from the U.S.

The other main buyers of Canadian semen were Switzerland, Mexico, Australia and Germany. Thirty-four countries imported Canadian semen last year.

Within Canada, more farmers are making use of artificial insemination. The number of cows bred artificially increased by close to 10 percent in 1973.

Alberta showed a larger increase than the national average - artificial insemination use was up by 18 per cent.

In total, 53,000 Alberta dairy cows and 58,000 beef cows were bred artificially last year.

Nationally, about 53 per cent of all dairy cows are bred artificially and about 10 per cent of the beef cows are bred to AI bulls.

The semen sold in Alberta last year through licensed inseminating units was distributed as follows: Holstein-Friesian - 40,000 cows bred; Simmental - 14,500 cows; Chianina - 10,000 cows; Hereford - 6,700 cows; Maine-Anjou - 6,600 cows; Charolais - 5,300 cows; Limousin - 4,400 cows; Aberdeen Angus - 4,000 cows; other breeds - 10,500 cows bred.

The number of Holstein, Simmental, Chianina and Limousin services were up from 1972. Maine-Anjou and Charolais AI sales were about the same and Hereford and Aberdeen Angus services declined.

At the end of December, there were 864 bulls in licensed AI units across the country. This was an increase of 60 bulls from the end of 1972.

The increase was primarily in the number of Holstein-Friesian, Blonde d'Aquitaine and Chianina bulls, while there were fewer bulls in Hereford, Limousin and Shorthorn bulls in AI units.

Tourist group plugs for Dried Meat Hill

The regular monthly meeting of the Battle River Tourist Association was held at Thorsby on Thursday, November 18, 1976. This is the most westerly point that the association has held a meeting in its nine to ten year history. The event was hosted by the Village of Thorsby, and Mayor Sklar was on hand to welcome the visitors.

An early item of business was a report from a committee appointed to investigate the Dried Meat Lake Hill located south east of Camrose. After hearing the detailed report on the investigation, the association decided "support any effort to get the site retained to support any effort to get damage repaired that has already taken place; and to support any effort to provide public access to the site as a viewpoint on a circle tour of the area."

The manager, Mrs. Clemens, was instructed to attempt to obtain another appointment with Hon Bob Dowling in order to have further discussions regarding the establishment of a Travel Alberta Information Centre on the eastern end of Highway 13. Although the Provincial Government claims to accept the responsibility of welcoming visitors to Alberta at border crossings, Dowling's Department has so far refused to do anything along this line on Highway 13.

In other business, a printing firm was selected to produce a new supply (150,000) of place mats, and another printer was chosen to turn out 20,000 Tour Guides. G.H. Wood and Company Limited got the mat job, the place mat job, and Provost News landed the order for the Tour Guide.

It was also decided to again participate in the Edmonton Boat and Trailer Show to be held from March 9 to March 13. B.R.T.A. will share a booth with two other tourist zones in order to keep the cost to a minimum.

It was reported that the supply of hunting brochures is now exhausted, and the brochure committee was instructed to start work on a new edition of this piece of promotion literature.

A scathing letter was received from a Donalda member regarding the manner in which the A.M.A. had erected directional signs in that area last summer. B.R.T.A. is going to take this matter up with the A.M.A.

An Essy Contest, open to all Grade Nine Students attending school anywhere in Battle River Tourist Zone Five was approved. Contestants are required to use the topic "Tourism is Everybody's Business," and write an essay with 200 - 400 words. The "hand written" documentations are to be in B.R.T.A. office by May 15, 1977. The student coming up with the best effort will receive a one-week holiday at the Taylor Guest Ranch, Chauvin, (value $80.00) plus an engraved plaque, plus $80.00 in cash.

Second and third prizes of $50.00 and $30.00 will also be awarded. The school in which the winner attends will also be presented with a plaque to be held for one year.

It was reported that the association already has 70 new members paid up to the end of 1977.

The Homemaker

DEAR DAISY:

Betty Birch, D.H.E. at Stettler sent the following letter to Santa which I'm sure you'll enjoy.

"I am just a little child and every year I get lots of nice toys from you. Mom and Dad and Grandma and my brothers give me tons of stuff too. I really like these things but there's something else I'd like. It might be a little hard for you to give me these things. Could you please ask my Mom and Dad to give me:

— a sense of purpose: the ability to set a goal and work towards it.

— a sense of myself: to assess my own abilities and find the best outlet for them.

— a sense of relative values: the ultimate art of living lies in knowing what you can do without. I'd like the wit and wisdom to pick and choose, the better to enjoy my ultimate selection.

— a sense of involvement: it takes a conscious effort to communicate with and to really get to know those around you.

— a sense of timing: time is the most priceless possession I have. I'd like to know how to use it wisely.

— a sense of responsibility: give me the ability to enjoy the things that happen to me and to enjoy even more the things I make happen.

— a sense of wonder: a child's ability to marvel at the world about him is sometimes lost as he grows older. Don't let me lose mine.

— a sense of beauty: the ability to open myself fully to the effect of the beauty of the world about me, the natural world and the manmade world of arts is something I'd like.

— a sense of fun: without this last gift, the other gifts are demashed a little ... with it, each is reinforced.

I hope it's not asking too much Santa. They wouldn't cost much and Mom and Dad wouldn't have to spend a lot of time shopping around, and I wouldn't want them all at once.

Thank you Santa.

News from Ministik

Mrs. Jim Reddick

A social and games afternoon was held at the Crafts Centre on Saturday. The afternoon got under way with several Christmas carols being sung.

Seven games of bingo were played with winners being Bruno Jenke (3) Mrs. Mary Glacker, Mrs. Jennie Wilson, Edna Ferguson, Truss Vandermeer, while John Vandermeer won the jackpot. Six games of whist followed with Bruno Jenke and John Vandermeer Jr., being first prize winners, Mrs. Mary Glacker and Ella M. George winning seconds, and Violet Nasichuk and Kevin O'Neil as consolation winners.

While these games were going on upstairs, several of the young set enjoyed hockey, pool, and croquinole in the basement workshop. More carols were sung, after which a turkey dinner with all the trimmings was served.

All food, prizes and a door prize were donated. Door prize was won by John Vandermeer Jr. The Centre was gaily decorated for Christmas, with a lighted tree centering the stage. It is hoped another such social will be held soon.

Margaret and Pat Paisreau, Olivine and Verden Sears, and Bill and Vi Reddick attended the annual County workshop Christmas gathering on Saturday evening.

Jean and George Kleinschroth were guests on Saturday evening at the Donald Tiedemann home in Tofield where they enjoyed a social evening followed by a turkey supper.

The annual Christmas Eve carol service will be held as usual on Dec. 24th. All are invited to attend this service at the United Church.

Poe Pourri

It's much like a fever.

With the first solid snow fall, they seem to give up their summer hiding places and invade every back-road, field, and ditch.

At night their single eyes dart in and out, blinking across the fields like a string of Christmas lights.

The name of the game is ski-dooing.

Sue is in left out, husband Bob, with the help of screen-born Poulos, dragged the big black ski-doo out of the garage, filled its stomach with a mixture of gas and oil, jiggled its spark plugs and stood back proudly as the machine snorted, coughed, and finally kicked into a full roar.

And they're off!

Following one another single file across the unbroken fields of snow, the ski-doos obey the every command of their masters. Stopping, starting, cutting class, easy paths through the thick snow.

It seems so easy. The ski-doo seems to know exactly what to do, when to stop, and when to roar on over the next mound of white stuff.

It was fun. I enjoyed sitting back while Bob and the ski-doo worked things out together. And I was almost sorry when it was time to quiet the machine and stop for dinner.

It was between the main courses at view and the chocolate pudding dessert that I suggested to Bob that I could operate the ski-doo by myself.

"I am sure you could, Lorraine, but when you try to drive it, stick close to the house because should something go wrong, that machine is heavy and almost impossible for you to lift."

I had truly had enough ski-dooing for one day but, for some reason, I had an uncontrollable urge to actually drive the machine and by the time the dinner dishes had been put away I had talked Bob into starting the machine again.

It was simple.

And what a feeling of authority! I could tell the machine what to do and when to do it. I was the master!

Bob agreed that I was a "fair" ski-dooer and didn't laugh when I would slow the machine to a crawl to take the corners, nor did he snicker when I would take off with a mighty roar.

The longer I operated the machine, the stronger the urge for mastering the art of driving became and when Bob turned his head, I headed the snowmobile down the ditch and giggled to myself as the machine generated power under my command. Suddenly I could understand why ski-dooing is such a popular sport.

Maybe I was too sure of myself (or the machine was getting tired of my power-trip) or maybe I was just too busy enjoying and not really driving, but when I tried to turn the big machine towards home, I discovered that the ditch was too narrow, the machine too big, and the farmer's fence too close. I somehow stopped before hitting the fence but, Bob was right, the machine was too heavy for me to lift.

There I sat, the machine laughing at me, its lone eye staring directly at the fence. Sheriff Matt got to me first and right behind him, a relieved but not too pleased husband.

Before Bob could start one of his "I told you so . . ." lectures, I tried to explain WHY I had left the safety of the backyard.

I am still not sure what he found so funny my explanation, my snow-covered appearance, or the awkward position of the ski-doo. He was still laughing when we got back to the store and, this morning, when he asked (smartly) if I was going to practise my ski-doo driving, I didn't even answer.

LINES AND WRINKLES

By MARY KAI LUA

Cosmetic science has extracted a skin beauty substance from the bean of a tropical plant that works wonders by making rough, lined face and dry chapped hands look years younger fast. Use it tonight and you should see vast improvement in the morning. Many small lines around the eyes and mouth may already have disappeared and wrinkles you have given up as hopeless should start to vanish in a few days. But that isn't all. That discouraging weather-darkened old-age skin tone fades away. But don't take my word for it . . . use this exciting substance yourself for 7 days . . . satisfaction is guaranteed or return for refund. It's the tropical nut extract that works wonders for wrinkles and lines. It's called Coreema Dry Skin Cream.

ter at the side of the waterer if the waterer is installed next to a building or service pole. Be sure that the waterer is grounded.

If the waterer is not adjacent to an electrical supply, then install the wiring underground.

Place the wiring in a metal conduit if it's in reach of animals. Underground wiring should be buried at least 2 ft. deep - more deeper in bogkds. Leave enough slack in the wire to take care of any settling that may occur and the effects of the ground freezing and thawing. Place creosoted or pentatreated boards over the buried wiring to protect it. If the wire is to be run in the same trench as the water pipe, lay it in the bottom of the trench with the plastic water pipe. Or, fill the water line trench to within 2 ft. of the surface and then install the electric cable at this level.

Use a separate fused circuit for each waterer. Fuse the hot wire only with a 3 or 5 ampere fuse for hog waterers and a 10 or 15 ampere fuse for cattle waterers. A rule-of-thumb is to use a fuse having an ampere rating 1-100 of the wattage of the heating element when used on 115-volt lines.

The size of wiring to use would depend on the size of the waterer and the distance the waterer is away from the service outlet. For example, suppose the waterer is equipped with a 250-watt heating element. This element draws about 2 amps. The maximum distance, if a 14-gauge conductor is used is 300 ft; if a 13-gauge conductor is used, then distance is up to 500 ft. Since waterers have elements of different wattage it is necessary to determine the size of the heating element before you can select the correct conductor.

Proper grounding of the electrical system, the frame of the waterer, and any conducting material near the water - such as wire fences - is necessary to prevent injury to animals. For lighting protection, use wood rather than wire fences near the waters.

The waterer can be grounded in one of two ways: The first is to run a 5-wire conductor from the grounded circuit at the service entrance. Connect the ground wire to the grounding terminal in the terminal box of the waterer. The other way, if only a double wire is used from the power source to the waterer, is to drive an approved ground rod - ½ x 9 ft into the ground. Then run a ground wire (no. 6 copper) from the terminal box of the waterer to the ground rod and clamp the wire into the ground rod with an approved ground clamp.

Riser pipes, providing they come to the surface through clay tiles or chimney blocks, can be equipped with a thermostatically controlled heating tape. These tapes are electric heating elements designed to be wrapped around a water pipe to prevent it from freezing. Use of this tape is not approved when it is installed in contact with soil or where it is exposed to sunlight.

Keep the water temperature no higher than is needed to keep the surface of the water from freezing. This will usually need a thermostat setting between 30 and 45 degrees.

To reduce the cost of electricity, turn the switch to off whenever temperatures are above freezing. This can be done automatically by the thermostat, or it can be done by hand. If you turn the switch off by hand, be sure to turn it back on when the air temperature drops below freezing.

Be sure the thermostat is working properly. Check the temperature of the water in the tank occasionally with a thermometer. Adjust thermostat if you find the water temperature higher than 45 degrees. If the water temperature fluctuates over a wide range, the contact on the thermostat is probably worn and pitted.

Keep the water tank clean. Animals, especially hogs, deposit large amounts of feed in the waterers when drinking. Check the space under the valve once a month. If the valve leaks, check for foreign material under the valve seat.

The part that fails most frequently is the thermostat. Valve seals can also give some trouble. Keep a spare of each of these on hand so a quick repair can be made to prevent lengthy down time.

Ryley lost out in the homecoming games held in Ryley on Saturday at the gym

Many from Ryley and district took in the Christmas Carol Festival held inTofield Community Hall on Sunday evening and report a full house.

Mrs. Clara Nelson is a patient in an Edmonton hospital.

The Camrose Composite School Concert band was enjoyed by many as they wailed the band on CFRN T.V. Saturday at noon.

Shirley Jensen of Edberg visited her parents over the weekend.

Mrs. Inez Reil was the lucky winner at the homecoming games Saturday, of a stereo component.

Mrs Nancy James spent a couple of days with her daughter, Sharon and grandchildren at Devon.

The Ryley Sunshine Club held their bake sale in Crump's Hardware on Saturday.

From the Lisa's Elec.

Mr and Mrs. Charles Magneson, their daughter, Marlene and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Wickstrom and their daughter Sherry were guests of a recent Ryley Lions supper meeting.

Marlene and Sherry, who had been sponsored by the Ryley Lions to the United Nations Seminar at Goldeye Lake in August presented a delightfully informative and witty account of their experiences They spoke of lectures, study and debate, centering around the situation in the Middle East, the widening gap between rich and poor and so on. And of course they swam, hiked and climbed a mountain.

But most of all they seemed to enjoy the challenge of representing a country on the security council debates. Sherry, representing Israel, felt a bit "picked upon" at times. Marlene had to formulate and defend the policies of China.

S W. 25-50-18-W4 to N W. 36-50-18-W4

Moved that the request for a subdivision in the S E. 15-49-15-W4 be approved as the area of 21 acres includes the farm buildings and sloughs and has very little agricultural value.

Moved that the request for subdivision in the S E. 25-49-13-W4 be approved.

Moved that the request for subdivision of the N E. 26-51-20-W4 be approved subject to the condition that it be frozen for any further subdivision.

Moved that approval be granted to subdivide Lot 1, Plan 3041 T.R. into two parcels.

Moved that approval be granted for subdivision in the N W 23-48-12-W4.

Moved that approval be granted to subdivide 14.16 acres from the easterly portion of Lot 8 Plan 2800 R.S

Moved that approval be granted to subdivide Lot B, Plan 4264 T.R. in the N.E. 1-51-20-W4 provided we are paid 10 percent of the value in lieu of a park reserve.

Moved that approval be granted to subdivide the N.W. 9-50-20-W4 provided we are paid 10 percent of the value in lieu of a park reserve.

Moved that the approval of subdivision of the farm site in the S.E. 30-50-18-W4 be granted provided a 66 foot road allowance providing access is included in the subdivision.

Moved that approval be granted for a subdivision in the S½ 6-50-20 W4.

Moved that the request for subdivision in the N.W. 31-48-18-W4 be approved.

Moved that the request for subdivision in the E½ 3-51-20-W4 be approved

Moved that a request for a pipeline extension to the S.W. 3-53-19-W4 by Northwestern Utilities Ltd be approved.

It was reported that the Poundkeeper, Fred Johnston had sold a stray heifer to Robert Cormak for $50.00

Moved that the pound report be received.

The disposition of the old public works repair shop was discussed. Moved that the old shop be turned over to the School Committee for use in the bus operation but that space be provided for the new sprayer unit for winter storage

As a result of the meeting on December 8, regarding the Regional Recreation Board agreement, we were required to appoint two council members in a committee to review the agreement. Moved that Crs Kropielnicki and Brainard be appointed to this committee

The Kinsella Recreation Board requested that County Council set up the recreation boards as required by Section 209 of the Municipal Government Act

It was decided that, as we are the governing authority for the hamlets of Bruce and Kinsella and as these hamlets have recreation boards, they should be established by-law

By-Law No. 42 was presented and given three readings.

Moved that the following Preliminary Agreements be approved

John Rempel - Pt. N.E. 36-50-18-W4, S.E. 4-51-18-W4

John Rempel Estate - N.E. 32-50-18-W4; N.W. 32-50-18-W4.

Boyd Stauffer - N.W. 31-48-18-W4, S.E. 4-51-18-W4; S.W. 5-51-18-W4.

Joseph W. Kauffman - N.E. 31-48-18-W4, S. W. 4-51-18-W4; S.E. 5-51-18-W4.

At a recent meeting with Grant Notley, the matter of taxation on the University Ranch was discussed. County Council feels it is unfair to expect them to support this ranch to the extent we do

Mr. Notley suggested we should get our member of the legislature to put through a private bill that would require the Provincial Government to provide a grant in lieu of taxes Moved that we request Tom Lysons, Member of the Legislature, to present a private bill requiring the Provincial Government to provide a grant in lieu of taxes on the Kinsella University Ranch property

As there was no further business it was Moved that the meeting adjourn

Your correspondent wishes the Mercury staff, fellow correspondents and all readers of the Mercury, far and near a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year and may God's richest blessings be yours in 1977

The Children's annual Christmas party was held at the hall on Friday evening.

Children of the community sang songs, did skits, played musical instruments and performed a square dance, while several Christmas carols were sung by the crowd in attendance. Santa came and gave each child of the community a gift and a candy bag

Horse club has a party

by Kathy Hisey

The Ryley-Bleiden 4-H Horse Club held its Christmas party in Holden on December 14 with a good turnout of members in attendance

The evening started with games in the gymnasium of Holden School and then moved to the rumpus room at the home of Christine MacKay where a sing-song and lunch was enjoyed. A gift exchange also took place

The quilt raffled by the club was won by John Knudsen of Ryley while Cheryl Becker received a prize for selling the most tickets and Eileen Hisey got a prize for selling the winning ticket

The next meeting of the club is scheduled for January 11th. Members are asked to meet at the swimming pool in Ryley at eight o'clock for a swim prior to the start of the meeting

Lunch was served by the ladies.

The annual Ladies Club party was held at the hall on Wednesday afternoon. After a short business session, there was an exchange of gifts. Katie Williams from Fort Nelson, who is visiting in the area, was Mrs Santa Baiuns. Robertson, Shirley Horricks and Stephen were also guests. A lovely supper was served by hostesses, Margaret Paterson, Lil Leech, Barbara Horricks and Mrs. M George

Members of the Thursday Group met at the Crafts centre on Thursday where they enjoyed a social afternoon, followed by an exchange of gifts. Lunch business was Berths Lafontaine, who served the traditional 'Yule Log' and many other dainties associated with Christmas. The group will recess until January 6th

A combined meeting for December and January will be held on January 16th at 8 p.m. at the Crafts Centre. There will be no meeting in December

The annual Christmas Eve Carol service will be held at the United Church on Friday evening, December 24th at 8 p.m. Everyone is invited to attend.

Mrs. Andrew Ferguson had the misfortune to slip and fall in Tofield last Sunday evening and fractured her hip. She is a patient in the Royal Alexandra Hospital and is doing favorably

Carol Paterson also suffered a fall and fractured her ankle. She navigates with the use of crutches

Katie Williams of Fort Nelson is spending some time at the Keith Williams home, also visiting her many friends in the area having lived here until 16 years ago

The first of a series of whist drives will be held on the January 7th with a second one following on January 21st.

Mother Nature has the Christmas spirit this morning by painting the landscape with the first heartfrost of the season.

Plans are finalized for the New Year's Eve Frolic. The Shamrocks are supplying the music. A buffet luncheon will be served Hope the holiday season lifts your spirit with happiness, laughter. Thanks to all the folks we have had the pleasure of serving.

Holden and district news

Mrs. G H. Taylor

Holden Lodge O.O.R.P held their regular meeting on Dec. 14th with H.R.L. Kathleen Hurum in the chair. The minutes of the November meeting were read and the financial report was given. Correspondence was read and dealt with. Reports of the U.G.G banquet, the Chamber of Commerce supper and the social given for senior citizens were given Lady Ann Scherger reported that she and three other members had attended the meeting of Kinsella Lodge, on Nov. 23rd.

The committee to convene the January Chamber of Commerce supper was appointed and it was decided to hold the annual birthday party on Jan. 21st with a committee to plan the arrangements

As it is the custom of the Lodge, a Memorial Service was held in memory of departed sisters. A date was set for a Lodge practice as official inspection will be at the January meeting. At the conclusion of the meeting, lunch of Christmas goodies was enjoyed, lunch hostesses being Ladies Kate Nichols and Kay Chapka.

Mrs. Carrie Olson had an unfortunate fall Thursday night and hurt her ribs. She was taken to Tofield Hospital Friday morning and has two broken ribs and will be in the hospital for a few days.

Ray Hovland of Ryley was a Thursday evening visitor with Mrs. Beth Campbell.

The Friendship Group met for their Christmas meeting on Dec. 16th at the home of Mrs. Beth Campbell, Mrs. Nichols was in charge of devotions. Minutes of the November meeting, at the home of Mrs. Edith Carlson, were read and approved. A letter from Jean Latta from Hong Kong was read advising that our former protege had now left the school and we were given the name of the new protege at the Harvest Seeds Crusade school, a little girl, Yuet Yee, aged four, just beginning school, also enclosing her picture and resume of her family. After singing several carols, the meeting was closed with the Benediction. All members signed Christmas cards to send to former members of the group. The next meeting of the Friendship Group will be held at the home of Mrs. Ethel Brekstad with Mrs Taylor in charge of devotions. The Jan. Pioneer group will meet at the home of Mrs Campbell on Jan. 6, weather permitting. As is the custom of the group, the Dec. collection was sent to the Bible Society. The hostess served lunch and a social hour was enjoyed. Cards were sent to Mrs. Maud Corbin, Mrs. Rosie Kaeder, Mrs. Bertha Stienwand and Mrs. Sina McLennan

Oscar Afseth is home from hospital after having treatment and will be returning to the University Hospital shortly for further treatment.

The ladies of Holden Lutheran Ladies Aid held their Christmas meeting on December 9th. The Bible study was led by Mrs. Irene Olson and worship meditation given by Mrs Kathleen Hurum. A short skit was presented by several ladies. Cards were signed by all to send to former members. Mrs. Laura Christensen and Mrs. Ragnhild Hagarud of Calmore.

The Holden Senior Citizens Group held their regular meeting on Dec. 13th. A short business meeting was held chaired by George Giebelhaus with routine business attended to. Several games of cards were played and lunch enjoyed.

Holden Elks Lodge held a very successful Christmas family party on Dec. 13 with a very good attendance of members and guests. A number of games were played by all during the afternoon and while the adults played card games, the young people dressed up in fancy paper costumes. Santa Claus made his appearance with Christmas goodies and a gift for each child. A pot-luck supper ended the enjoyable afternoon

Bert Appleby returned home last week after spending some time in University Hospital having tests and treatments.

Melvin Hooper also returned from hospital last week after being there for a few days, having tests.

Mr and Mrs Charles Zwierschke left this week for Vancouver, B.C. where they will spend a few days over the Christmas holiday with their daughter, Norma, her husband and young granddaughter

Mr and Mrs Bob Carlson and young son, Jonathon, were visiting over the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs Melvin Carlson and attended the wedding of his sister, Vivian to Lyle Andrusky on Saturday

We wooden miss this opportunity to hope the magic of Christmas touches you all. Thanks to our neighbors.

HURRY! TIME

Can there be a more beautiful sight on Christmas day than the turkey - plump and golden, bursting with goodness? At that point we don't even think of the left overs.

Here are some safety tips from Agriculture Canada for storing the left over turkey.

First thing to do is remove the stuffing immediately after the meal is served and store it separately. It can be refrigerated for two days or frozen up to two months. Wrap it in aluminum foil or containers or freeze in a baking dish until firm; then remove from the baking dish and wrap in freezer wrapping or bags. To serve, heat uncovered for 45 minutes at 160 degree C. (325 degree F).

Then remove the meat from the turkey carcass leaving it in large pieces. Use the bones for making soup or broth. Remove the skin and fat and wrap the meat in aluminum foil or moisture-vapor-resistant wrapping or place in a covered container. Cooked turkey will keep for three to four days in the refrigerator. If you plan to freeze the meat, leave as little air space as possible in the package and make sure that there are no punctures in the wrapping. Seal well all the joints in the wrapping. Package in amounts suitable for recipes. Plain slices or pieces of poultry may be frozen for one month. After this time, the meat becomes dry. If covered with a sauce or broth, the meat maintain good quality when frozen for THREE MONTHS

Thaw large pieces of poultry in their container or wrapping for two hours at room temperature or seven hours in the refrigerator in the former case, use immediately or refrigerate as soon as thawed.

I plan to try this recipe for left over turkey. It sounds delicious.

FUNNY SUPPER

3 cups finely chopped cooked turkey
1 cup soft bread crumbs
½ cup chopped onion
1 teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon poultry seasoning
½ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
2 beaten eggs
¼ cup catsup
2 tablespoons melted fat
6 buttered hamburger buns
1 - 5½ ounce can cranberry sauce

Combine turkey, crumbs, onion, seasonings, eggs and catsup. Shape in 6 patties. Brown in hot fat 5 minutes each side. Serve on hamburger buns with cranberry sauce. 6 servings.

Merry Christmas from Alberta Agriculture.

CP Rail acquires 100 ton crane

CALGARY—CP Rail has taken delivery of a Petitbone 100-ton highway-rail crane - the first of this design in Canada - valued at approximately $300,000.

The crane is based in Calgary and will be used in parts of British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan. It replaces a similar 60 ton crane, which has been transferred to the Vancouver area.

The Hi-Rail crane, which operates both on and off railway track, combines mobility and maximum lifting strength. It can speed to a derailment in a minimum of time and handle even the heaviest locomotive.

A second 100-ton crane is being manufactured for CP Rail to be used in eastern Canada. Delivery is expected in early December.

"This 100-ton crane can get to any point in its area in a matter of hours," says Tom Johnson, master mechanic, CP Rail Calgary

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA — (SP) — Shock waves hit the municipal government of the National Capital Region a few weeks ago when the government announced that the Department of Veterans' Affairs would be moving to Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island. It wasn't the move itself which annoyed civic leaders here, so much as the fact that there had been no warning from the Federal government, and hence it caught municipal planners with their forecasts out of phase.

Decentralization of the Federal government - moving government departments to other areas of the country - is a highly desirable operation. It's healthy for the bureaucracy, healthy for national unity, and only just. Fifty years or more ago there was an excuse for keeping government departments close to Parliament, because of communications problems. Not so very long ago it took more than a week to travel coast to coast in Canada by train. Today you can make the trip in a few hours by air, and it's a breeze to set up conference telephone calls.

Decentralization should take place with a view to areas of the country with high unemployment, and it should be geared as well to fostering national unity. There are, however, dangers.

Opposition leader Joe Clark is on record as favoring the decentralization of government departments, as are the Liberals, so it is something which will come sooner or later, inevitably. Clark made a legitimate complaint, though, when he criticized the government for allowing Veterans' Affairs Minister Dan MacDonald to announce the DVA move in Charlottetown, instead of in the House of Commons.

Clark also pointed out that the Liberal provincial government of Prince Edward Island was facing four by-elections, some of which would be dangerous for Premier Alex Campbell. Clark wanted assurances that announcements of decentralization wouldn't be used for political ammunition. He wanted to make sure that the government has a long-range plan for moving some of its departments out into the provinces.

There are difficulties in making such a long-range plan public, if it does indeed exist, but things like decentralization are far too important to be used as petty political consequences by ploys. Hopefully the government has heard the message.

The Hastings Lake Ladies Group held their Christmas meeting on Dec. 16. A short business meeting was followed by tree decorating, an exchange of gifts and whist. High prize winners were Hilda Simpson and Irene Scott; consolation prizes went to Kathryn Peterson and Bertha Phillips. Several others joined the ladies for a pot luck supper later in the evening.

Area residents enjoyed the Christmas concert on Sunday. All the children received treats and lunch was served by the community ladies.

Meant for last week:

From seven tables at the Nov. 26 whist drive, high scores went to Angela Winder and Louise Kyle; consolation prizes to Cyndie Rabby and Stanley Wanger. At the most recent drive, Louise and Gordon Kyle took the top prizes and Cyndie Rabby and Randy Hicking received the consolation prizes. The next drive will be held on Jan. 14th at 8:30 p.m.

Kent Tiedemann of Ottawa visited with his mother, Mrs. Roberta Bates, and other family members over the weekend.

Kent is with the Data Centre of the Department of Transport.

Renovations at the hall continue to progress and we will soon have a lovely new kitchen.

The annual general meeting will be held on Jan. 17, 1977 at 8:00 p.m., all residents of the Hastings Lake area are urged to attend this very important meeting.

When they saw the star they rejoiced and set forth bearing precious gifts. In the glorious spirit of giving, we offer thanks for the gift of your friendship.

Freight rates clobber secondary industry in West

Calgary, Alberta, December 22, 1976 — Concern was expressed by Mr. Allan Macpherson, former vice-president of Alberta Wheat Pool, when he reported to the Pool delegates gathered in Calgary. He said, "The entire secondary agricultural processing industry is being threatened by recent developments in freight charges for processed products."

Alberta Feed Products, a new company formed two years ago to construct a rapeseed crushing plant at Fort Saskatchewan, suffered a severe setback as a result of changes and proposed changes in the freight charges on rapeseed and rapeseed products Alberta Feed Products has elected to postpone its decision to proceed with the construction of the plant.

Mr. Macpherson said, "Not only is the freight rate issue of importance to secondary processing industry, but it would seem that these developments are being used as such a way that farmer-owned organizations find themselves in a conflict of interest position."

Mr Macpherson warned the Pool delegates that farmers' marketing institutions are currently facing a very serious threat. He said, "The Final Prices Review Board, in one of its final reports, made a number of allegations about marketing boards. Despite the fact that a member of the panel to raise have been effectively discussed, suspicions have new laws planned and all marketing boards are being branded with the name suspicion."

"It is indeed a strange world where, on the one hand, the Federal Government encourages the formation of unions to increase their bargaining power," said Mr. Macpherson, "while at the same time, casting aspersions on food producers when they unite to increase their marketing power."

New supervisor for 4-H, home ec

C.J McAndrew, Alberta Agriculture's assistant deputy minister for development, has announced the appointment of a director for the recently-created home economics and 4-H division. She is Irene Leavitt and her appointment becomes effective January 1, 1977.

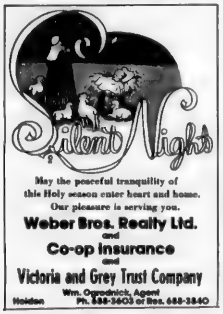
As director of home economics and 4-H, Mrs. Leavitt will supervise the division's 60 professional home economists and 30 4 - H specialists. She will be responsible for programs including farm and home management, family living, home economics and a variety of 4-H programs.

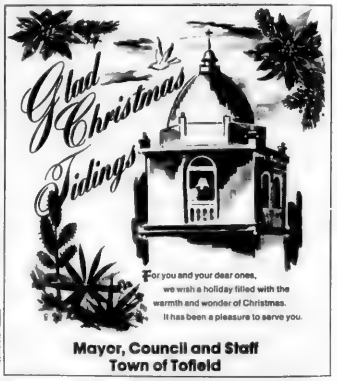
Mrs Leavitt, a native of Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, has a farm background. She was involved in beef and grain 4 - H clubs and was an award winner in the Farm Girls' Camps, which is associated in Saskatchewan with agricultural fairs.

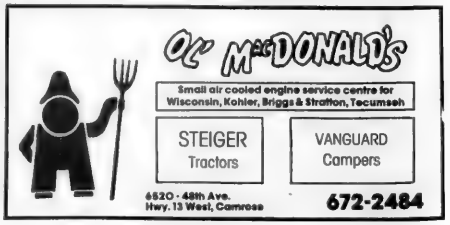
Mrs Leavitt is a B.Sc. (home economics) graduate of the University of Saskatchewan and worked for the university's extension in 4 - H programs both during her university years and after graduation.

She joined Alberta Agriculture in 1967 as district home economist for Claresholm, a position she held for two and a half years. In 1969 she married Ray Leavitt and moved to Calgary where she served as district home economist until 1973. She also acted as the regional program assistant for home economics to Calgary's regional director for a number of years.

Since 1973, Mrs. Leavitt has worked in rural development under the Small Farms Development Program, a joint project between Alberta Agriculture and Agriculture Canada.







Christmas Recipe Suggestions

Why not serve barbecued spareribs with a honey sauce for a post-Christmas dinner party? It will be a welcome change from turkey.

Here are the recipes for the spareribs and the honey sauce.

Spareribs
4 lb. spareribs
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup chopped onion
2 cloves of garlic, crushed
1 cup ketchup
½ cup chili sauce

Cut spareribs into serving size pieces. Put in a large saucepan. Add 1 teaspoon salt and enough boiling water to cover. Cover and simmer 30 minutes.

Combine all remaining ingredients in a saucepan. Bring to a boil, turn down heat and simmer 10 minutes.

Remove spareribs from water and place in a single layer in a shallow roasting pan. Pour honey mixture over. Bake at 400 degrees F for 45 minutes. Serves 6 to 8.

Honey Sauce
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
½ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons steak sauce
1 cup honey

For a fruit salad that is different, try some fruit salad. Green grapes, red apples and mandarin oranges provide good color, but other fruits can be used.

¼ cup honey
½ teaspoon aniseed
½ cup water (or syrup reserved from orange sections)
dash of salt
½ lb. seedless grapes
2 bananas, sliced
2 apples diced
1 can mandarin orange sections (drained)

Combine honey, aniseed, water and salt in saucepan; boil 3 to 4 minutes. Cool. Mix fruits together. Pour syrup over fruit. Serves 6.

If you are planning to make Christmas cookies, why not try honey date nut bars. Cookies, cakes and squares made with honey will stay moist throughout the Christmas season. Here is the honey date nut bar recipe.

2 eggs
1 cup honey
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped dates
1 cup chopped walnuts or pecans
Icing sugar

Beat eggs until light and foamy. Add honey and lemon rind and mix well.

Mix flour, baking powder and salt. Add to creamed mixture. Mix well. Fold in dates and nuts.

Grease a 15-inch by 9-inch by 2-inch baking pan. Line bottom with waxed paper. Grease again. Spread batter in pan and bake at 325 degree F. for 40 minutes.

Remove from pan, remove wax paper. Cool on wire rack. Wrap in foil, seal and allow to ripen in a cool place for several days.

Sprinkle with icing sugar. Cut into strips, 2 inches by one-half inch. Store in an air-tight container. Makes about 9 dozen.

Sesame squares made with honey are ideal for a tasty and nutritious Christmas snack.

2 cups rolled oats
½ cup wheat germ
½ cup finely flaked coconut
2 tablespoons shelled sunflower seeds
2 tablespoons sesame seeds
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon milk
½ cup cooking oil
one-third cup honey

Combine dry ingredients. Add milk, oil and honey, stirring constantly. Spread on an oiled 9-inch by 13-inch pan. Put down well. Bake at 300 degrees F for 30 to 35 minutes. Cool before cutting. Makes 24 squares.

And for those busy days just before Christmas, how about "berry berry breakfast"! Here is the recipe.

½ cup chilled orange juice
1 tablespoon honey
1 egg
1 teaspoon lemon juice

Put all ingredients in blender. Blend well. Serve at once. Serves one.

All the above recipes have been tested and approved at Alberta Agriculture's home economics laboratory in Edmonton.

Premier's Christmas Message

Even though Christmas is again upon us, we have to acknowledge as Canadians that we are living in troubled times. But we should also acknowledge that we have many blessings too, and as we remember them I believe we can enjoy a considerable amount of optimism and spirit.

To me Christmas time is a family time. It's a time for children, a time when families are re-united. A time where people the world over appear to put forth that little extra effort to project harmony, understanding and peace.

The holiday season is also traditionally a season of light and warmth surely we in Alberta are particularly fortunate in this regard.

When we list our blessings as Canadians, let us not forget to count the freedoms we continue to enjoy as compared to many other countries. We can celebrate at our own time, in our own way, no matter what our distant heritage may have been and no matter where in Canada we may choose to live.

As a nation, in an uneasy world, we do have problems. All across Canada we must reassess our thinking of this country to recognize cultural differences and decide what changes can be made to make it a better and stronger nation. We should feel confident that together we can solve the problems, that in this spirit of freedom and goodwill we in Alberta can help our country, and we as Canadians can be a compassionate good neighbour in the world community.

I ask all citizens of Alberta to join with me in thoughtful prayer for past blessings and for future opportunities. May there be joyful peace for all of us, each in our own home, here in this richly blessed land, for now and for all the years to come.

I sincerely welcome this opportunity to extend Season's Greetings to you all, on behalf of the Government of Alberta.

Hoyland obtains issuing authority

Secretary-Treasurer Ray Hoyland has been authorized to issue and grant building permits for residential purposes in the Village of Ryley.

Authority for Mr. Hoyland to issue such permits was granted by the village's council at a meeting early in November.

A request from the Ryley Lions Club to renew the rental agreement on the Community Hall was deferred to the next regular meeting of council.

Three readings were given to a by-law to provide a mutual agreement in the event of a peacetime emergency. Prior to the by-law being passed, a motion was adopted accepting a Pancanine Operations Plan.

It was decided that the village would participate in the facility signing program for rural communities in conjunction with Alberta Transportation.

A special council meeting was held on December 7th to discuss existing and new proposals regarding regional recreation.

The proposals submitted by the Town of Viking were read and all councillors were authorized to attend a meeting on the subject, scheduled for the next day.

Other routine business matters were handled at the November meeting. The regular meeting on December 13th has been held, with minutes not having been received, as yet by the Mercury.

Information for this story was obtained from the unapproved minutes of meeting held on Nov. 8th and Dec. 7th.

by Lorraine Poulsen

When I was a fat puggy child of five, I would often dream of the day the ripe old age of eight would roll around enabling me to be listed as "one of the OLDER children". Eight came and I wished for age 14 to hurry along. That happened. Then came a longing to be 18, graduated and "on my own". As im possible as it seems at 18, graduation happened as did the first city apartment and the much awaited for job away from home.

The wishing for large span age advancement came less and less then, but, although I hated to admit it then (and still do), each year I have the strange longing to be five again.

Christmas

Every year, around the 23rd or 24th of December, I find myself wishing myself back into size 6X blue jean coveralls, struggling for balance against my six-shooter as I would take time from a busy play-schedule to dictate to my mother a letter to the King of the North Pole.

It isn't the simplicity of those early years that makes my mind wander back (actually, brother Tom, then six, proved to be as big a headache as any I would ever meet in later years ! No, life at five wasn't all that easy but believing was via my mother. I had the hottest line to Santa imaginable. Her infinite wisdom in predicting which gift Santa would have on stock and which he wouldn't, was mind-boggling.

Christmas morning, day and evening was like a magical dream at age five. Somehow that white-bearded fat man would manage to creep into the house without disturbing anyone and leave behind an array of gifts, candies and oranges that would have taken the average man hours to prepare and stack neatly beneath the sparkling Christmas tree.

It's true. Today, Christmas for me is still one of the best times of the year I still enjoy the story of the first Christmas and probably appreciate the meaning of Christmas better than I did back then. The multi-colored lights and sparkling tunes still gives me a feeling of real warmth and excitement. Greeting old friends and new through the holiday time is an enjoyment that I truly couldn't do without.

But, somehow, it's not the same. Despite my childhood (and adolescent) dream of "growing up", I have that annual dream of being five again.

From a 37-year old comes the wish for the best Christmas yet and the five-year old in me wishes you all the magic of Christmas that only being a child can bring.

A number of former Holden residents attended the Ardrumky - Carlson wedding on Saturday including Mr and Mrs Joe Chamulke, Mr and Mrs Sam Black, Mrs Jim McLeod, a sister of Melvin Carlson, her daughter Lorna, husband and two granddaughters, all of Edmonton, Mr and Mrs Mike Umryuh of Camrose and George Pan, who is teaching at Halkirk.

Mr and Mrs Albert Schaar and boys of Edmonton were visitors over the weekend with her mother, Mrs Mary Hooper. Myrtle also attended, with her mother, the Ardrumky - Carlson wedding.

Mrs. Agnes Podoborozny of Sherwood Park a sister of Joe Gratsiyszyn, passed away on Thursday, Dec. 16th at the age of 70 years. She is survived by her husband, Steve, two sons, Carl Prunney of Sherwood Park and Elvin Podoborozny of Ryley, one daughter, Mrs Elsie Kubin of Edmonton; eight grandchildren; one great - grandchild; two brothers, John Gratsiyszyn of Willowdale, Ont. and Joe Gratsiyszyn of Holden; and two sisters, Mrs. Josie Kalamara of Cleveland, Ohio and Mrs. Sophie Lundin of Tofield. Prayer service was held Sunday evening and Mass of Christian Burial was held on Monday at Our Lady of Perpetual Help Roman Catholic Church with Rev. A. D. O'Brien being the celebrant and interment was in Glenwood Memorial Gardens.

Mr and Mrs Nick Laskaski and Mrs Campbell went to Viking Hospital on Sunday afternoon to visit with A.L. Gibson who is a patient there. Mr Gibson had a bad knee and also had pneumonia. He was expecting to go up to an Edmonton hospital after the Christmas holiday to have further treatment on his knee. Mrs Olive Good had also been visiting with Lars Rilland at Viska Lodge and drove him over to the hospital to visit with Mr Gibson.

To the editor and staff of The Mercury, I wish a happy and safe Christmas; and to all who read the Holden news, "May the Joy and Peace of Christmas be with you all throughout the year."

Erme and Beth Mertz of Viking were Monday guests with her aunt, Mrs. Campbell.

Harry Olson and Mrs. Campbell went to Tofield Hospital Tuesday afternoon to visit with Mrs Carrie Olson.

A rink from Holden Masonic Lodge played in a recent curling banquet at Irma and were lucky enough to win the trophy, which the Lodge keeps for one year. Those taking part were Bruce Budd, Earl Hardy, Ted Kelly and Cec Stanley. Each received a miniature trophy to keep.

Mrs Campbell entertained, at a family turkey dinner on Wednesday when her daughter and husband, Marjorie and Ken Campbell, grandson Bill and his wife, Pat and baby son of Leduc, Jim Campbell and friend of Toronto visited.

Steve Depuiseu is spending the Christmas holiday with his daughter and family, Mr and Mrs. Gene Bilyk at Westlock.

FOR MANY, DRINKING AND DRIVING IS STILL...

"The Plight Before Christmas"

'Twas the night before Christmas and all through the tavern,
Friends greeted each other with, "What are you havin'?"
When from up at the front there came a loud shout,
"Last call for the drinks, boys, then everyone out!"

Away to their cars the customers stumbled.
And keys into locks were nervously fumbled.
Then turn on the motor and clash all the gears,
And scare the pedestrians out of ten years.

Turning up Main Street I spotted a dame,
I whooled at her but she called me a name.
Left turn at the corner and doing all right,
When what should appear but a cop on his bike

And then in a flash I saw up ahead,
That the signal had turned from amber to red.
I pulled in my head, put my feet on the dash,
Then the street was lit up by a H- of a crash.

With scalpel and scissors and ninety-eight stiches,
They drew me together like father's old britches.
The Doc hardly spoke, just went straight to work.
And then to his nurse, "Get rid of this jerk."

But I didn't get out 'cause the copper was there,
Who carted me off to the jail, without care.
And I heard him exclaim, as he locked me up tight,
"Merry Christmas, you fool. You're through for the night!"

NEW JOBS FROM COMMUNITY PROJECTS. THINK ABOUT IT.

Canada Works
Young Canada Works

Canada Works provides jobs for unemployed people in projects that are useful to communities. Young Canada Works provides jobs for students.

A second program is for students. Young Canada Works will create jobs for more than 20,000 students next summer. The emphasis will be on projects of real community value. It has many of the same features as the year-round program except projects will be limited to 14 weeks during the summer months.

At the same time, Young Canada Works will enable students to gain valuable work experience and test their career aspirations.

Like Canada Works, your Canada Manpower Centre will have application forms in the Young Canada Works Guide to Applicants' ear... so there about what's available for students. Young Canada Works projects must benefit your community.

Need a last minute gift?

A book is always welcomed by the readers on your list. It is a gift that lasts throughout the years, to be read and enjoyed again and again.

1. Adventures in Prayer - now in paperback $1.75
Catherine Marshall shares her personal discoveries about how surprisingly down-to-earth God wants our prayers to be. To bring us closer to Jesus, she offers a practical, intimate prayer at the end of each chapter of insight and experience. Make her inspired approach to prayer your own.

2. There is Hope $1.95
Lucille Gardner's story of her own daughter's astonishing re-entry into a full and useful life, after an accident that left her a near-vegetable, stripped of memory, health and her rightful maturity. She lost her past present and future. The book is an extraordinary testimony to a living faith in the God through whom all things are possible.

From the Scriptures

Christmas speaks to us of both the majesty and humiliation of God. As we begin the day let us be still and remember of the nothing into the world, the love which alone a homeless home for His lonely dwelling, the power of angels and the worship of shepherds conquered folk of the earth.

Let us praise God for the difference that His coming has made to the world, for the joy of Christmas in our own hearts and for the opportunity of showing forth the spirit of Christmas in our relations because of other people. "O Holy Child of Bethlehem, be born in us today."

Mrs. Robinson joins with me in wishing everyone a Merry Christmas and the best for the coming year.

Around the town

Barry Brooks of Toronto was a recent visitor with his mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary Stinson.

Mrs. Ursula Stettner passed away recently in Edmonton. She leaves to mourn, J. A. pre., Edgar and a granddaughter, Mary of Tofield. Memorial services were held on Tuesday at St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

Earlier this month, members of 1st Brownie Pack presented their leaders with Christmas gifts in appreciation of their efforts over the past year. Leaders, Mrs. Darrel Engstrand and Mrs. Heidi Gustaves were given their presents by Tara Lynn Stettner with Jo Ann's Brook while other leaders are Mrs. Judy Hastings, Mrs. Monique Halvorson and Mrs. Barb Ferguson.

Students at the Junior High School were disappointed to learn that the Christmas edition of Scrawlmore Bush could not be printed because of mechanical problems. The editors, Elaine Hoddinott and Lynda Wall are hoping to get it out early in 1977.

James and Preston, sons of Bennett and Arlen Norris of Tofield, spent a few days with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Norris of Okotoks. The senior Norrises were Sunday evening guests here when they brought the boys home and attended the Sunday School Christmas concert at Tofield United Church.

Mrs. Sharon Sandy and Shirley of Edmonton visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Burns last Tuesday.

Wolfgang Schmidt of Ardrossan, AB was the guest speaker at the last meeting of the Tofield Ecological Group.

Mrs. J.A. L. Smith spent Monday at the home of her grandson, Mr. and Mrs. A.W. Robinson.

Ryley holds lead in Beaverhill loop

When Indian Summer stretches into December, it is welcomed by most everyone as ideal weather, with the exception of hockey teams with natural ice

Holden, Andrew and Smoky Lake have this problem, the ice is freezing perfectly until two days before game time, up goes the temperature, away melts the ice

These conditions have already caused two of the Holden Beavers' home games to be played elsewhere and one cancellation as Smoky Lake was iceless also.

Finally, Mother Nature cooperated long enough and Holden Beavers hosted the Ryley Flyers at their first home game on Dec. 23rd. The ice was not perfect, being very heavy, and the accumulation of snow made skating, passing and shooting a problem, but at least the problem affected both teams equally. Ryley fared a little better than Holden, as they won the game 4-2.

The Holden fans were out in full force to cheer their team on, and no one wanted a win more than the Beavers, to give their fans an early Christmas present. Such was not the case

But, two fans did receive a happy surprise. The Christmas raffle held by the Beavers was drawn for during the game, and young Neil Seifrich won the 5 foot Christmas Stocking, and Alex Ogrodnick won the 1921 Rolls Royce model car radio

But the Holden Beavers were not really losers as the executive, with the help of some wonderful cooks, surprised the team with a Christmas party complete with all the trimmings. The evening was enjoyed by all and the talented hockey players got into the Christmas spirit by composing new lyrics to "The Fifteen Days of Christmas."

The Holden Beavers' next game will be held in Holden on Jan. 8th with Smoky Lake as the opposition.

Up to date statistics are expected for publication next week. The last available stats, unofficial) are as follows.

Crump's sponsor contest

A Ryley business firm is involved in a national competition involving plastic model kits.

Crump's Hardware Ltd. is participating in a competition offered by Revell Incorporated, considered to be the world's largest manufacturer of plastic model kits.

Prizes in the competition include a Chevy Custom Van, a Harley-Davidson SXT-125 motorcycle and a Cobra 29 CB radio.

Details of the competition, which runs to May 31, may be obtained by contacting Crump's Hardware or looking at their ad in this issue of The Mercury

Seed cleaning plant shows improvement

A recent inspection report on the County of Beaver Seed Cleaning Co-op Ltd. seed cleaning plant at Holden, indicates a great improvement, both in general conditions in the plant and in the quality of seed cleaning.

Earlier reports had indicated that the quality of cleaning had declined. This trend has now been reversed, and many improvements are expected to be made.

The main reason for the present improvement in cleaning quality, is the firm stand taken by the board of directors. Their present policy for accepting seed for cleaning states that the seed must not be released back to the customer until it qualifies for a seed grading. If the grain is too dirty to be cleaned properly, the plant will refuse to accept it for cleaning.

In addition, a permit has been put up in which the plant will not accept any grain containing tartarian buckwheat. This tartarian free permit will run in February and many farmers are expected to use this period to the best advantage.

The present clean two licenses of the plant will remain in effect on an interim basis, until a new grading can be done, based on the results of the seed cleaning quality over an extended time period.

Holden Legion elects officers

by Mrs G H Taylor

The Holden Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion elected a new executive at a meeting held on December 28th

Joe Komarnisky was elected as the new president, taking over from Irvin Fredericks who remains on the executive as past president

Joe Kawaliliak was elected as vice-president while George H Taylor was voted to the post of secretary-treasurer

Regular business matters were handled prior to the elections and outgoing president, Irvin Fredericks, was given a vote of thanks by the members for his efforts during the past year

The next meeting of the Holden Branch will be at the call of the new president.

Government pensioners

Alberta's retired public servants will receive a three per cent cost-of-living increase in their pensions effective January 1, 1977, Provincial Treasurer Merv Leitch announced today

The cabinet approved the increase in benefits paid under the public service, MLA, Local Authorities and public service management pension acts. A similar increase will be granted to retired teachers of the province

The cost-of-living increase is a continuation of the government's policy of adjusting pension payments to maintain approximate parity with rising living costs

During the recent period of high inflation adjustments have been made every six months, but Mr. Leitch said if the rate of increase in the cost of living continues to decline - as it did in 1976 - the government would probably return to its past practice of making such adjustments once each year.

Pension payments under these acts were last increased on July 1, 1976.

Peter Ward's Ottawa Viewpoint...

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA — (CP) — That was a rousing year we've just been through and no mistake.

Politically the story of the year came in mid-November, when the Parti Quebecois swept to victory over the Liberal government of Robert Bourassa, sending the nation into introspective agonies about the end of Canada.

It was also a bad year for Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and the federal Liberals, who slid to the lowest levels ever for a sitting government in the public opinion polls. We are now in our second year of wage and price controls, with anger against the program very nearly universal outside federal government ranks.

Economics and the way the federal government has treated the bilingual program, were the chief causes of the sorry fortunes of the federal Liberals, but unwise actions and statements from a variety of cabinet ministers contributed in no small way to national disenchantment with Ottawa.

The Conservatives, who started big with the election of Joe Clark as a leader, made astounding gains in public opinion poll popularity, but Joe Clark, too, was in trouble as the year came to a close. Some members of his party were unhappy about the way he was treating the election of a separatist government in Quebec, and in Quebec itself, where tories are seeking to create a solid base of support, there was extreme division in Conservative ranks. Joe Clark's feud with Claude Wagner, the man he defeated for the leadership, became bitter and public, damaging Tory credibility.

There weren't many political bright spots in 1976 — unless you count the victory of the Parti Quebecois as a plus — and the problems presented for the coming year are legion.

Quebec's future places within confederation is the biggest question to be answered. We may or may not get the answer to that one in 1977. There is also a distinct possibility that the federal Liberal party will have a new leader before the year ends, and that could well mean a national election.

This did not look like a very promising year, right from the start, because you could predict many of the dilemmas which would crystalize. Next year has more promise, because it is a year which will require answers, and it should see the settling of many issues which have troubled the nation. Anyway, it can't be much worse than 1976, no matter what.

A capital plan

For years we've watched the broadening support for very nearly every side of education in the province, while expressing concern over what we considered one serious omission. We've watched the introduction and expansion of schools for the deaf, for the handicapped, for the retarded, for the child with learning disabilities, and so on. We've watched the lowering of standards so that pupils with less than matriculation capabilities, or interests, could put in time and still get their diploma. We've watched the expansion of curriculum, until all sorts of trade courses and remedial courses are included, with the hope of keeping pupils in school longer, the premise being that while they are in school, they must at least be learning something, whereas when they leave, most formal education ceases.

We've watched all this with a good deal of interest, and often, though not always, with a good deal of approval.

But nowhere have we found any support for our contention that more should be done for the gifted or exceptionally capable student.

So it was with a good deal of delight this week we learned of just such a program being developed at Queen Elizabeth High School in Edmonton. And guess who is behind the concentration being poured on the superior student? None other than the other students in the school. They have recognized the problems faced by the gifted, or superior student, as they try to endure classes geared for the lowest ability. They have recognized the superior student gets bored, loses interest, and may even miss the course... because he hasn't been challenged.

They've set about to provide funds for extra equipment, extra facilities, extra working materials, to keep these students interested and involved, and see how far it will take them.

Only the other day we were talking with a Canadian medical couple who have some limited experience with schools in the united States, and whose clearest impression is of the encouragement heaped on any student who achieves in some field in the classroom. The student is encouraged to keep it up, and others are encouraged to emulate him. Part of the message which comes through from the teacher (and one which we may not like,) is the feeling that these American students are in competition, not only with the best the U.S.A. has to offer, but also with the best the U.S.S.R. has to offer.

We may not like it, but we'd be fools if we didn't recognize its truth. For far too long we've been ostrichen sticking our heads in the sands, in the belief that the bright student has all the mental equipment he or she needs to keep going, so there's nothing to be gained by "wasting" more funds on him or her, when there are so many other places to put the money. When the reality is that the future of our way of life may depend on him or her.

If we can't learn the lesson from schools such as those in the United States (and we can be forgiven for eyeing askance many an educational idea from there) we will be ill-placed be willing to hear the message coming from our own students, such as those from Queen Elizabeth, who are willing to work hard to develop funds for other pupils in their own school. This is something we haven't seen before in this country.

Why Mars is worth a billion

For the price of the Montreal Olympics - $1 billion - the United States has safely landed Viking 1 on the planet Mars. It could be considered quite a bargain, writes Robert Sarkin. The Mars landing is a huge moment in science; it has epic overtones. Yet, is space exploration worth it?

"It has been conservatively estimated that for every space dollar spent, seven dollars are received in return," says Nick Panagakos, of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. He lists some of the innovations that have resulted from Viking 1: new techniques in welding; improved camera technology, even a new type of paint that has a 20-25 year life expectancy under harsh environmental conditions. (Home painters don't like it, Panagakos says, because it means less work for them.) At its peak, during the moon-fever days, NASA had an annual budget of $7 billion. By 1977, that amount had dropped to $3.3 billion. This year, NASA is getting about $6 billion. But put into another perspective, the NASA budget doesn't seem so extravagant: the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare spends the equivalent to NASA's budget every five days. "It is an outpouring with nothing coming in," Panagakos says.

Premier Lougheed's New Year's Message

The year 1977 will offer challenges for us all.

The challenge is to continue to provide the citizens of Alberta with the highest level of government services - while exercising spending restraint.

The challenge to maintain our current economic strength while at the same time working towards creating a more balanced economic base in Alberta.

There is no doubt in my mind that the Alberta economy is the strongest in Canada, and it is moving ahead. But there are limitations on what Government can do.

During 1977 I hope that more of our citizens will realize that they have got to do more things for themselves, look less towards government. There are certain matters that really are the individual responsibility of the citizens and the communities in which they live.

I believe 1977 will be a good year for Alberta in economic terms but, as I know you've seen, our current prosperity is too precarious.

Our economy, our current prosperity and our job security is vulnerable because it is tied too much to depleting energy resources. We must move towards a more balanced economic base in Alberta in order to maintain our economic strength.

A good deal of effort on the part of all of us will be required to diversify Alberta's economy, but with the talent and initiative of the citizens of Alberta we can create a stronger diversified Alberta economy that will be certain to the benefit of all Canada.

It's not going to be easy - it's going to challenge all of us. We all must control our impulses to spend and to encourage spending restraint without jeopardizing our ability to provide of government services to the citizens.

As far as Canada is concerned, it could be a very crucial year. I sincerely believe that Canada will be stronger if the West is stronger, but I'm also committed, as I know you are, to making sure that our country pulls together. It will require, on the part of all of us, wisdom, judgment, patience and tolerance.

We are a province with an exciting future. My colleagues and I look forward to working with you in 1977.

On behalf of the Government of Alberta, I would like to wish you all a happy and prosperous New Year

Land buyers check list

According to information received by Alberta Agriculture the Edmonton Better Business Bureau is suggesting to people planning to put money down on property or subdivided land that they check the points listed below. If they are planning to live there. Better still see the land and ask the questions.

Thousands of acres of land are offered each year as retirement or recreation property. Whether you see it in newspapers, magazine ad, evening and over the radio, hundreds of developers promoters and speculators Prospective purchasers are enticed to invest sight unseen on the easy payment plan for parcels of land ranging in size from a quarter of an acre to several acres

The Better Business Bureau says some of the land is being properly developed with adequate safeguards for purchasers. But some of it is purely promotional or speculative in nature located in remote inaccessible areas of 10 X desert or swamp land.

Some of it is located in rocky areas of Canada

Forestburg Viking men receive Bursaries

Donald Wayne Lusty of Forestburg and Leonard Mitchell Krynzanowski of Viking are two of 39 winners of scholarships awarded in December by the Canadian Wheat Board. The scholarships were set up to encourage more young people to enter the field of grain research. This is the first year of the program launched by the Wheat Board.

Six of the scholarships were offered to graduate students, and 26 to undergraduates, although one of the 26 was declined for personal reasons. The program was set up to offset the number of people retiring from the field of grain research, a matter which has been of mounting concern to grain research institutions across the country.

Recommended by the Wheat Board's advisory Committee, the program will be funded by $200,000 annually from the Wheat Board's special account, which contains unclaimed producer cheques and extra interest earnings.

Both Mr. Lusty and Mr. Kryzanowski are fourth year students at the University of Alberta, in Edmonton, and each will receive $1,500. (Third year students gain $2,000).

Winners from each of the Prairie Provinces were selected on the basis of proposals submitted by a Dean of Agriculture committee at each of the three Prairie universities. Final selections were made according to the academic qualifications of the students involved.

Sikstrom - Stritchuk

The wedding of Teri, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Strichuk of Round Hill, to Brian, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Sikstrom, took place on October 9th at Camrose United Church with Rev. Harvey officiating. The newlyweds are residing in Camrose.

Biggest for him

Fishing through the ice on Dried Meat Lake on Dec. 18, Clarence Ibrand hooked the biggest fish he had ever landed, and when he scaled it at Mert Stores, it weighed in at 9 pounds, five ounces, 35 inches from tip to tail. Mr. Ibrand had a bit of trouble pulling it through the ice, since he had only cut about a six inch hole in the ice. He figures the double barbed hook must have caught in the side of its mouth, the way it reeled in, and also because the powerful jaws could easily have snagged the light line he was using if it had hooked in the centre of its mouth. Alone at the time, he had no one to witness his thrilling catch

Mazankowski on TV

MP for Vegreville Constituency, and representing many of our readers, Don Mazankowski, was the speaker over the CBC T.V. network on Sunday, Dec 5, in the well known program, The Nation's Business.

Unfortunately, no information was available ahead of time for this newspaper, and we were unable to advise our readers, so they could plan ahead to watch.

However, we are happy to carry the text of his remarks, on a very timely subject.

Good evening -

Many times on this program you have listened to politicians talking to you about important issues of the day. Issues which are of vital concern to Canada.

Tonight - - I want to discuss an issue which is fundamental to how our government operates. Fundamental to each Canadian who pays an ever increasing percentage of taxes to the federal government.

I want to talk about one of the most thorough and searching condemnations ever made of our government.

The Auditor General's report.

The Auditor General is, in effect, the independent accountant of Canada's largest business. A business in which each and every Canadian has a direct financial and personal investment.

We are all shareholders in this business.

I believe we have a right and a responsibility to be concerned about how the government manages our affairs and spends our money.

What the Auditor General is telling all Canadians is that the federal government has adopted management practices that are weak, ineffective and grossly inadequate.

He mentions examples of waste, extravagance, inadequate invoicing and a lack of spending safeguards that would not be tolerated by any other business in Canada.

To quote his own words - -

"Parliament and, indeed, the Government - - has lost or is close to losing effective control of the public purse."

What is the Government's attitude, the directors of our company, towards this independent and authoritative report that bluntly states they are pursuing the worst possible management practices?

Quite frankly, I find their attitude unbelievable.

Instead of acting on a report that took two years to complete - - a report that combined the expertise of the Office of the Auditor General with bi of the country's top professional accounting executives - - the Government has called for the establishment of a Royal Commission on Government Financial Organization.

It is like establishing a Royal Commission to investigate a Royal Commission.

It may be a clever political trick - - it certainly avoids the government's accountability to you. It allows time to obscure the direct criticism contained in the Auditor General's Report. But - - most of all - - it will delay necessary corrective action.

To unravel this mess -

To put our house in order -

We must - - as a start - - accept the recommendations of the Auditor General of Canada.

Government spending can be controlled.

We, in our party, believe there are positive alternatives. We believe the Government should act now in appointing a Chief Financial Officer of Canada, a Comptroller General. His main role would be to restore effective control over the spending and managing of public funds. And, in order for him to fulfil that role effectively - - there must be a change in government attitude.

While Government preaches restraint for the people of Canada, and talks about tough economic times, its words do not match its deeds. For example, in Treasury Board, the department responsible for managing your tax dollars, there are only some 30 people assigned to ensure that your funds are properly controlled and accounted for. Surely an insufficient number for a $42 billion business.

(I mentioned earlier that government is really a company which we are all shareholders. I am sure if your auditor was as critical of your company as the Auditor General is of your government - -

You would be looking for a new chief executive officer.

Mrs. Jim Braddick

Christmas has come and gone with it's many families getting together for the festivities. We now go forward into 1977 with high hopes of it being a most happy and rewarding year for all!

Among those who had family get togethers were Mr. and Mrs. Alex Pearice joining other members of their family at the Norman Pearices in Ardrossan.

Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Loch were hosts to their youngest son Erske and wife Peggy of Tweeta, the Raymond Lecke of Calgary and the Melvin Lecke.

The Paul Lefontaines were holiday Christmas guests of the Pierre Lafontaines in Edmonton.

Jean and Russell Rowland were Christmas Day guests of the Brian Peruniaks, as were the Murray Rowlands and Rene Taylors of Edmonton.

The Keith Williams family were guests of the Archie Dicks in Edmonton.

The Baden Bowermans motored to Boyle to join Baden's sister and family, the Cardinghays.

Gladys and Frank Swabey spent the Christmas weekend with son Bob, wife Joan and family at Sylvan Lake.

The Woody Debinders motored to Stony Plain to be with Woody's mother for the Christmas festivities.

Mr. and Mrs. Verden Sears were hosts to Mr. and Mrs. George Sears and Zion of Edmonton, Theresa Rapier of the George Le Gaults.

Mrs. Bernice McIntyre entertained the Gerry McIntyres of Olds and the Jim McIntyres of Devon.

Following Christmas, Mr. and Mrs. Bill George of Edmonton, son Ken George of Calgary and their grandchildren, Kory and Keri George, were guests of Mrs. R. George. Mrs. Jim Braddick and Edna Ferguson who entertained her cousins on her snowmobile.

Brian Leach of High Prairie, spent the Christmas holidays with his parents Ralph and Ann Leach. His sister, Donna of Camrose, spent 3 days at Christmas and the New Year at her parental home.

Mrs. Andrew Ferguson was not as fortunate as some being with families at this time, but was visited by friends and family both on Christmas and New Year's day in the Royal Alex Hospital.

The Carol service at Ebenezer Elm was well attended and many favorites were sung. Harold Dunham was in charge, while sons Arthur and Ralph read the Christmas story from the scriptures. The offering was sent to the Bissell Centre in Edmonton.

A cash bingo sponsored by the Community League has been planned for the evening of January 14th at 8.30 Kathleen Grummett is the league's social convenor for 1977.

The New Year's Eve Frolic was a gala affair, with a record attendance and the Shamrocks supplying the music. The hall was gaily decorated for the affair. A buffet dinner was enjoyed at the stroke of 12. "Auld Lang Syne" was played and sung and all were wished a "Happy New Year".

Many of the younger set who make their homes at scattered points like, Calgary, High Prairie, Fort Sask., Rainbow Lake, Sherwood Park, Tofield and Edmonton were there to renew acquaintances with those they hadn't seen for some time, and enjoy each other's company.

The first in a series of whist drives, sponsored by the Ladies Club, will be on January 7th. The second follows on the 21st.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter George of Edmonton called on Mrs. S. Emerge on Sunday before they left on January 3rd for Phoenix, Arizona, and points south for the remainder of the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Pearice hosted all members of their family at New Year's dinner on Sunday.

Claudette and George LeGault entertained Olivine and Verden Sears, Marilyn and Ray Rotter and children on Boxing Day.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Grummett and Debbie were hosts at New Year's dinner on Saturday.

Maurice Taylor of Sheffield, England is visiting at the Larry Wilkson's. Maurice is on his way to New Zealand.

Jack Cooper was home from university for the Christmas holidays.

Roger and Susan Dale of Calgary spent Christmas with Harry and Ena Dale.

Ruth and Willard Ferguson, Jason and Cindy and Mrs. Esther Henderson spent Christmas at Vanderhoof, B.C.

Janice and Conrad Scott of Peace River spent the holidays at the Ed Ferguson and Sandy Scott homes.

Christmas and New Year's Eve parties were held at the hall for members and their families.

"Heat loss? Stop it cold! (and save money too)."

Fred Marlett, Northwestern's Utilization Engineer, offers these hints to help make your winter a bit warmer, and your fuel bills a bit smaller.

Fred Marlett checks new glass fibre batt insulation in attic.

To make sure your heating system is working efficiently and safely, make the following checks:

- Make sure your vents, ducts or radiators are not restricted by furniture or carpets, and are free of dust and lint which can reduce heat circulation.
- Check your furnace filter now. Disposable glass fibre filters should be replaced when clogged or approximately twice yearly. Permanent type filters should be cleaned and sprayed periodically, particularly at the start of winter. If in doubt about servicing procedures, ask your heating contractor.
- Check the weather stripping in doors and windows. This is especially important if you live in an older home. Add storm windows and doors where necessary. Avoid drafts, but do not make your home "airtight" by plugging up the specially designed air inlets. Gas appliances, like you, need fresh air.
- If you have a fireplace, keep the damper closed when the fireplace is not in use. Shut off heating ducts to unused rooms, recreation rooms and basement if not used regularly, and close the doors. Draw drapes at night to retain heat, and open during the day to let the sun help warm the house.
- Set your humidifier to provide the proper humidity during the winter months. You'll not only feel more comfortable, it could save you fuel. If you have no humidifier, check with your heating contractor about a furnace mounted model, or invest in a room-size humidifier.
- If you heat your garage, install adequate insulation and close off the attic area. Do not heat the garage when not in use.
- Make sure the insulation in your house is adequate. This is determined by the size, shape, materials and other factors in your home, which experts can sum up in what they call the "R value", or heat-holding ability of the house. We recommend a value of "R20" for economical winter warmth and summer coolness. If uncertain about insulation, have an expert check it.
- Set your thermostat at the lowest possible comfort level for your family. You should adjust it (downward) when going to bed or leaving the house for any length of time. Adjusting your thermostat up and down too frequently increases heating costs and adds no comfort.

Pick up our free pamphlet, "Waste Watcher's Guide To Energy", and other heat and money saving ideas, at your nearby gas company office.

Northern Airstrip built by Gulf Canada

For the past three years Inuit workers from the North west Terr' ries community of Coppermine have been transported regularly to work on Gulf Oil Canada's exploration activities in the Mackenzie Delta 580 miles to the west. To make possible this airlift the oil company spent $170,000 and supplied most of the equipment for construction of a modern all-weather airstrip acquainted at Coppermine. At a recent ceremony, Gulf turned over the new-completed airfield to the local community and the Federal Ministry of Transport.

CP Rail acquires 100 ton crane

CALGARY—CP Rail has taken delivery of a Pettibone 100-ton highway-rail crane the first of this design in Canada — valued at approximately $500,000.

The crane is based in Calgary and will be used in parts of British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan. It replaces a similar 40 ton crane, which has been transferred to the Vancouver area.

The 80-Rail crane, which operates both on and off railway track, combines mobility and maximum lifting strength. It can speed to a derailment in a minimum of time and handle even the heaviest locomotive.

A second 100-ton crane is being manufactured for CP Rail to be used in eastern Canada. Delivery is expected in early December.

"This 100-ton crane can get to any point in its area in a matter of hours," says Tom Johnson, master mechanic, CP Rail Calgary.

No LIP funds to Vegreville

The Hon. Bud Cullen, Minister of Manpower and Immigration, has advised Vegreville M.P. Don Mazankowski that the Vegreville Federal Constituency will not qualify for any additional monies for Local Initiatives Program projects as a result of the recently announced $140 million increase in funding for the program.

The Minister advised that, in allocating the new funds, 69 constituencies did not receive any additional monies. These constituencies for the most part have unemployment rates below the 7 per cent in both the first and third quarters of this year. The Vegreville constituency, the Minister said, is one of those which does not, under the criteria, receive a second round of LIP funding. He did emphasize, however, that projects already funded in the constituency will continue and will receive full consideration in the forthcoming Canada Works Program.

Don Mazankowski said the decision to deprive areas of Canada that demonstrate an ability to deal effectively with their social and economic problems clearly illustrates a form of discrimination against these areas, given the manner in which the program is administered. In effect, it is a penalty to those who strive for self-reliance.

The return of RL4137

A strain of spring wheat that plant breeders discarded 15 years ago may now be the key to developing a new wheat variety resistant to weathering.

The strain, called simply RL4137, had been dropped by scientists because of borderline quality. But a dain search for a wheat resistant to weathering and sprouting after swathing returned RL4137 to the active list.

Plant breeders at Agriculture Canada's Winnipeg, Man Research Station are now crossing RL4137 with Neepawa and could be offering farmers a new rust-resistant and weathering resistant variety in about four years.

Canada Works

Young Canada Works

The restoration of historical buildings, the construction of playgrounds, the repair of community halls, the installation of water systems. These are just a few of the many projects that could create jobs and development benefits in your community.

These are the kinds of creation programs called Canada Works. We help fight unemployment by providing funds to projects organized and run by private businesses, non-profit and community groups.

Every Canada Works project must provide a minimum of two months' employment for people in your area. Submit your application to Canada Works.

But don't wait. The deadline for applications is February 4th.

For more information about Canada Works and how to apply, visit your Canada Manpower Centre today. Ask for your free copy of Canada Works' Guide to Applicants. It tells you all about the program and how to apply.

Visit your Canada Manpower Centre today. Canada Works. Make it work in your community.

This summer, Young Canada Works will help reduce student unemployment by creating jobs in your community. The students will work on projects of community benefit that will enable them to test their career aspirations.

Any established organization can submit an application to Young Canada Works.

Your proposal should provide a minimum of three student jobs for six consecutive weeks. Projects can operate for up to 14 weeks between May and September. Your local CMC has a Young Canada Works "Guide" and application form.

Submit your application now. The deadline for Young Canada Works is February 4th.

Royalty

Round Hill's royal family were named on Friday night at the Elks' annual New Year's Eve party. Rose Brandt is The new queen with her princesses being Janice Petryshen (left) and Charleen Knopp. Each candidate sold tickets with the proceeds going to the curling club. This was the second successive year that Rodnd Hill has crowned a queen. Ironically enough, last year's queen is the mother of the new queen.

Fuel from farm waste

About 50 percent of rural India's domestic fuel requirements could be met by bio-gas (methane) produced by the fermentation of the dung of the country's 220 million cows and buffaloes. At the same time, the left-over from the process — the nitrogen-rich waste that remains once the gas has been drawn off could help save up to 20 percent of the costly chemical fertilizer which is such a drag on India's currency reserves.

Bio-gas production is a simple and cheap method of solving energy problems in the 600,000 villages where over 70 percent of India's population live. Small, autonomous fermentation plants, based on a freely available raw material, cow-dung, can supply the gas needs for cooking and elementary lighting in rural communities.

Over 7,000 of these simple plants, consisting of a concrete pit where the manure ferments and a cast-iron holder where the gas accumulates before being piped to houses, have already been installed in Indian villages and the government plans to set up a further 20,000 within the next four years.

The system is run on a cooperative basis with five or six families, or a whole village, coming together, pooling their organic manure resources and sharing the end-products. The biogas and the enriched fertilizer Government subsidies cover about 50 percent of the plant's installation costs and members of the cooperative pay the rest.

USSR big customer for Calgary machines

By Dan Taller,
President,
Saskatchewan Weekly
Newspapers Association

MOSCOW — A Calgary-based manufacturer of heavy equipment moving machines has found the Soviet Union his biggest single customer.

Josh Nedwell, the 56-year-old president of Foremost Industries Ltd., has developed the market by making regular trips to the Soviet Union. His most recent hit 5th as a member of the 40-man trade delegation in into October, headed by External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson and Len Marchand, minister responsible for small business.

The delegation, arranged by the Dept. of Industry, Trade and Commerce, was the largest group of Canadians to make an official trade visit to the Soviet Union. It was formed to help open doors for Canadian businessmen and to provide better cultural and information exchanges between the two countries.

Nedwell has been selling his all-terrain vehicles to the Russians since 1968, and now has over 200 of the Foremost Husky 5 machines in the Soviet Union. They are being used for moving oil rigs, building pipelines, servicing wells and mining work carried by in Siberia and in central regions of the Soviet Union. The newest machines being delivered this fall are the end of a 50-machine order of the huge 90-35 ton capacity Foremost Husky 9s, each costing approximately $250,000.

Nedwell did not get any more orders for the vehicles while here, although he says he's optimistic about the prospects.

"Trade missions such as this one are extremely helpful," says the youthful Nedwell. "They help open a few doors."

Doing business with the Russians is considered by Westerners — businessmen from other Eastern European and other socialist countries — to require the patience of a saint, the perseverance of a British lion and the strength of an ox. It also requires considerable capital because a 1-week visit here, including air fare, can cost $1,800 per person, so as a consequence Nedwell is the only man in his company who makes the sales calls.

"Besides," says Nedwell in an off-hand manner, "Russians like to deal with the president of a company."

Although he has a good market here in the Soviet Union, the Foremost Industries president is not sitting back and relying on Soviet business to keep his factory busy back in Calgary. Nedwell spends 30-35 per cent of his time travelling around the world, and has bright prospects for his vehicles in the Middle East, South America and Southeast Asia where he recently opened an office in Jakarta, Indonesia.

"We're starting to cover the earth quite a bit," says the University of Alberta mechanical engineer graduate. "The Middle East should be a big market for us but it's a bit sluggish right now. South America, however, is picking up good."

Josh Nedwell

Another area that has promise is the Northwest Territories and northern Alberta. If the proposed Mackenzie Valley pipeline is developed.

Nedwell has been expanding his markets abroad since the mid-1960s, about the time oil exploration activity in northern Alberta came to a halt. It was about that time that a Russian delegation was visiting the Alberta oilfields and saw the Foremost vehicles in operation. Since then, sales to the Soviet Union have helped propel his company to annual sales of over $17-million in 1975.

"Our dollar volume is increasing but the number of machines we produce each year remains about the same."

Annual production is about 160 machines. Components are purchased from suppliers and made in other Calgary plants. All welding, fabrication and final assembly are done by Foremost Industries at 1616 Meridian Road NE.

Foremost markets machines with a payload of 20-40 tons, and range in price from $95,000 to $250,000 each. Although most machines are sold for oilfield work around the world, the company is looking at other uses for the all-terrain vehicles, including power line work, airport crash rescue and logging work.

YOUNGER LOOK FOR DRY SKIN!

Dry skin is an awful liar! It makes any woman look much older than her real age. When you rid your face of skin dryness and its deceitfulness, you immediately look younger than your birthdays are even willing to admit. If your skin is really dry and flaky, and uncomfortable under make-up, take immediate steps to raise its moisture level and lubricate its surface effectively. Then, recognize your appearance for unfailing results. COCREMA Dry Skin Creme actually dispenses of dryness overnight with two or three all-night applications, while you sleep. COCREMA contains the purest grade of select cocoa butter

Elmer Anderson is a patient in the Tofield Hospital since New Year's Day.

Mrs. Lena Orback is a patient in Tofield Hospital.

The Elmer Anderson and Daniel Solberg family were New Year's guests of Lorne and Lucy Anderson and family in Tofield.

A lovely Christmas Eve service was held in the Ryley United Church, along with Communion, with Rev Dave Meikle in charge. A candlelighting ceremony was held with Randy Ness lighting the candles. A piano and organ duet was played by Mrs. Harriet Ruddy and Ines Reid. Everyone joined in the singing of Christmas carols.

Bob and Debra Cross enjoyed their Christmas holidays in Ryley and district with their folks and relatives.

Harvey and Annette Short of Acadia Valley spent Christmas with Annette's folks, Harold and Clara Vergette.

Henry and Irene Hafso, Josephine Stone and Hazel Viking visited with Irene's folks, the Elmer Andersons, on Dec. 28.

Elaine Solberg and a couple of friends are holidaying in B. C. and will be skiing.

A New Year's Eve dance was held in the Ryley Community Hall with a nice crowd in attendance.

Eugene Kuchmark is a patient in a Calgary hospital.

Winners in the Ryley Busy Beavers 4-H Club's cake raffle were Ruth Kang, Evelina Baker, Evelyn Kanack, Madeline Andrukow and Michael Kwasnicy.

The Beaver Heritage and Agricultural Society Board held its January meeting in the classroom at the swimming pool. Members were told that Mrs. Cathy Bussey of Tofield had joined the aquatic staff.

Poe Pourri

by Lorraine Poulsen

Every year it's the same. I make a list of New Year's resolutions which I break by Jan. 3 and hate myself during the rest of the year for my weakness.

Not this year.

This year I have a number of resolutions I know I can keep.

This year I resolve that husband Bob will keep the work bench in the garage neat at all times and that he will keep a path cleared from the house to the garage for a weekly inspection by me.

Because I know I will fail in my annual resolution to keep the flower beds free of weeds, this year I have it figured out. Already I have ordered weed-resistant wallpaper with a bright floral pattern which I will stretch over the flower beds, and thus maintain the only weed-free flower gardens around. (I am still looking for a vegetable-patterned wallpaper for the garden.)

The kitchen sink will be shiny every day of 1977. At the turn of the New Year, I intended a standing weekly invitation to Sylvia Molenko to visit and "clean" me how she shines stainless steel to a blinding sparkle.

The stove has long been in need of piped-in music and for 1977 I have the solution. I vow to speak with John Chepka and arrange that he and his violin entertain customers with a variety of musical selections. John and his violin can sit in the kitchen and play into the stove pipe which will do its way into the store.

I also resolve not to miss clicking on my mail on a daily basis and thus keep the ladies in the Holden Post Office pleased with me. Nor will my garbage bags pile up in the New Year. Both jobs will be handled by Poe's own mailman-garbage collector, Jim McClennan. (If he does his job well, I'll talk to Poe council about suiting Jim with an official uniform in 1978.)

I also resolve to get the attic trap-door neatly finished in the New Year along with the storage door in the bathroom. Floyd Taylor won't get another free cup of coffee in the New Year until both jobs are completed to my approval.

I have also resolved not to snack on crackers and tea in bed after 11 p.m. (Jan 1st I unplugged the electric clock in the bedroom to read a constant 8 p.m.)

I also vow that the road grader operators will never again miss their morning coffee because of my tendency to over-sleep. For Walter Krystal and his friends, I will place a thermos of hot coffee on the front step before retiring nightly.

And finally, I have decided to have fresh baking in the house at all times during 1977. Granny Bodnar, I am sure, will help me use this resolution to the end of the year if I promise to pick up the baking at Bonnie once a week.

It's going to be a good year. Think how I'll

NEW JOBS FROM COMMUNITY PROJECTS. THINK ABOUT IT.

Canada Works

Young Canada Works

Canada Works is a new job creation program that will be launched in January.

This new year-round program is designed to get needed work done by people not employed in the private sector.

Canada Works will accept applications from groups and organizations including private businesses who wish to develop, sponsor and administer worthwhile community projects. Funds will mainly be allocated to areas of high unemployment and projects will be tailored to special employment needs of your local community.

Canada Works will generate employment for more than 60,000 Canadians who are presently unemployed. Applications will be considered twice a year - in Winter and Summer.

Think about your projects now! Early in the new year, your local Canada Manpower Centre will have application forms and a Canada Works "Guide to Applicants," with full details on the program. Canada Works for your community. Make your worthwhile projects work next year!

A second program is for students. Young Canada Works will create jobs for more than 20,000 students next summer. The emphasis will be on projects of solid community value. It has many of the same features as the year-round program, except projects will be limited to 14 weeks during the summer months.

At the same time, Young Canada Works will enable students to gain valuable work experience and test their career aspirations.

Like Canada Works, your Canada Manpower Centre will have application forms and a Young Canada Works "Guide to Applicants" early in the new year.

So, think about what your organization would like to do for students. Young Canada Works for students in your community.

A Better Way

(REPRINTED (Ponoka) Jr. Stamp Sep. 1976 Mercury)

September 27, 1976

The recent hoedown in the newspapers when Prime Minister Trudeau announced that the government would be spending over $1 million to educate and inform the public on wage and price guidelines and the anti-inflation program, and then insulted the media by saying they had a responsibility to explain it, brings up the old subject of inflation.

Somehow or other, all governments, no matter what political stripe, are skilled at giving the impression that inflation just arrives out of the blue like a bad storm or an act of God and that they had nothing to do with bringing it on. They will, of course, pitch in with your help, your money, and your time to try to whip it for you.

Inflation, plainly and simply, over the long run is nothing more than an excessive growth of the money supply in most cases, this started in the modern world by governments attempting to finance spending programs and increase re-distribution schemes in our western or democratic societies, unfortunately, the old fashioned method of raising all the revenues for spending by direct taxation, does not fly with most to get re-elected. It soon became evident that governments, if they could issue more a certain amount by taxation and the rest by printing more money, would avoid having to ask the taxpayers for greater increased taxes. Governments social programs were supposed to transfer wealth from the strong to the weak, but in actual manner, they have had the effect of taking money from the poor and giving it to the strong. There is no one single helpless as an inflating economy than those on fixed incomes, the poor, and those at the bottom end of the social scale

In addition, government, by increasing the supply of money, appeared to be accommodating those who demanded higher wage levels and also price increases. However, the majority of these price increases and wage increases went to those with power in the community. most of all, to our civil servants who really have no counter-check against their demands for more and more funds. A small businessman, or farmer, or small mineral producer, can go broke if wage demands are too high, but a large corporation which controls the market can pass extra wage costs on to the consumer. The large labour unions "Cooperate" by agreeing with the large corporations that they will "split the take" by passing on the total increased total to the consumer

In the case of the civil servant, the consumer being the taxpayer, it is extraordinarily easy to pass extra loads on to him. The new monster of a free bargaining civil services, created by government, has to be fed often to be kept happy

Back to the current education program on price controls. I wonder whether we will get the right type of information and education. There is no easy way out of inflation. The first thing the public has to realize is that they have to select men and women to govern them who are not attempting to bribe them with their own money

The average citizen has to redevelop the once strong desire to save money, for representative and responsible government, where everyone is pulling his own weight

The Harvard Business School, at whose shrine most economists and politicians worship (from Galbraith to Laughead), believing in growth alone has taught our politicians to trust the illusion of growth, even by the printing of money. This has to be stopped and we have to move towards what is called a "stable society". This does not mean no growth, although there are sections of the economy where we should try to bring growth to a standstill For instance, why try to increase the use of energy? Or why try to increase the use of liquor and tobacco?

I think the public is ready for some tough talking. They now realize we cannot lift ourselves by our own bootstraps. Issuing credit out of a fountain pen without any relation to society's productive capacity, but just what the politician thinks society wants, is not going to be good enough for the future

Manger in a home

Stanley Rakowski of Round Hill really got into the spirit of Christmas as he used up a good portion of his living room to recreate the birth of Christ in a manger. With the exception of the figures, everything is hand-made — because of the size, the cameraman couldn't get back far enough to show the walls and roof.

CLBI offers night course

Beginning on Monday evening, January 10th, and continuing each Monday thereafter through March 14, there will be a night course offered at the Canadian Lutheran Bible Institute, 7:30 - 9:30 p.m. The teacher of this course will be the Rev Vern Rasfiash, a member of the faculty of the CLBI as of this school year, and prior to that pastor of Zion Lutheran Church, Ngawin, Saskatchewan.

The course to be taught will have interest to people in the community and education circles as well as in the church. It is a study of Creation as a viable alternative to the Evolutionary Theory involved will be a study of the model of origins proposed by creationist scientists as contrasted with that proposed by evolutionary scientists. Careful attention will be given to both the assumptions and the factual data used by proponents of both models. Biblical implications for a model on Christian and creationist stance, the evolutionary theory will be presented and discussed fairly.

The 1976's have seen a phenomenal increase in the number of scientists opting for a creationist view. A number of school districts in Canada and the U.S.A. now teach both points of view, and courses in creationism or the creation-evolution issue are offered at major universities. Audio-visuals designed for public school use, as well as those prepared by the instructor will be employed.

Holli Berting of Mirh River is shown above receiving the Grand MacEwan Conservation Award, presented annually by Calgary Power, as Alberta Lieut. Governor Hon. Ralph Steinhauer made the presentation. Proudly looking on at centre is Calgary Power President M M Williams. Mr. Williams was in Camrose last Wednesday explaining a number of the power industry problems to elected and civic officials from a wide portion of the Battle River country.

Skate-a-thon set to help expenses

The Tofield Skating Club is sponsoring a Skate-a-thon in the Tofield Arena on Saturday, January 29 and Sunday, January 30th.

Proceeds will go to the Tofield Agricultural Society to help pay for several much needed projects such as repairing the public address system, completing the mezzanine room above the ice, paying the insurance bill, and completing the Arts and Crafts addition to the building.

The Skate-a-thon is open to all interested skaters, kids and adults alike. Skaters are required to obtain a sponsor form and get as many people as possible to pledge money for each minute skated. Sponsor forms are available from the Tofield Sports Shop.

Free admission vouchers, redeemable at Tofield businesses, are being offered as prizes with a skater turning in pledge money of $25 and over a $5 voucher. Fifty dollars earns a $10 voucher, $75 earns a $15 voucher and $100 or more will be rewarded with a $20 voucher. The boy and girl turning in the highest amounts of pledge money will each receive a $40 voucher.

A Skate-a-thon is a good way for the kids who use the arena to contribute to its operation. Members of the community are urged to support any skater who asks for pledges.

McLennan wins

After a close playoff series, Collin McLennan's rink from Mundare has won the Tofield Junior men's curling championship for the second straight year.

McLennan booked up in a best of three series with Ernie Dorin of Bruce as there were only two entries in the playoff which was held in Killam.

Dorin won the first game 7-6 and missed a take-out on his final rock as McLennan made a 7-6 victory to force a deciding game. It was close all the way with McLennan finally winning 9-6 to take the crown.

The McLennan quarter will now advance to the Northern Alberta finals later this month in Edmonton.

Members of the championship rink include Collin McLennan, lead Prudder, Dr. Ken MacQuarrie and Lee Kelly.

Four different curling playoff banquets are scheduled for this coming weekend in Department 66 communities.

Three of the playoffs will be held in Daysland. They include junior, junior ladies and mixed curling championships. The playoffs will begin on Friday and run through until Sunday. There are two events in all these categories.

The men's championship banquet will be staged in Hardisty.

At least eight entries had been received by early Monday afternoon at the office and approached tonight (Wednesday). Entries may be telephoned to Andy Stelmaj at 662-3264.

Two other playoffs at the Rose level are still to be played. Junior men will play in Daysland while schoolboys will go to Tofield. Both playoffs will be held January 21-23 with entries to be forwarded to Andy Stelmaj.

Block parents plan a meeting

A final effort will be made to organize a "Block Parent Program" at Tofield on Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Tofield School Library.

Unless there is a greater attendance, it will not be finalized.

If there is enough interest, a grant will be applied for to defray any local expenses which could develop. The school then will prepare a program of educating the children on this subject.

Ryley Flyers lead Beaverhill hockey

Ryley Flyers continue to lead the Beaverhill Hockey League according to the latest official league statistics.

The Ryley club has two eight out of nine starts and have a three-point bulge over their nearest rivals from Lamont.

At the same time, Ryley's goalies are dominating the net-minding scene as they have allowed only 39 goals in nine games for a goals against average of 4.33. This gives them a good lead over Lamont's netminders who are in second place with an average of 5.75. After that there is a big gap with Minburn and Tofield goalies batting it out for third place.

Minburn netminder Jack the penalty parade having been assessed a total of 75 minutes while Lacyk of Mundare is second with 35 minutes, only one minute more than Hoye of Andrew.

Mundare players dominate the scoring race in the early going as they hold down three of the top four places with each member of Lamont trailing into the top four.

Town's development discussed by council

The Planning Branch has agreed to revise a plan for the future development of Tofield giving more detail, such as to parks areas.

Tofield Town Council was given this information at a meeting in December attended by Mike Sword and an assistant from the Planning Branch.

Mayor Prosbury was named to serve on a committee to draft an agreement and regulations regarding regional recreation.

Council agreed to purchase six service signs from Alberta Transportation. Provision of such signs is a project in rural municipals by the Department.

A formal lease agreement between the Town of Tofield and the Tofield Agricultural Society is to be prepared for council's consideration.

J.N. Beadle was asked to contact Bob Jones, manager of the Bank of Montreal, to see if he would serve as treasurer on the Library Board, replacing Steve Fedorenko. Council approved a plan for placing one of an additional water supply plan which is estimated to cost $287,500. The town's engineer was authorized to review the cost estimates with the Department of Environment prior to drafting final pl. s for construction.

The whole question of expansion of the town's water reservoir and sewage lagoon was brought up at a special meeting held on December 20th while other items were discussed at a regular meeting on December 13th.

Information for this story was obtained from the unapproved minutes of these two meetings.

4-H club plans sale

by Gail Stanton

Ryley 4-H Beef Club has planned an auction sale for early next month to raise funds for a regional 4-H project.

The sale will be held in the Ryley Community Hall on Saturday, February 5th, starting at one o'clock.

The club is looking for donations of items to be auctioned off at the sale. Anyone wishing to donate something may do so by calling Gail Stanton at 663-3414 or Lorraine Magnuson at 663-3972.

The club recently raffled a clock-radio which was won by Lorraine Magnuson of Ryley.

The club will be holding its meeting on January 6th.

Ryley implements a drainage scheme

The Village of Ryley has decided to borrow $35,000 as a ten-year debenture to cover its share of costs of a drainage program which they will share with the Water Resources Branch.

The drainage program covers the southwest portion of the village limits to the south east point on the north side of the CNR right of way. If the ditch doesn't drain properly, drainage on the east side of the village is to be considered.

The village's secretary-treasurer Ray Herland was authorized to obtain the necessary documents for the implementation of the drainage program.

Agreement to continue the mill agreement between the village and the Ryley Lions Club was reached, with the new agreement to remain in effect for one year and if the Lions are not in agreement to renew it by January 1st of this year, the agreement will be terminated.

Financial statements if they want the agreement to continue after this year.

According to a report from Associated Engineering Sales, water in the village is considered to be very corrosive. This report was turned over to the village's engineers for their consideration.

Council agreed to participate in two signing programs with Alberta Transportation, one being the "heads up program" while the other is "facility" signs.

The municipal inspector's report was read to councillors and it was decided that, at an annual meeting is held, the report would be read to ratepayers.

Information was to be sent to the Ryley Bandana Club (senior citizens) who had written to council requesting information on a small building to be used as a drop-in center.

Councillor Brown was named to serve on a special committee being formed to make recommendations to set out policies for regional recreation.

A motion was passed increasing remuneration for councillors to eleven dollars per meeting and ten dollars per month for expenses. Prior to the motion, councillors were receiving ten dollars per meeting.

Accounts amounting to $21,384.36 were approved for payment.

Information for this story was obtained from the unapproved minutes of a regular meeting held on December 20th and special meetings held on December 30th and January 6th.

Deep necessity

Deeply troubled by the nation's economic plight, the level of unemployment, escalating rates of inflation, the imbalance of our trade situation and several other problems facing the government at Ottawa, we should surely appreciate the efforts of Secretary of State John Roberts. Faced with all these dreadfully worrisome problems, he nevertheless found time, a few days before Christmas, to involve himself in another problem of earth-shattering dimensions, that of a holiday in February.

Proposed as National Heritage Day, it would be the second Monday in February of each year, even though it would not be binding on the provinces. It's support is assured, however, since five of the ten provinces and the two Territorial governments have already officially proclaimed National Heritage Day, though not yet a holiday, pending federal action.

One would think, with all the ills that affect us, with our wage rates and production costs soaring past those of other countries, that another day off is something we need like a hole in the head. It's only days ago that we heard criticism from would-be farmer customers over the number of stores and business firms in Camrose closed for extended hours over the Christmas break.

And just to make his time worthwhile, Mr. Roberts also provides in his bill for the name of Canada's birthday, July 1st, to be changed from Dominion Day to Canada Day, and for the name of Victoria Day, the erstwhile 24th of May, to be changed to the Queen's or King's Birthday. The former is a matter for objection on our part, just as it derives support from many. But the latter change is purely silly. At least Victoria Day referred to the birthday of the Queen under whom Great Britain probably rose to its pre-eminent height among nations, while the Queen's or King's real birthday would roam around the calendar depending on who happened to sit on the throne at any particular time, leading no significance or attachement to that day in May. Except that it's another convenient time for a day off.

Why cover up?

Rumblings of concern and disquiet are spreading across the province as the Premier and his Cabinet ignore the repeated calls for an inquiry into the unhappy affairs of the defunct Alberta Export Agency. There is a growing feeling that there must be a good deal more to hide than has so far come to light, else the government would not likely take such a stonewall attitude.

It's by no means the first occasion, and the unhappy prospect is that it may by no means be the last.

Such an unwelcome development is made even more likely by the refusal of the government to let the matter become public, by the knowledge of public servants that if they hang together there is little danger of public discipline, and by the implicit assurance that the government doesn't really care all that much, no matter how much fuss there may be behind closed doors.

The probability is there has been all too little fuss behind closed doors, and if that's also true, the public seems to have less and less protection. It's not only the NDP, the NFU and the Socreds who are concerned . . . there are some pretty good Tories who are also wondering just what goes on. They're wondering, too, if the government really has lost control of the civil service, and are the bureaucrats now in charge?

Peter Ward's Ottawa Viewpoint...

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA — (CP) — You have to shake your head in disbelief over what has been going on with some federal crown corporations and the government's attitude toward practices which are questionable, to say the least.

When the Auditor General brought out his annual report in November, payments to agents from Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. were brought particularly into question. About $25 million was involved in the agents' payments, for sales of nuclear reactors of Argentina and South Korea.

The Auditor General also stressed, for the second year in a row, that government spending was out of control and must be curbed.

Hard on the heels of the ban over AECL's payments to "agents" came charges from former Auditor General Maxwell Henderson that the crown corporation Polymer had made $1.9 million in payments, in cash and through numbered Swiss bank accounts, to overseas customers. The government claim was that these were rebates for volume purchases, but there was no explanation as to why the money was paid into tax-dodging Swiss numbered accounts, or in cash.

No doubt about it, somebody was running a fiddle — either outright kick-back payoffs, or at the very least, income tax evasion.

Then, as the government was defending agent's fees on the Argentina deal, the government down in Buenos Aires began investigating charges that a couple of cabinet ministers there had been involved in corruption involving the CANDU nuclear reactor sale.

Lovely Here's Simon-Pure Canada offering a Trudeau stamp over international corruption designed to get business for Canada, just a few months after we've been beating our breasts and claiming we were far too moral to be involved in anything like the Lockheed scandals which ripped apart governments in Japan and Holland.

Interestingly enough, it turns out that the man who acted as agent for Lockheed Aircraft in Japan, also was the Canadian agent in the sales pitch for a CANDU reactor to Japan.

If operations of the sort described are taking place in the international sportsbus of crown corporations, what is happening domestically? Do we have double standards, or do the same rules apply at home?

Family Physician
BY DR. JAMES G. PRICE

Q. Can you explain what seems to be the problem in the swine flu vaccine situation? It appears as though the vaccine is being rushed, soon more it's effective, but there isn't enough to be some doubt as to whether or not it's going to be available. What's the story?

A. The "story" as you put it, revolves around the matter of liability insurance. The manufacturers of the vaccine feel sure that out of 160 million doses or more which might be given, there will be some reactions to the vaccine which could lead to lawsuits. Evidently insurance companies must feel the same way, since they've demanded to ensure the manufacturers against these suits.

I suspect that the pharmaceutical companies and the insurance companies both remember the huge expense and large settlements resulting from the polio vaccine, and they want protection against a repeat performance of this type. The government has been asked to carry a large share of this insurance burden, and although our legislators were originally very much opposed to the federal government providing such insurance (because of the precedent it would set), recent developments make it more likely that the drug companies must have some sort of government protection. Since it was the government which requested manufacture of the vaccine in the first place, this doesn't seem unreasonable.

Q. Is there any way to tell whether or not an individual will react to the vaccine?

A. The group with the greatest likelihood of reacting will be those with a known allergy to eggs, since the vaccine is given in eggs. The purification process used in the manufacture of the inactivated vaccine should get rid of the egg protein, but there is a slight chance that a very allergic person might react. There's also the chance that a person might be allergic to eggs and be unaware of it. It's a fact of medicine that any time foreign substances are injected into a person, an allergic reaction may occur. The remarkable thing about it all is that it happens so infrequently.

Q. Will the swine flu vaccine be available for all ages?

A. We really don't have the final answer on this. There's been some evidence to indicate that young children may have a tendency towards severe reactions, and the final recommendations of the manufacturers may not a lower age limit under which it shouldn't be given.

Q. Who will be giving the vaccine?

A. It looks like the majority of the vaccine will be administered by some form of health departments, with only a fraction of it being given by private physicians.

Why Not Canned Fruit?

It often seems that winter menus suffer from the "blah's" after the Christmas season. One way to brighten up your meals is to use canned fruit. It is an instant dessert idea. Some other suggestions include serving canned fruit pancakes or breakfast cereal. Accompany a main dish with a serving of peaches or pears as lettuce. C.P. Air served canned apricots filled with cream cheese with cold chicken. Why not scoop up your favorite flavored ice cream and top with pear halves and chocolate syrup for an old-fashioned sundae?

Canned fruits are currently available in 14 and 19 - ounce cans and some are also packed in 28 - ounce cans. A 14 ounce can contains about three servings and a 19 - ounce can about four servings. Check your supermarket and see the wide variety of canned fruits available. Why not try one or two new ones?

One way to use canned fruit is in Fruit Crisp.

FRUIT CRISP
2-14-ounce cans or 1-28-ounce can fruit
1 tablespoon cornstarch
¼ cup syrup from fruit
One third cup flour
1 cup crushed ready-to-eat cereal flakes
One third cup brown sugar
One third cup butter
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 cup syrup from fruit.
Drain fruit, reserving syrup. Combine 1 tablespoon cornstarch with ¼ cup syrup from fruit and stir into fruit. Place in baking dish. Combine flour, cereal flakes and brown sugar. Cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse bread crumbs. Sprinkle over fruit and bake at 350 F until topping is lightly browned (about 30 to 35 minutes). Combine 1 tablespoon cornstarch with 1 cup syrup from fruit. Stir and cook until thick and clear. Serve with crisp. 6 servings.

Poe Pourri

by Lorraine Poulton

Today is (either a special day or) Pun.

The chocolate pudding turned out smooth and creamy and the gooey coverage went to the gaily wrapped empty tin. Looks excellent.

True, to meet today is just another Thursday meeting simply that the weekend is getting close and payday (Friday) closer. But (at Pun, THIS Thursday is a special day.

Today is husband Bob's birthday.

The jokes about women and their undying attempts to hide their "true" age are numerous. Men, on the other hand, have long been accepted as the species of mankind which could care less about their increasing years.

Enter Bob.

When I first met Bob (I never was very good at supervising), I insulted him slightly by suggesting that he was considerably older than he actually was. He didn't appreciate my guess and let me know it. I have never since attempted to guess his age, instead, I have settled for knowing the date of his birth and calculated whatever age he chooses for the year.

Today I will try to talk it candles into standing straight in a bowl of chocolate pudding (the proper pudding to cake) and allow him to add (or subtract) as many candles as he sees fit.

I haven't bought him a birthday gift yet as I must wait to see what age he will claim this year. (A teenager would hardly appreciate a card entitled "How to Grow Old Gracefully" nor would a man of 35 enjoy a 10-speed bike.)

Tomorrow I'll find a gift.

And a card. The truth is there are many cards which would apply regardless of the age, and, no matter where he/they fit in, I always have a hard time choosing a card. I've read so many I really enjoy. Like the one that pictures the laugh-lasting cowboy and states:

"May your horse never stumble,
Your spurs never rust,
May your guts never grumble
Your cinch never bust!"

I love that one. Or those that wish happiness the year through or those that, in a neat, catchy poem, say that getting older isn't such a bad thing at all or the real funny cards which help make any birthday a real happy day.

But today I have neither card nor gift as I'll just get there! Next to join me in a sincere course of Happy Birthday as I light the candles on the pudding and pray that dripless candles are all they claim to be. (And Bob, everyone at Poe hopes your 36th birthday is as happy as the 29 which preceded it!)

Mrs. G.H. Taylor

Harry Olsen took his mother, Mrs. Carrie Olsen now to Camrose last Friday where she will visit for several days with her son, Arthur. Harry left Sunday for a two-month holiday in Mexico.

Mr. and Mrs. David Tiedemann and children of Edmonton were visiting Thursday afternoon last week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Tiedemann.

Bill Hallet was in hospital for a few days last week for a check-up and is now back home.

The January 3rd Chamber of Commerce supper meeting was cancelled.

Mrs. Carrie Olsen has returned home from spending a couple of weeks in Tofield Hospital and is feeling much improved from her accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Carlson and baby Jonathon of Calgary spent the Christmas holiday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Carlson and brother, Kris; Bob, Carol and Jonathon with Mrs. Carlson and Eric spent Boxing Day with Edith's sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. David Scott at Sherwood Park with Bob and Carol and Jonathon having supper with his cousin Lorne and family, Mr. and Mrs. Bob of Edmonton.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Betteridge spent a few days over the recent holiday with their daughter Norma, husband and grandaughter at Vancouver and enjoyed good weather while there.

A.L. Vinson, who has been a patient for several weeks in Viking Hospital, first with a bad knee then with pneumonia, has recovered from his illness and is back at Viola Lodge.

Vivian and Lyle Andrusky, on their recent trip to Hawaii, were delayed over a day in Seattle when a hawk flew into one of the plane's engines as they were taking off at a 180 miles per hour. They stayed overnight in Seattle and left the following day after repairs had been made to the plane.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Budd returned home last week after spending two weeks and the Christmas holiday with their daughter Linda and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ray in Quebec.

The Pioneer Group met for their first regular meeting of 1977, at the home of Mrs. Ruth Campbell on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Kate Nichols was in charge of devotions. The minutes of the meeting December 2nd 1976 at the home of Mrs. Nichols were read and approved. The financial statement for the year 1976 was given with the bank balance to date. It was moved that a donation of $100.00 be given to the United Church towards expenses.

The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Mary Hooper on Feb. 3rd., with Miss June Clark in charge of devotions. Lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. Nichols.

The Friendship Group will meet for the first meeting of 1977 at the home of Mrs. Ethel Brainard on Thursday afternoon, Jan. 20th, at 2:30 p.m.

Clare Anderson and George H. Taylor were Saturday afternoon visitors in Viking.

The New Year's Eve supper dance held by the Holden Elks Lodge was a big success with a full course buffet turkey supper starting the evening which had been prepared by the well-known gourmet cooks of the Lodge, who have prepared many suppers for the past several years. Supper was served from 7 to 9 p.m. with the dance following, music being provided by "Johnny's Memories". Nearer the hour of 12, a.m. arrived the ticket for the 50 cm. Texas Turkey was drawn, the winner being Dennis Wehner of Viking. The winner of the schnapps ticket draw for a 26 oz. Texas Turkey was won by Fred Fenyves of Holden At midnight, all joined together to sing "Auld Lang Syne", the Elks toasting hats and noisemakers into the cheering crowd who took part in traditional New Year's greetings. A midnight lunch was served with dancing continuing until the early hours of New Year's Day.

The proceeds from the event will be used by the Elks Lodge for their charitable and community benefits and work.

Last Wednesday at a patient in Tofield Hospital, entering Saturday after suffering a slight heart attack. His condition is slowly improving.

Mrs. Joyce Stalkowski is at present a patient in St. Mary's Hospital in Camrose for surgery.

Q. I am a recent divorcee, and I have two small children living with me. I am wondering if I should continue to wear my wedding ring.

A. A divorcee usually does remove her ring, even though she has children.

Q. I saw a woman recently, making use of her napkin at the dinner table for wiping perspiration from her brow and her upper lip. Wasn't this rather poor form?

A. Much more than "rather poor form." The napkin is used ONLY for wiping the lips and fingers.

Q. If a person finds money on the floor of a taxi cab, isn't the money his to keep?

A. No. The money found in a driver's cab isn't one's to keep anymore than if one had found it on the floor in someone's home.

Q. I am about to go on my first-ever airplane trip, and am uncertain as to whether or not I am supposed to tip the stewardess for any special favors?

A. There is no tipping at all necessary on airplanes.

Q. Is an announcement of the adoption of a child properly made in the newspaper?

A. No. This is not done, simply because there is no reason to announce an adoption to anyone but your friends and relatives.

Q. When a bride is writing thank-you notes, for wedding gifts received, does she write to the bridegroom's parents for the gift they gave?

A. Although not exactly necessary if she has already given verbal thanks, still a warm letter of thanks (known as many sincere pleasures) for the gift, also good breeding.

Q. I've been told it is gauche and improper to breathe on one's eyeglasses when cleaning them in public. True?

A. True. In fact, it's better to avoid cleaning the glasses at all in public.

Q. I recently broke my engagement, and the girl who was supposed to serve as my maid-of-honor has already had an expensive dress made for her to wear at the wedding. Should I do something about the expense she has incurred?

A. If it is the kind of dress she cannot possibly use for any other occasion, and if you can afford it, it would certainly be nice to reimburse her - for at least a share of the cost.

Power rates must continue to rise

Farms in the Round Hill-Dodds area are unlikely to be developed for power generation at least until the mid 1980's, an audience of about 150 elected and civic officials were told last Wednesday evening at a gathering arranged by Calgary Power Ltd. in the Crystal Springs ballroom in Camrose.

Present were city, town, village and county representatives from Calgary Power districts as far south as Hanna, up 13, east to the Saskatchewan border, north to Hay-ley 16, and west to Alder Flats.

Now generating units scheduled for Wabamun will not come on stream until about 1982, the gathering was told, because of possible environmental and pollution problems, which would hold the major picture for another two, possibly three years.

In the meantime, the meeting was told, Calgary Power will continue mining on a limited scale on some of the land it owns in the Round Hill-Dodds area, lasting the coal seams, and exploring the best methods of reclaiming the land after mining.

These and several other answers were provided for questions from the audience, after they had heard a comprehensive report and analysis on operating conditions, load factors, financial considerations and development problems affecting the power supply industry. President of Calgary Power, R. M. Williams of Calgary outlined the company's picture in a restrained, low-key presentation. During the question period following his address, he turned to several other company officials to present as complete and factual information as they could for the listeners.

In this connection, Bill Fraser was called on to answer a question regarding the possible loss of water wells due to disturbing natural aquifers through the mining process. Formerly division manager in Camrose, and now vice president in charge of technical services in Calgary, Mr. Fraser was well known to many present, and pointed out the company could not know in advance what effect mining would have on natural aquifers.

Naturally the company could hardly guarantee to restore an entire water table, but where water was needed for stock watering or similar purposes, Mr. Fraser said the company would be responsible, even if it had to be piped in from some other area.

A Flagstaff councillor at the meeting reported his county had been "three times" short of natural heat several years ago, before any thought had been given to reclamation, and this year, for the first time, had planted the land, and enjoyed surprising yields. Given the normal emphasis on carefully rebuilding the land, he felt even better results might be achieved.

Mr. Williams made no bones over the fact electric service rates are going to continue to rise, although he indicated they have risen far less than the average reader. However, he said, coal fired plant construction are not allowed to be charged into the rates until they are in service. Plant costs are rising astronomically, he said, even if inflation and cost escalations stopped today, as they as a matter of course, rates would have to go up to cover the higher cost of new plants, rather than the old.

Even the early 1980's plants cost slightly over $500 per kw. Today they're in the $700 range, and future plants are estimated at $760 he said.

Nationalization, he said, Albertans are assured of more stability in load since than most Canadians, because of large, low cost coal reserves, and because of consumer protection afforded by the Public Utilities Board, and the Energy Resources Conservation Board, with its emphasis on environmental control facilities.

Mr. Williams briefly traced the company's history in this area, dating back to its first franchise in Camrose in 1908, with rapidly increasing demand in the 1920's and 1930's. This was highlighted in 1956, he said, when the load in Camrose grew by 14.7 percent, almost three times higher than the system as a whole.

Two thirds of the electricity in the province is supplied by Calgary Power, he pointed out. The company has no control over demand, he said, and must always be ready to meet anticipated peak load at time. In this respect, he said, the need for power is expected to double by 1984, and to quadruple by 1988. Pointing out it can take as much as ten to twelve years to put a new plant in operation, he commented there is a real risk in trying to load twelve years down the road.

Ninety per cent of the company's production is coal-fired thermal power, he said, and this percentage will likely increase. Economic hydro sites are too far from load centres. Costs preclude nuclear power until the late '80's, and efficient solar or wind power seems to 20 or 30 years down the road.

He lauded the company for its decision, more than twenty years ago, to lease their planning on coal, rather than on oil or gas, as many others were working on. The wisdom was verified by the Alberta government in its recent policy of coal for power generation, gas and oil for the petrochemical industry. Not only that, said Mr. Williams, but customers were today benefitting tremendously from this decision. Coal purchased in 1976 for $5.00 per ton in addition to being used today for generating and disposal of three cents a ton in costs, by the ERCB.

Environmental protection programs take about 20 cents out of each dollar spent on new plants, said Mr. Williams, and current estimates are that in five years time the company will have to spend about $400 million per year just to keep up.

Mr. Williams stressed the fact the money would have to come from investors, partly by way of increased investment, partly by way of mortgage placed back in. The company is very widely held, he said, suggesting that many of those present were beneficiaries, either directly, or through insurance policies, pension plans or mutual funds.

The largest block of shares, as declared, which in less than five percent of the total, is owned by a Western Canadian investment fund. Most of the remainder is held throughout the entire country, stated the president, adding that the average holding is 300 shares.

NOTICE TO SNOWMOBILE OWNERS

Please be advised that the Village of Ryley has passed a By-law governing the operation and hour of travel for off-highway vehicles within the Village.

Designated lands and speed limits are in force for the operation of such vehicles and lanes are provided for use to such areas.

THE MAXIMUM SPEED LIMIT HAS BEEN SET AT 15 MILES PER HOUR AND TRAFFIC OPERATION IS DESIGNATED BETWEEN THE HOURS OF 9:00 A.M. to 10:30 P.M.

Owners of snowmobiles who do not observe these rules will be prosecuted and if further complaints are received, then the Village Council will repeal the existing by-law and the operations of off-highway vehicles will have to be loaded and transported in or out of the village limits and follow the rules as set down by the Highway Traffic Act.

The Village Council are very sorry to have to take this measure at this time, but due to complaints received you can see that they intend to follow up their rights in enforcing the measures that are necessary for the protection the citizens are needing.

Raymond C. Hovland,
Secretary-Treasurer

Mrs. O. Orbeck is back home after her stay in the hospital.

Mrs. Alma Adams and Mrs. Olga Rashleigh are hospital patients.

Mrs. J. Lehman accompanied her son George and grandson Darren to Edmonton and Courtenay, B.C. on Dec. 26th to spend Christmas with David and Joyce Wahl and family and Mary Sickle and family, returning home Dec. 30th.

The young folks are enjoying the swimming pool again after the holidays.

On January 6th, Dan O'Brien recorded his second shutout of the season when the Flyers blanked Smoky Lake 8-0. Pat Stadon got his first hat-trick of the year. On Thursday, in a penalty-filled game, Ryley again became victors over Mundare 10-5. Russ Shandro lead the scoring with four goals for Ryley. The Ryley victory gave the Flyers 10 wins in a row.

The next game is against Andrew tonight (Thursday) followed by the game to decide the league leader on Saturday against La Mont.

GRAIN PROTEIN ALKALIS

Current prices for processed alkalis products in Alberta will probably prevail throughout the winter because of limited supplies in the province, in Western Canada and in the United States.

Don Macyk, marketing economist with Alberta Agriculture, reports that dehydrated alkalis prices at most Alberta plants have been in the $80 to $85 per ton range since mid-summer. "Increased pulses" he says, "have ranged from $70 to $85 per ton, while Sun-cured cubes have been trading between $87 and $91 per ton during most of the present crop year." However, some blended alkalis cubes have been selling for $4 to $5 less.

During the 1976-77 crop year production of all processed alkalis in Alberta totalled approximately 115,000 tons with around 18,000 tons, or slightly more, sun-cured alkalis still in the processing line. Figures add up to 16,000 tons more processed alkalis than were produced during the 1974-75 crop year.

Dehydrated alkalis is useful in a ration as a high protein supplement and as providing some roughage, with most alkalis cubes now being sold at a guaranteed 18 percent protein content. Our nearest alkalis processing plants are at Smoky Lake and Mallaig.

Please note that the deadline for making applications for the Crop Cash Support Program has been extended to January 31, 1977.

IRON BACTERIA AND FOOD WELL

If you have been noticing reddish-brown slimy sediments and reddish-brown stains resulting from your well water, you probably have iron and or iron bacteria in your well systems. An easy way to determine if your iron problem is caused by iron bacteria is to look inside your toilet tank. If there is a slimy red deposit inside the tank, you have iron bacteria.

The recommended method for controlling iron bacteria is to pour three to five gallons of chlorine bleach, the type you buy for laundering, in 50-100 gallons of water and put the mixture directly into the well and pump some of it through the complete water system. Leave this mixture in the well and the complete water system for at least twelve hours. After the twelve hours has passed then flush out the well and running the taps until the chlorine smell has disappeared.

The recommended chlorine method will not solve the problem permanently but it does at least some-annually will usually keep the bacteria in check and save you a lot of problems with plugged filters, rusty pipe spots and stains.

If you think you have this problem but still feel unsure or don't completely understand the chlorine treatment system please either

Around the town

Minor sports in Tofield are $136.00 richer due to the contributors to the Community Christmas Card, reports J B Hargan who accepted the donations and displayed the card in the window of the Co-op store during the Christmas season.

Mrs McRoberts of Edmonton is spending a few days in Tofield visiting her daughter Mrs. John Moore and family.

Born to Mr and Mrs. Douglas Kaufman, a son, Tyrrie Dale, on December 31st, in the Tofield Hospital.

Mrs Mary Rempel and family enjoyed a visit from their nephew and cousin, Peter Bergman of Novosibirsh, Siberia, USSR. He was accompanied by his aunt, Mrs. Margaret Bors of Cooksha.

Jon Kaliel visited with Toby and Melissa Nemeskey over the Misty Kaliel over the weekend.

Emile Valentine Gosbutt, formerly of Tofield, passed away on December 31 at the age of 84 years. He was predeceased by his wife, Pauline in 1955.

He is survived by his wife, Georgina, two daughters, Martha Tendaumm of Tofield and Adelle Gosnell of Edmonton, four sons, Robert of Drayton Valley, Leon and Victor of Tofield and Armand of Ryley, nine grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren. Funeral services were held on January 3rd in Andrews-McLaughlin Chapel with Rev. G Lassondo officiating. Cremation followed.

Mr and Mrs Lad Lysik of Palmer-Earling, Helena and Ryshmer Hjaltar of Tofield and Mr. and Mrs. Andro Mesaar of Edmonton were guests at the Lyle Olstads in Tofield on January 1st.

Board meeting is very quiet

There was very little business conducted at the final meeting for 1976 of the Beaver Regional Recreation and Parks Board.

The reports of the administrative George Hunter and program supervisor Val Charteris were accepted and Miss Charteris was given permission to attend a conference in Reno, Nevada

A request from the Gladstone Curling Club for a grant was turned down as it is in the County of Camrose

There were no committee reports presented while other items on the agenda from previous meetings were either not on this agenda or were deferred to the January meeting.

Tofield, Holden, Ryley and Bruce, along with the county, were the only areas represented at the meeting.

Information for this news item was obtained from the unapproved minutes of the meeting which was held on December 16th.

Six scouts to attend Jamboree

Six scouts from the 1st Tofield Scout Troop will attend the eight-day Canada Jamboree in Prince Edward Island in July.

The names of those attending are Terry Gaisan, Jason Ferguson, Duncan Fairbrother, Dean Berrisch, Patrick Hallonquist and Larry Hallonquist under the leadership of Scoutmaster, Dick Thomas.

The boys are being encouraged to supply as much of their own fare of $280.00 as possible. If any residents of the area have any odd jobs to be done to enable these boys to earn some money, please contact them at this phone number: D Hallonquist - 662-3282.

On January 29, 30 and 31, the Troop will attend a winter camp at Stettler. They will participate in many winter sports and indoor sports such as volleyball, archery and many others.

The Scouts have arranged for a permanent paper drop in the back part of the bakery. This is open all day on the weekdays and Saturday if any pickups are required by senior citizens, please call 662-3282. Please tie the papers in bundles for easier handling.

Ryley cracks the whip on snowmobile speeders

Village of Ryley Council has decided to take action against snowmobile operators who speed in the village.

At a regular meeting, council authorized the advertising of a by-law which had been passed in 1972 which permitted snowmobiles to be operated only in certain lanes for the purpose of entering or leaving the village.

Council determined that if operators did not obey the by-law, it would be repealed which would mean that snowmobile owners would have to transport their vehicles to and from the village and would not be permitted to operate them within the village limits.

The secretary treasurer was authorized to turn over the necessary information to the village solicitor so that enactments might be obtained for the proposed drainage ditch project.

Councillor Brown reported on the activities of a committee representing various Taxing Authorities which was reviewing the Beaver Regional Recreation and Parks operations.

Brown told council that one of the recommendations from the committee was that the number of members of the Recreation and Parks Board be reduced from fifteen to eight and that all should come from the five Taxing Authorities only.

After some discussion, council passed a motion in favour of the committee's recommendation.

Because of his involvement as Director of the Regional Recreation and Parks Department, Mayor Baker abstained from any discussion on the subject and did not vote on the motion.

Council set a date of March 25th for the tax sale and placed reserve bids on the properties listed for sale, in accordance with the Tax Recovery Act.

Councillor Taylor was authorized to attend a crash course on Alberta Planning Law at the University of Alberta in February. Councillor Taylor, or Mayor Baker was then authorized to attend a seminar on Issues of Local Government to be held at the U of A.

The town foreman and Councillor Brown were authorized to proceed with the installation of a Tube Module in the water treatment plant on an experimental basis. Cost of the project was estimated to be about $600, by the village's engineers.

Accounts presented for payment were approved by council.

It was decided that the next regular meeting of council would be held on February 14 at 7:30 p.m.

Information for this news story was taken from the unapproved minutes of committee's meeting held on January 10th.

Zone curling playoffs

Four Zone curling championships were decided over the past weekend during playoff bonspiels in Daysland and Sedgewick.

Camrose, Bawlf, Sedgewick and Viking had the winning teams who will now advance to the Northern Alberta playoffs, to be held in different locales.

Two more Zone titles will be decided during the coming weekend as the schoolboys will play in Tofield while senior men's championships will be held in Daysland.

Ladies

Donna Shantz of Camrose had to rebound from the 'B' Event to win the Zone crown as she had lost in her second outing.

Shantz started off by edging Koshli of Daysland 8-5 and then was edged herself by Schaefer of Daysland by a score of 9-8. Shantz took the 'B' title by whipping Koshli 9-4.

In the finals, Shantz walloped Schaefer 13-5 and took the crown by winning a close 8-7 victory.

Members of the winning team are Donna Shantz, Mary Shields, Helen Sunderman and Faye Beasley. They now advance to the Northern Alberta playdowns in Westlock on the weekend of January 28th.

Schaefer had won her first game over Lashusky of Camrose 13-5 before playing Shantz in three straight games.

Senior Ladies

Mary Simons of Sedgewick had an easy time in gaining a Zone crown as there were no other rinks entered.

Simons goes to the Northern Alberta finals in Lacombe this coming weekend. Other members of the rink are Marg Kabaar, Ruth Eriksson and Frank Frericks.

Schoolboys

Barb Jacobson from Bawlf won the A Event and went on to take the Zone crown after taking a loss in the A-B finals.

Jacobson won her first two games as she whipped Harrison 16-3 and doubled Nikiforuk 13-6 only to have Harrison come back to edge Nikiforuk 12-6 to take the B side and then score an upset 8-7 win to force a deciding game.

In the clincher Jacobson proved too strong as she posted a 9-5 victory to grab the crown and a berth in the Northern Alberta finals in Edmonton on February 11-13.

Men

It was an all-Viking final in the men's bonspiel at Sedgewick over the weekend as 16 teams gathered to battle for the title.

Maxwell had won the 'A' Event while Debry was forced to bounce back and take the B Event to meet Maxwell in the finals.

Cam Maxwell edged Doug Debry 5-4 in the finals to win a berth in the Northern Alberta finals.

4-H'ers enjoy swim

The Ryley-Holden 4-H Horse Club started off its last meeting by going for a swim.

Members met at the Ryley Swimming Pool and after an hour of enjoying the indoor pool, moved over to the Ryley School for a regular business meeting.

Linda MacKay presided over the meeting in the absence of Lorna Grimis and Grace Albrecht who were attending a District 6-H Council meeting.

Impromptu speaking was practiced. The club was told that Bert Kirkland had donated $10 to the group for club purposes.

The next meeting will be held at Ron Hisey's farm at Ryley on Tuesday, starting at 7:30 p.m. Members are asked to bring their record books.

Skate-a-thon nearly ready

Plans are proceeding for the big skate-a-thon which will be held in the Tofield Arena on Saturday and Sunday, January 29 and 30.

The skate-a-thon is being held by the Tofield Skating Club to raise money to help some of the expenses of operating the arena. Money will be used to pay for repairs to the [illegible] and [illegible] completion of an Arts and Crafts addition to the building.

Everyone may take part in the skate-a-thon. Skaters are [illegible] to get as many people as possible to [illegible] for each minute skated. Forms are available at Tofield Sports Shop.

Various businesses in Tofield have banded together to offer prizes to the skaters who raise the most money. The biggest prizes are vouchers for $40.

The club is asking everyone who is not skating to assist by sponsoring one or more of the skaters.

Scouters' district council meets

William Thomas Fennell met at Tofield on Jan. 16th with a rather poor turnout [illegible] Minister Channel Se meeting. Mrs. Harvey Olson of Fernlush continues to fill in [illegible] secretary. Larry Johnson [illegible] Lester from Camrose was present to discuss scouting in [illegible].

Some highlights from group activities are outlined as follows: Ha Lakes Beavers provided entertainment for senior citizens at the Senior Citizens Home. The Scouts besides having had an outdoor camp, are planning a visit from Camrose City Police with information on drug [illegible].

Kingman has had a talk by Camrose Fire Chief Alfred Sunderman and are planning to do something to involve senior citizens in their repair Christmas parties, sleigh rides etc. and Tofield Scouts are planning a film [illegible].

Scouters are asked to note that Cub and Scout Training session No. 2 will take place in New Norway on Feb. 12th.

If there are still some boys not registered for P. E. I Jamboree, registrations must go immediately. There are about 28 boys going from Wildrose.

Boy Scout Week is soon upon us as is our annual banquet meeting, to be held this year in Ryley Hall on Feb. 11th, beginning at 6:30 p.m. Tickets for the banquet must be purchased by Feb. 4th. See your local group committee for tickets.

For this banquet, each group is invited to make a display wall hanging, table display, whatever. If your group has Beavers, Cubs, and Scouts all should be represented in the display. A first prize of camping equipment to the value of $50 and a second prize of the value of $30 will be awarded for the outstanding displays. The judging will be done at the banquet. Council then asks that the groups use their displays in their own areas for Scout Week Feb 20th to 27th. This is the 70th anniversary for Scouting so perhaps this could be the theme.

The Scout Regional Office in Red Deer is suffering cramps from lack of space. An effort is being made to raise some building funds. The Kinsmen of Red Deer are willing to give their TV auction to the Scout association if there is enough interest.

If you are the individual of a business, [illegible] Association in Bashaw who would be interested in [illegible] please contact the group [illegible] nearest you as soon as possible. Mr. Burke must also know how much interest there is by Feb. 4th.

District Commissioner Jules Hall met in Bashaw with people interested in scouting. Prospects are good that we will again have Bashaw represented in Wildrose. The Bashaw Ministerial Association has undertaken the sponsorship.

Pool closes

The swimming pool in Ryley is going to be closed down at the first of next month for a temporary period of time.

There are two reasons for the closure. One reason is that there is a shortage of staff to keep the pool operating while the other reason is that it is time for the pool to have its first annual clean-up.

A re-opening date will be announced by officials of the Ryley Agricultural Society. Any questions may be answered by contacting 663-3343.

The pool will close on January 31st.

O. Hagen heads Sunshine Club

by Clara Lehman

The annual meeting of the Ryley Sunshine Club was held on Jan. 12th, in the Ryley Community Hall.

After hearing reports from the various officers and committees, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: president, Ole Hagen; treasurer, Clara Nelson; secretary, Berghild Sundlie; 1st vice-president, Jergen Davick, 2nd vice-president, Bert Kirkelund.

Three directors were elected: Nora Flasher, Wm. Wasson and [illegible]

One of the chief projects of the club at [illegible] has been a "home" of their own, per[illegible] a drop-in centre for [illegible].

A building committee to handle [illegible] was elected consisting of Ole Hagen, Clara Nelson, Les Wilson, Jergen Davick and Sig [illegible].

Collidge edjacashun?

We found it fascinating last year when the relative shortage of energy was first observed in Alberta to see how it helps to have a university education.

The growing problem, and the need for conservation, prompted the landlords of several large buildings, such as the university and government centres, to make a study of possible savings which might be attained on their premises.

And some of the university people made the profound discovery that when you switch the lights off you save energy. And also money.

Astonishing! What will they think of next? It's easy to see the benefits of a collidge edjacashun when it comes to things practical like this, simply turn off unused lights and you save.

The research team last year discovered that if the lights were left off at night in many of these buildings, there could be substantial energy reductions. They also found it isn't necessary to leave the air conditioning equipment running late at night, in order to be comfortable during the day, nor on week-ends, or during the winter months.

Of course, it must be admitted that not all the energy saved by turning off the lights was a complete saving, since some of the heat generated by the bulbs had to be made up by more conventional fuel. In some instances the lights are engineered into the total heating system of the building However, the heat gained from electricity used for lighting is of pretty low efficiency, so the switch to other fuels for heating would save money, while using a great deal less total energy.

Now the research teams are back on the job, and have come up with some more interesting information The Board of Governors of the University of Alberta was recently told by the physical plant's energy management office their long-term objective is to reduce the annual energy use of energy on the campus by one third. Using 1976 costs, this would represent an annual saving of $1,718,000, they thought.

One fairly simple stratagem which was instituted about three years ago involves control of energy to the car plug-ins at parking areas on campus. At six out of sixteen parking lots on campus, the flow of electricity to plug-ins is automatically interrupted when the outside temperature rises above minus ten degrees. On two other major lots, current is automatically switched from one lot to the other every half hour, or in other words, consumption is cut in half.

While all of these devices save energy, not all save money, or as much as expected. In the first place, there is the cost of installing all the new automatic controls, and they're not cheap. In the second place, those units controlled by temperature still draw heavily when the temperature drops, and this is when the power company faces its heaviest demand. Loaded with the responsibility of meeting this period of heavy demand, however short, the rates have to be based on peak situations, so it doesn't automatically follow that saving thirty percent of energy use will save thirty percent on the bills.

The amazing thing is that it took an energy shortage before anyone in positions of responsibility seems to have realized the huge potential in energy, and in dollars, which was simply going "up the spout" in so many publicly-owned buildings. It's amazing to think how much further costs might be reduced if there were something (like ten percent) to be gained by the users, instead of just charging it all back to the taxpayers

Trouble is, so few of those taxpayers would understand . . . not being blessed with a collidge edjacashun

No wonder

It's little wonder Western Canadians feel shafted by the government in Central Canada. Only a few days ago, Ottawa imposed controls on importation of fabrics, in an effort to save the doomed textile industry of Quebec.

Yet a few days earlier, the government-owned airline, Air Canada, announced it had let a beef contract, specifying that the beef must come from Australia and New Zealand

Like the textile industry, cattlemen have been trying to limit the amount of beef coming into Canada, especially since prices here are at such a distress level for the producer But prices in the other countries are at an even lower level, because of worse over-production in their own countries. That they should try to export as much as possible, even at sacrifice prices, is understandable But that our own government, or a government-owned corporation, should so treat a Canadian industry seems hard to comprehend

Probably what it amounts to is that there are more consumer voters interested in low prices, than there are producer voters, interested in prices that make it worthwhile staying in the business

Even in our own area, we understand contracts have been let for the cheap imported beef by large institutions with many meals to serve But surely it does seem incongruous for groups like these to turn to the very farmers they're bypassing, when it comes time for financial support and fund-raising drives

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA — (SP) — I have a friend who uses every January as a month of self control and introspection to prepare himself for the problems and challenges of the year ahead He has many social obligations connected with work, and must in consequence face several cocktail parties weekly, mixing social and business life on the modern treadmill

You'd find him at the parties in January with a glass of orange juice or plain soda water From midnight Dec 31 to midnight Jan 31, he never takes a drink It makes him more of an observer than a participant for that first month of the year, and he thinks and his goals for the coming year

Something could be said for the same approach in the nation's business, politics, and the reporting of politics I don't mean that swearing off booze for the month by all pundits, politicians, and govern ment officials would solve our problems. but I do mean that there should be a period of constructive introspection in the corridors of power and in the observation galleries

The government certainly does its best to help us a' ng that course by recessing Parliament over the holiday season Once the mustician has been removed from the front hall chandelier and the last egg-nog cup washed and stored, governmental politicians and officials get down to planning the legislative campaign which will keep Parliament busy until spring or summer

There's usually a budget to prepare, which requires some hard-headed assessment of the economic state-of-the-nation, and the pruning of programs desired by various ministers to fit the spending potential of government

This year the whole system is affected by the uncertainty of what the new government in Quebec will do. Rene Levesque has promised that he will do nothing more, initially, than attempt to run a competent, honest, administration, with a variety of overdue social programs.

The temptations may be there in federal circles to anticipate trouble and act accordingly and that would be a mistake Given the Prime Minister's determination not to negotiate any form of separation with any province, January is a time when federal politicians and officials should sip orange juice or soda water, and observe, planning future actions in cool deliberation

Letters

Following is a copy of a letter sent to Mr. and Mrs F. Earl of Ryley, written by Barbara Houghton, who many might remember as one of the members of the group that left Ontario to travel by horse seeking homesteads in the west.

January 11, 1977

Hi Folks!

Thank you kindly for the picture it's great. Another one to fill a gap in my album

The entire trip was truly a wonderful thanks to all that warm western hospitality we received!

We remember Ryley with fond memories The horses loved your water and we love the reception! The meal wasn't bad either!

We still have the team and wagon We heard them on the outskirts of the city We even hitch them up on weekends just to keep our hand in. They're living a life of leisure and they deserve it! My new project is to write a book on our trip Another challenge to keep me thanking and busy!

Thanks again for everything!

Sincerely
Jon, Barb, John Sr

Final wheat payment on basis of $3.98 bu.

Final payments involving the distribution of over $222 million to Prairie grain producers for their deliveries of wheat, oats and barley in the 1975-76 crop year were announced Friday by the Canadian Wheat Board

The final payments amount to 23 67 cents per bushel for No 1 Canada Western Red Spring wheat, 46 97 cents per bushel for No 1 Amber Durum wheat, 51 56 cents per bushel for No 3 C W oats, 47 42 cents per bushel for No 1 Feed oats $1 53 per bushel for No 3 C W Six-Row barley, 38 56 cents per bushel for No 1 Feed barley, and $1 55 per bushel for No. 2 C W Six-Row Designated (Selected) barley

In making this announcement, the Wheat Board emphasized that the final payments are not payments made by the federal government, but represent the balance still owing to farmers from the sale of their grain by the Wheat Board. The final payments are in addition to the initial price farmers received for their grain at the time of delivery

The final payment of 23 67 cents per bushel on No 1 Canada Western Red Spring wheat, together with the initial payment of $3 75 per bushel, gives farmers a total return of over $3 98 per bushel for this grade of wheat, basis Thunder Bay or Vancouver On the same basis, the total return for No 1 Amber Durum will be $4 71 per bushel, for No. 1 Feed oats, $1.62 per bushel, for No 1 Feed barley, $2 36 per bushel, and for Designated (Selected) barley the total return will be $3 56 per bushel for No 3 C W Six-Row and $3 40 per bushel for No 1 Feed

The gross value of the 1975-76 final payments over $222 million, is lower than the $267 million distributed to grain producers as the final payment for the 1974-75 crop year However, the 1975-76 final payment, together with the higher initial prices received at the time of delivery, will give producers the third highest cash return per bushel on record

On a regional basis, the 1975-76 final payment involves the distribution of about $153.5 million to farmers in Central Manitoba, $76 million to farmers in Alberta and the Peace River area of British Columbia, and $27.5 million to Saskatchewan.

Mailing of the final payment cheques to farmers will begin January 19 and continue through February 14. Over 317,000 cheques are involved in the 1975-76 final payment Separate cheques will be mailed for deliveries of wheat, oats, barley and Designated (Selected) barley.

In line with changes in the Canadian Wheat Board Act, allowing the establishment of a separate Pool Account for barley selected direct from producers ("Designated"), Prairie producers for the first time will receive separate payments on their deliveries of Selected barley in 1975.

Kingman woman dies in England

Memorial services will be held for the late Mary Fleming of Kingman in Borgaz's Memorial Chapel at 3 p.m., Friday, January 21.

Mrs. Fleming died in England while she and her husband, Ross, together with their daughter Wendy and her husband, Don Pewar, of New Norway were on holiday.

Born August 19, 1923 in England, she was serving in the Women's Division of the Royal Air Force when she met and married Ross Fleming, moving to Kingman with him on her discharge.

The family had returned to England for a visit, and were boarding a train, when Mrs. Fleming suddenly collapsed in the doorway, half on, half off the train, and was dead instantly. She was 53

She is survived by her husband, Ross; two sons, Phill and Allan, of Leduc; three daughters, Mrs. Pewar, Laurie, Camrose and Cindy at home; three grandchildren; a sister and a brother, both in England.

The memorial service will be conducted by the Rev. B.F. Osborne.

No committal will be held here, as remains were cremated in England. Friends wishing to give memorials are asked to select a charity of their own choice

Workshop lost in farm fire

Fire completely destroyed a farm workshop and all contents, with an estimated total loss of about $6,000, on Saturday afternoon EvrDale Dairy Farm two miles northeast of Hay Lakes Owners are E.J. and Dale Zemlak

The fire started about 4 p.m. when no one was home, and by the time a call was made to the Hay Lakes Fire Department, who went to the scene, it was too late to save the wood frame building and all the farm tools it contained Several grassfires adjacent to the building were saved, however

The entire loss was only partly covered by insurance Possibly adding to the misfortune of the situation is the fact that in 1971 the Zemlaks had lost all their tools from that workshop by theft, and had just recently completed replacing all of them.

Mazankowski compares Canada and U.S.

It is several weeks since Member of Parliament for Vegreville Constituency, Don Mazankowski visited the United States as part of a group of Canadian Parliamentarians comparing and contrasting government of the two countries. Parts of his observations have been printed here in earlier issues. This is the third article he has prepared in this connection.

by Hon. The Right Honourable
(Part 3)
Canada - U.S. Relations

The many discussions and meetings which were held with our U.S counterparts were highly productive and enlightening. In almost every instance our experiences will aid us in meeting the daily tasks which we encounter in the constituency - in the House of Commons and throughout the nation.

American election techniques, for all intents and purposes, are very similar to ours. However, the heavy reliance on polling, and the sophistication of polling techniques, are obviously more advanced than what we employ I must say, I have mixed reaction about the increasing dependency on polls as I believe it tends to impede strong leadership in political campaigns.

Our visit allowed us to observe the application of their new election laws, the administration and the policing, something which we will be associated with in the next general election. For all the pitfalls of Watergate, obviously it had the effect of bringing basic reform to the electoral process and the establishment of rules which limit the amount of money spent on campaigns Strict disclosure, and limitation of campaign contributions are key to the new election laws. For example, when I purchased a $2 T-shirt from a Congressman's campaign headquarters in Chicago I was handed a declare my name, address and occupation. The law, however, is not quite that harsh, it calls only for the identification of every person who makes a contribution in excess of $5.

Our law in Canada calls for disclosure of every person who contributes in excess of $100 in any given year Whatever may be said about the U.S law; from appearances it is tough and, from our observations, rigidly administered by a Federal Election Commission Furthermore, all records are totally accessible to the public without any questions asked.

An area in which our discussions proved to be most helpful was that of Canada - U.S relations In addition to gaining a broader insight into the problem areas of our two countries, it allowed us to establish contacts with elected representatives and bureaucrats in the various departments This will be of immense value in maintaining exchanges of information and ongoing communication as a one-to-one basis

There can be no doubt that, over the past few years, issues between our two countries have emerged which have tested our relations The tar sands have been the subject of interest by individual Senators and Congressmen Our discussions took place with representatives of the State Department and with Congressmen, supported by a detailed summary of the issues Currently, I believe the most burning question concerns the move by the Saskatchewan Government to nationalize the potash industry in that province The widespread concern is fundamental in like future security of U.S investment in Canada

Coupled with this, the statements of our Prime Minister last December, about the prospect of greater government intervention and control of the Canadian economy, has resulted in the American investor being somewhat apprehensive, to say the least. As a corollary, the same attitude appears to prevail amongst Canadian investors inasmuch as we now witness a net outflow of investment capital from our country

There are other issues which dominate the list of irritants. The Time-Readers Digest fiasco and the 85 per cent content rule - - the determination of tax deductions for Canadian advertisers in ownership of U.S. cable TV and certain U.S. publications - - bilingual labelling - - energy policy, the fact that the Canadian Government unilaterally altered long-term natural gas contracts and the impact of current petroleum policy upon the northeast region of the United States. In addition, a number of transboundary issues have emerged which will have to be bilaterally solved, particularly in reference to extension of the 200 mile control limit which both countries will soon adopt.

In principle, much of the tension can be traced back to a deliberate policy of the Canadian Government to deemphasize our economic, social and cultural relationship with the United States and, indeed, to establish a distinct and separate identity. This is witnessed by our decision to intensify our trading patterns with the European Economic Community and the Pacific Rim countries This is also confirmed by actions to encourage greater Canadian content in what we read, hear and see in a cultural sense. Canada and the U.S. have maintained a rather special relationship politically and economically, particularly since the second World War We have become the largest trading partners in the world. In 1975, for example, this amounted to some $64 billion with a $2.5 billion trade balance in favour of the U.S. This has resulted in a heavy investment of the two economies and a major interdependence upon trade and commerce.

While the U.S. appears to accept and understand Canada's new policy objectives, it has stressed the importance of consultation and negotiation on matters which affect the two countries. Consultation, of course, is a two-way street. Examples show that both countries have acted unilaterally resulting in the exchange of verbal and economic brickbats. The best known restriction by the U.S., is the oil import quota.

While most Canadians will

Behind the Seams
BY PEGGY BENDEL

Q. How can I make clothes easy to put on and take off for my young children? It would be great if they could dress themselves for school each morning.

A Many patterns in children's sizes incorporate features meant for their convenience When patterns do not include the following features, you can easily adapt the pattern to help your children dress themselves

Front closings are preferable to back closings Zippers at center fronts are the easiest for small fingers to manage especially if you've used a bold, big zipper or stitched a large decorative zipper pull Avoid small separating zippers — use the bulky zippers if a separating zipper is needed

For buttoned closings, use large buttons and buttonholes Velcro nylon hook and loop tape makes a sensible alternative Snapper snaps are another manageable alternative

Sometimes you can omit closings entirely Pull-on shirts and pants with elastic waistbands, and pullover tops and shirts with elasticized necklines or make from stretchy knits illustrate the idea On the inside of garments like these, underwear can nearly fall backs with a few stitches of colored thread to avoid confusion

For practical outerwear consider ponchos and capes for the girls These can be made in slipover styles, perhaps in a water shedding poplin or cire for rainy days If you make coats with hoods for your children, the need for a separate head covering is eliminated.

Q. I'm making shirts for my sons. Please help me figure out how to make those flat felled seams.

A The flat felled seam is the traditional seam used on shirts men and boys. It takes a little longer to sew, but it gives a durable finish and hides all the raw edges

The flat felled seam is stitched twice The initial stitching is a straight seam, on the seamline The seam allowances are pressed to one side; the bottom seam allowance trimmed to ¼", and the top seam allowance folded under ¼" This folded edge, which is the fell, is then stitched to the garment Since the fell overlaps the trimmed seam allowance, all raw edges are hidden

The directions the seams are felled is important On a shirt, this is done in a prescribed way Unlike other applications of the flat felled seam, the initial stitching is done on the inside of the garment On the sleeve and side seams, the f laps toward the back of the shirt Fell shoulder seams toward the front, and fell the armhole seams away from the sleeve

Q. Recently I covered some foam cushions, but the covers don't fit smoothly. They shift and wrinkle. Where did I go wrong?

A When covering foam cushion forms, fit the cover snugly As a rule of thumb, make the finished cover at least ½" shy on all dimensions The foam stuffing will compress and fill the decorative outer cover beautifully

You're invited to pose your sewing questions to BEHIND THE SEAMS, c/o this newspaper. Every letter will be answered, and those of general interest will be published in a future edition.

Tomatoes for the sub-Arctic

Genetic manipulation involving 8 years of work has produced tomato varieties that yield up to 14,000 pounds of ripe fruit per acre in the sub-Arctic.

The results from Agriculture Canada's Beaverlodge, Alta., Research Station prove there is enough genetic variability in some crops for them to grow in unusual climates.

Poe Pourri

by Lorraine Poulsen

Someplace I lost a day and Bob blames that loss on the coffee table

Sunday was Sunday and I knew it was Sunday because I drove to town for 8 30 mass

It's Monday I am massing

I woke Tuesday convinced that it was Monday and didn t worry about preparing a column for this week's paper

[illegible] Then Easter dim dimmed to collect the columns until Tuesday

About three weeks ago I decided to build myself a coffee table for the living room I had looked in the stores for the type of coffee table I wan ted but couldn t find one ,

"Bob where you go to town will you buy me cedar blocks and some kind of nice wood for the top of the table "

Lorraine you can't BUILD a coffee table Keep looking in the stores. you'll find one you like

I looked and I can't Listen, buy the boards and let me worry about who can't or can [illegible]

I was Bob returned with four cedar blocks and neatly cut pine boards

I really wouldn t have been upset at all had Bob not offered to help nail the table together or had he refused to apply the glue while I held the table top in place True, it would have been tricky doing it by myself and I appreciated his help

This weekend I decided it was time to put the finishing [illegible]

Saturday I remember well That was the day I sanded Sunday I also remember because that was the day I stained, varnished sanded and varnished again the almost complete coffee table

Monday must have been the day I whipped through the house doing the Saturday house-cleaning, Saturday's laundry and cooking dinner

That's the only way I can figure it, because today is Tuesday and Dan Barr is here waiting for this column The coffee table is finished, I know I ate Sunday dinner and Satur day's cleaning is done

Maybe the table is to blame If so, I have the only coffee table around that cost $16 65 and one day

It was worth it

THE GREAT GET AWAY

January 18, 1977

Some of you lucky people are no doubt planning a holiday somewhere warmer than Alberta is right now One of the things that concerns the traveller is what to pack

When you start to plan your holiday wardrobe, first consider what activities you may encounter Plan one outfit for each activity Try to choose multipurpose outfits Coordinates are a great choice A jacket that can be worn with several shirts, pants, shorts and dresses is invaluable If you have to carry your luggage often, try to limit your luggage to an amount you can manage Remember you will want to leave some space for things you purchase

Choose a color you like and that flatters you and build your wardrobe around this color Knit fabrics are a good choice for comfort and easy care They don't wrinkle or crease and maintain a good appearance during wear If you are going to a very humid climate, remember that natural fibers (cotton, linen, wool, silk) are more comfortable than synthetics as they absorb moisture Also consider what care your clothes will require and what facilities for laundering will be available

It is a good rule to wear anything you plan to take on your holiday at least once before you pack it This ensures that it is comfortable and fits well

Don't forget accessories like jewellry or scarves They can brighten up and change your wardrobe without taking up a lot of space Shoes take up space so try to select a color that will go with most outfits Remember to include a comfortable pair of walking shoes

I find it is a good idea to make a list of the items you need to pack Do this at least a week ahead of time so you can add items as you think of them

If you pack half the clothes and twice the money you think you'll need, it will probably come out right!

generally support the thrust of establishing more firmly our own identity and the control of our own destiny in terms of our relations with the United States, there are two assumptions which have to be [illegible]

First, it is assumed that closer economic integration between the United States and Canada results in greater integration in other areas, i.e culturally, socially and politically. Further, it is assumed that the U.S would always dominate the process. Frankly I, for one, do not necessarily accept that assumption Secondly, there is an assumption that the policies aimed at overriding natural market forces will not result in significant costs to the Canadian economy and if they do Canadians will be prepared to accept these costs This assumption, as far as I am concerned, is a high inflationary period and escalating domestic costs, is not easily accepted. I believe that while we have the potential to expand our markets throughout the world, we should certainly not overlook the challenge in redressing the imbalance of trade which we have with the U S They, after all, are still our natural trading partner, our natural ally and our best neighbour

Have you enjoyed the books "Peggy's Wife" and "Peggy's Daughter" by Irene Kelly Benn? Then you will also delight to read

"Then There Grew Up A Generation" by the same author. The young eager preacher faces not only an apathetic and sophisticated new community and his own family's crisis of spirit but finally his own deep commitment to God

For a book with a different emphasis read "For Such a Time as This", by Vonette Zachary Bright. It is a book that brings concrete answers to the dilemma women find themselves in today. Whether bogged down by the three dreary plagues of housewifery: dishes, diapers and dust - or confused and disoriented with the emptiness and frustrations of daily life, women are seeking something to make life joyful again, to bring purpose and meaning to each day. To just be happy to be alive

Mrs G. H. Taylor

The regular meeting of Holden Lodge No. 91, Order of the Royal Purple was held January 11th, with W.R.L. Kathleen Harum presiding. District Deputy Lady Frances Overbo of Kinsella attended the meeting for her official inspection of the lodge. Regular business was attended to with correspondence from the Supreme Hon. Royal Lady read a "thank you" letter from the Supreme secretary, treasurer for the donation sent to the Purple Cross Fund. Lady Chapin gave a program report of the Lodge's birthday party, to be held January 31st. This would be the 31st since the Lodge was instituted. Various orders of business were exemplified for purpose of inspection. It was decided that members would visit at Visita Lodge on the evening of January 26th. Lady Helen Bilyk reported that the Sunshine Committee had sent a get-well card to Bert Appleby when he was in the hospital. A cup and saucer had been taken to Lady Ogonoski when she returned home from the hospital with their baby and she had visited with Lad Motimaika. Lalaug sent a card when he was a patient in the Tofield Hospital.

District Deputy Lady Overbo will be gave a satisfactory report of Lodge work. H.R.L. Harum presented her with a gift from the lodge in appreciation. The Lodge closed and lunch was served by the lunch hostesses, Ladies Ethel Fleming and Ethel Brekstad. The next meeting will be held Tuesday February 8th.

The Holden Senior Citizens Group will hold their next meeting on Thursday evening, January 27th.

Mrs. Helen Bilyk drove over to Edmonton on Wednesday of last week entering Dayland General Hospital for surgery. Her son Richard returned home Wednesday from the north where he is employed and is staying with his parents during their mother is hospitalized.

Mrs Florence Finke spent a few days at her daughter's home in Camrose.

Have you enjoyed the books "Peggy's Mile" and "Peggy's Daughter" by Hilma Rene Boon? Then you will also delight to read

"Then There Grew Up A Generation" by the same author. This young, eager preacher faces not only an apathic and sophisticated new community and his own family's crisis of spirit but finally, his own deep commitment to God.

For a book with a different emphasis read "He Sends a Thrill on Their", by Vonette Zachary Bright. It is a book that brings concrete answers to the alarming women find themselves in today. Whether bogged down by the three dreary plagues of housewifery: dishes, diapers and dust, or confused and dissatisfied with the emptiness and frustrations of daily life women are seeking something to make life joyful again, to bring purpose and meaning to each day to just be happy. Holden and district news

Mrs G H Taylor

The regular meeting of Holden Lodge No 91, Order of the Royal Purple was held January 11th, with H R L. Kathleen Harum presiding. District Deputy Lady Frances Overbo of Kinsella attended the meeting for her official inspection of the lodge. Regular business was attended to with correspondence from the Supreme Hon. Royal Lady read a "Thank you" letter from the Supreme secretary-treasurer for the donation sent to the Purple Cross Fund. Lady Chaplin gave a progress report of the Lodge's birthday party, to be held January 31st. This would be the 21st since the Lodge was instituted. Various orders of business were accomplished for purpose of inspection. It was decided that members would visit at Visita Lodge on the evening of January 20th. Lady Helen Bilyk reported that the Benevolence Committee had sent a get-well card to Bert Appleby when he was in the hospital. A cup and saucer had been taken to Lady Ogonoski when she returned home from the hospital with their baby and she had visited with Lad Mielnichuk, taking him a card when he was a patient in the Tofield Hospital.

District Deputy Lady Overbo will be gave a satisfactory report of Lodge work. H.R.L. Harum presented her with a gift from the lodge in appreciation. The Lodge closed and lunch was served by the lunch hostesses, Ladies Ethel Fleming and Ethel Brekstad. The next meeting will be held Tuesday February 8th.

The Holden Senior Citizens Group will hold their next meeting on Thursday evening, January 27th.

Mrs. Helen Bilyk drove over to Daysland on Wednesday afternoon entering Daysland General Hospital for surgery. Her son Richard returned home Wednesday from the north where he is employed and is staying with his sister Audrey while their mother is hospitalized.

Mrs Florence Evans spent a few days last week with friends and attended the funeral of the past week, visiting with her son Len and his wife.

William Ogrodnick was a visitor in Edmonton on Thursday of last week.

Arthur Olson and his mother, Mrs. Carrie Olson, were over from Camrose last Wednesday. Mrs Olson was to the doctor's for a check-up and got a good report. They returned home at 3 in the afternoon in Calgary.

Joan and Tom Bird of Edmonton were visitors for the weekend with his parents, Mr and Mrs. Bruce Bird.

Oscar Afseth, who is on Edmonton taking further treatments at the hospital, was home for the weekend, returning to the hospital at the beginning of the week.

Lad Mielnichuk, a patient in Tofield Hospital after suffering a heart attack, is making very satisfactory progress.

Mr and Mrs. Ken Campbell of Leduc were Tuesday visitors with Marjorie's mother, Mrs. Beth Campbell. Marjorie and Ken are leaving this coming week, with friends from Leduc, to spend a few weeks holidaying in Hawaii.

Will anyone having news of meetings of organizations, church, sports or other events please leave with the correspondent or you can phone before 9:30 a.m. Tuesday mornings. Your co-operation will be appreciated.

The Holden Old Timers Hockey team defeated Willington by the score of 6 to 1 on Sunday at the Holden Complex. So far, they have won two games out of three.

Joe and Stella Kemarsnky, Gordon and Donna Kemarsnky, Greg Kemarsnky and Mrs. Diana Kemarsnky are back from a five-day Pontoon tour around San Diego, also visiting at Disneyland. The tour was from January 11th until January 16th. All reported a very enjoyable trip.

Clare Anderson and Mrs. Frances Hanson were Tuesday afternoon visitors in Tofield.

Bill Goodwin, foreman, customer service.
Take a few moments to make sure your heating system is safe and working properly. Be sure the vent pipes connecting your furnace and gas appliances to the chimney are clear, properly secured and not corroded. Check to insure the chimney is not clogged with debris.
Since a safe, efficient, trouble-free system also uses less energy, you'll be getting all the heat you pay for this winter.

CREATE COMMUNITY JOBS NOW. GET YOUR APPLICATION IN BY FEBRUARY 4TH.

Canada Works
Young Canada Works

The restoration of historical buildings, the construction of a theatre, the organization of an outdoor festival, these are the kinds of projects that could create jobs for young people in your community.

These projects and many more could be undertaken by Young Canada Works, a new job creation program geared Canada Wide to combat high unemployment by providing funds for programs and projects sponsored by private businesses, community groups and community projects.

If you have a project that can provide a minimum of 17 weeks employment for a student resident of your area, talk to your organization's Canada Works

Deadline is now. The deadline for applications is February 4th.

Right now in Canada Manpower Centre has a brochure entitled "Canada Works Guide" to help you. It will tell you about the program and how to apply.

Visit your Canada Manpower Centre today. Come to Manpower here in your community.

This summer Young Canada Works will help reduce student unemployment by creating jobs in your community. The students will work on projects of community benefit that will enable them to test their career aspirations.

Any established organization can submit an application to Young Canada Works.

Your proposal should provide a minimum of three student jobs for six consecutive weeks. Projects can operate for up to 14 weeks between May and September. Your local CMC has a Young Canada Works "Guide" and application form.

Submit your application now. The deadline for Young Canada Works is February 4th.

Tests 'prove' able to restore mined land

Land reclamation research tests conducted in the Camrose-Ryley area last year show that agricultural productivity of land disturbed by surface mining can be returned to levels equal to the yield from undisturbed land, The Mercury was told today.

In a special news release, R. T. (Dutch) Marshall said that five plots of reclaimed land which were surfaced with six inches of topsoil produced an average yield of 79 bushels of barley per acre. This compares, according to the prepared statement, with an average yield of 88 bushels per acre of undisturbed land. The highest yield from disturbed land was 89 bushels per acre, and from the undisturbed land was 98 bushels per acre.

Mr. Marshall is known to many of the farmers in the district, as he was a frequent visitor to the area discussing with farmers the company's proposal to mine the area. Mr. Marshall is project manager of CanPac Minerals Limited, who were jointly proposing the development with Calgary Power Ltd.

The statement was issued by both companies jointly.

"These are believed to be among the higher yields produced in the Camrose-Ryley area. The tests were designed to compare the productivity of several materials that would be available during surface mining. Those found to be effective as plant growth media would be used to establish crops on levelled mined land," Mr. Marshall said.

The Alberta government on July, 1976, deferred consideration of a coal mine proposal until further research was undertaken to determine the potential of agricultural reclamation in the Camrose-Ryley area.

The 1976 tests indicate that the best results for the Camrose-Ryley area may be achieved when reclaimed land is surfaced with good topsoil, said the report.

McKinnon Environmental Services Ltd., Calgary, conducted the research for Calgary Power Ltd and CanPac. The studies are part of an ongoing research program designed to indicate the most effective and economical methods of reclamation. Tests will be continued on this site, and on two new sites in the Camrose-Ryley area for a number of years.

All plots, including the undisturbed land were fallowed in 1975 and received fertilizer (45 lbs of N, 35 lbs of P205 and 30 lbs of K20 per acre) applied at seeding time and placed about 3" directly below the seed row.

The three highest yields in plots of reclaimed land were: till with 6" topsoil - 89 bu /acre, till 75 6/6 shale 25 6/6 with topsoil - 87 bu /acre, upper 4' of original soil mixed - 81 bu /acre

Satellites move up to playoff position

Confronted with a task of building a new team, the Tofield Satellites have iced a very competitive squad in the Beaverhill Hockey League.

Thanks to the minor hockey program in Tofield the Satellites have been able to ice a team almost entirely from local talent. Although young and lacking in senior experience, they are a fast skating hard working club, and have put up very exciting and close games even in the cases they have lost.

Coach Floyd Taylor along with assistants, Earl Jones and Pat Donnan, are to be complimented on the job they are doing. By the time the playoffs come they could have a strong contending team, for the league championship which they have held for the past two seasons.

In the past week they defeated Andrew by a 9-3 score, lost to Ryley 7-3 and tied Ardrossan 5-5.

Tonight (Thursday) they are hosting Holden who have improved considerably of late, tying Ryley in their last game.

On Tuesday they are at home to the Camrose Combiners. This is an old-timers hockey club from Camrose who are getting ready to attend the Dominion Championships which are being held this year in St. John, N.B. They won this division last year, and are out to defend it this year.

The top six in scoring for the Tofield Satellites up to Jan. 24th.

The Tofield Satellites Auction Sale is all set to go on Saturday.

There has been a good response for articles to go on sale at the rummage sale. A large number of items have been donated by town and district residents. It will be worth your time to come and rush in on the bargains that will be sold at the Arena commencing at 2:00 p.m. Duane Sitler has consented to be the auctioneer.

Theatre behaviour will be supervised

Citizens of Tofield and surrounding area have decided to crack down on misbehaviour during movies shown in the Tofield Theatre in the future.

Tofield Town Council requested a public meeting to discuss the situation with twenty concerned citizens attending.

Four adults and two teenagers volunteered to supervise movies shown this month while Uniform has offered to provide supervisors during February.

It was decided to ask other groups and organizations to provide supervisors during the coming months. Parents are being urged to give their support to the supervisors.

Five basic rules have been instituted in an attempt to curb the problems.

Anyone leaving the theatre will have to purchase another ticket to gain admittance with no one permitted to leave their seats during the show except in the case of emergency and no smoking will be allowed in the theatre.

Anyone making unnecessary noise will be escorted out of the theatre and will be refused admittance to the theatre for a period of two months for a second offence.

Anyone guilty of violating any of the new rules will not receive a refund of their admission.

Popcorn sales will be stopped at 8:15 p.m.

Every effort will be made by the group to bring the situation under control without having to take more serious steps to correct the situation.

Holden Elks name officers

The Holden Elks Lodge is now facing another challenging year as an active community club. To start the year off they have elected new officers for 1977.

The list of officers are as follows: Pianist - Earl Hardy, 1st Year Trustee - Otto Hurum, 2nd Year Trustee - Lyle Grosland, Tyler - John Michtch, Inner Guard - Jon Koinernsky, Esquire - Steve Stakowski, Chaplain - Bob Runnels, Historian - Jacob Michtch, Publicity Director - Les Peake, Secretary-treasurer - Nick Shilnskki, Lecturing Knight - Matt Hellrich, Loyal Knight - Ben Lutz, Leading Knight - Paul Steinke, Past Exhalted Ruler - John Semotiuk, and Exhalted Ruler - Eugene Ewanuk. All these officers have special duties and have to perform certain ceremonies during lodge meetings.

At the last meeting, the Lodge was honoured with 21 Kinsella Lodge Elk members and one Elk member from Viking Lodge. The majority of the meeting discussion consisted of reports made by committee heads who reported on the success of the New Year's Eve dance. One committee member reported that the attendance at the dance was approximately 215 guests.

The Holden Elks, in conjunction with the Alberta Elks Association, are promoting their 9th annual truck and camper raffle which is to be drawn on June 12, 1977. 1st prize is a 1977 three-quarter Ton Chev. Silverado Truck and a 1977 Vanguard 11 foot Camper, total value at $12,265. There are 4 other prizes ranging from $500 to $100. Early Bird draws are on the first day of Feb., Mar., April, May and June for $100 prize each month. Tickets for these prizes are now available at one dollar each from Elk members in your community.

Rudzeki gets 2nd

Judy Rudzeki brought back a silver medal after she competed in a skating competition over the past weekend.

Miss Rudzeki won her silver medal when she finished in second place for her free style skating routine.

Four other members of the Tofield Skating Club took part in the same competition which was held in Medley and were quite satisfied with th..r efforts. They were Kelley Haigh, Linda Jensen, Elaine McMann and Lora McNut.

The Skating Club has finalized all plans for the skate-a-thon which will be held on Saturday and Sunday in the arena.

Proceeds from the two-day skate-a-thon will be used to help pay some of the expenses of operating the Arena. The public is invited to attend at any time during the skate-a-thon.

4-H club sets dance

Plans have been finalized for the holding of a family dances by the Tofield 4-H Beef Club.

The dance will be held on Friday night in the Community Centre with everyone welcome to attend.

Plans for the dance were made at the club's regular meeting earlier in the month.

At the same time, it was decided to hold public speaking competitions at the February meeting.

At the conclusion of the January meeting, Howard Brown and Ron Gaeglen gave a demonstration on makiw rope halters, after which each member was assisting in making their own halters.

Majority rights?

Recent emphasis on regulations and by-laws in many areas restricting the use of tobacco brought an interesting recollection to mind.

Where smoking, (mainly, but not completely, cigarette smoking,) used to be taken for granted as permitted practically everywhere but in churchs, now, more or less suddenly there are increasing areas or times when smoking is not permitted. Airplanes have set up non smoking areas, and so have highway buses. Stores and restaurants are restricting the opportunity for smoking, segregating smokers in some instances. And non-smokers are more and more insisting on acceptance of the bans, where only a few years ago they would have endured the annoyance, unwillingly perhaps, but nevertheless endured it.

The change is undoubtedly brought about by the growing number of non-smokers, more especially, the reformed smokers. For these latter, it's important that they not be subjected to second-hand smoke, for sometimes the will is pretty weak, and always the compulsion is very strong.

Probably for large numbers of citizens today the change will be looked on as revolutionary, but we were suddenly reminded of the "good old days", when universal smoking wasn't just taken for granted.

For instance, you don't have to be a senior citizen, though you have to be pretty mature, to recall when the old street cars, forerunners to the urban transit bus, rolled down their tracks in city streets, with a smoking compartment at the rear of the car. Designed for about eight or ten passengers, the old "smoker" often found many more riders, all male, jammed into the small precincts, as numbers of riders sought out the restricted area. Not all were smokers. Some, indeed, were non smokers who took delight in the camaraderie which built up as riders in a near-circular pattern rubbed knees in close quarters. Some, even, were juveniles, who delighted in sliding into the adult world. And some, doubtless, were escaping from the area where they might have to yield their seat to a lady. One thing certain was that no "lady" would ever be caught dead in the smoker. Equally restricted, both as to sex and to use, was the smoking room on the railway coach, although this also doubled as a washroom, where the art of shaving with a straight razor developed a high degree of skill as the train rolled down the tracks. Either that, or a number of nicks and bulls.

So the "new" restricted smoking areas aren't new, after all. The more things change, the more they remain the same, as the French say so briefly: Plus la change, plus la

King Winter

For Albertans, it's hard to believe the kind of winter being experienced in other parts of the country, partly because it's almost hard to believe the kind of winter we're having here

Instead of the deep freeze Albertans are used to at this time of the year, the weather generally has been so mild that many of us don't particularly envy those who race away to the Sunny South for a holiday. And some of the areas, like Florida, where they might consider holidaying, are having desperately cold seasons themselves.

On the other hand, the Niagara area of Ontario is reporting the coldest winter on record, while the Eastern Seaboard is reporting its second coldest session. And that's going some, for it can't be overlooked that records in those areas date back nearly two hundred years, not just the short span we have in this province.

With a week still to go in January, of course, winter is far from over here, and it may be that we'll have a merry fling with the thermometer yet before we see the snows melt. Notwithstanding, the buds on a few of the trees are budding out, in response to the warm suns, and the first gopher of the season was shot this week.

And Ground Hog Day isn't for another week yet!

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA — (CP) — There were mixed emotions in the capital when Southam News Service Chief Charles Lynch tried sitin tactics on Prime Minister Trudeau and the provincial Premiers to attempt forcing the December federal-provincial conference into the open.

Only a handful of other newsmen and women joined Charlie's ploy, but in spirit a great many more were with him. It is really proper for the political leaders of the nation to discuss the future of our country in private and make decisions which affect us all without [illegible] explanations?

The answer of course is a resounding "no."

The raising of government secrecy — at all levels — is coming more and more into the public mind. It's been nearly a year since the government promised legislation to crush the secrecy barriers of cabinet and the bureaucracy, and we're still waiting for action.

Late last year a freedom of information bill was drafted and presented to brilliant Conservative Ged Baldwin, who has been leading the fight or such a law, claims that it was a weak thing with enough loopholes to make it reasonable Swiss cheese. However last session, the draft bill was lost much for the bureaucracy.

Senior civil servants took one look at what the cabinet was proposing to do and began to apply the pressure. The legislation was withdrawn from cabinet on a few more exceptions could be written into the act, a few more areas declared off limits for public [illegible]

[illegible] claims that government secrecy is one of the reasons why Canadians have lost faith in their governments. He reasons that no one can intelligently criticize government decisions unless the information which formed the basis of those decisions is known.

The Lynch-led protest over secrecy in last month's conference of the premiers and Mr. Trudeau, bears directly on the subject. At a time when one of Canada's provincial governments is openly aiming at breaking up the nation, the people have a right to know what happens in federal-provincial negotiations.

Canadians should let their politicians at all levels know in definite terms where we stand on secrecy, because only if sufficient public pressure is mounted will the veils be lifted.

Why should gas go up?

Alliance, Alberta,
TOB 0A0
January 20, 1977

Dear Sir:

The readers of your paper, who are also natural gas consumers, should be made aware of the urgent need to ask some pertinent and perhaps embarrassing questions. These questions should be asked in view of the impending increase in the price of natural gas.

1. Why a natural gas price increase?
2. Why indeed the high initial price of natural gas?
3. Why has the price increased a lot percent from 1974 to 1976?
4. Why does the provincial government insist that the price of gas should be tied to the world oil price?
5. Why should natural gas be priced in accordance with oil, propane, coal or any other fuel?

If any of the above questions interest you, Mr. Editor, or any of your readers, telephone, write or speak personally to the directors of your Gas Co-op or Utility, your MLA Leader of the Opposition; the Premier, the Minister of Telephones and Utilities.

Yours truly,
W.E. Akeson,
Member of the South
Flagstaff Gas Co-op

One in every two Canadians?

One of the Statesmen's seem quite frequently is "One out of every two Canadians living today will be involved in a crippling or fatal traffic accident"

This appeared in modified form, in our Safety Belt pamphlet, and other materials and has given rise to a number of questions reaching the Council regarding the veracity of the statement

Here is how the figure is reached, based on figures rounded off to some instances from Statistics Canada

In 1974 there were 238,682 traffic injuries in Canada, 6,384 traffic fatalities Total 236,956 injuries and fatalities

Assuming the "driving life" expectancy among today's 11 million drivers in Canada to average 45 years, and maintaining the current rate of accidental death and injury, we see 236,956 x 45 equals 10,663,020 injuries and deaths in the next 45 years

A rounded-off current population figure of 22,000,000 leads to the suggestion that 48 4 percent, or about one in every two, will be involved in an injury-producing or fatal accident

This is, of course, an arithmetical exercise designed to draw attention to the magnitude of the problem It is not a scientifically or statistically accurate prediction

Poe Pourri

by Lorraine Poulsen

I have been told that creating a Poe Monster was not at all a necessity

Poeties tell me that Poe has long had its very own ghost. It seems many people have heard the ghost although many think I have spoken to actually have had the pleasure of meeting the ghost face to face

It seems the ghost is a friendly type That is, he (she or it) never seems to bother anyone, never raids gardens or steals food of any kind A nice ghost

"I'd rather like to meet this ghost," I told husband Bob after hearing about its existence

"Seems to me if he would make it most you, you'd have met him by now And anyway just how would you go about meeting a ghost? The whole idea is ridiculous, Lorraine"

"Not really it isn't. Think about it People claim it knocks on doors in Poe lore as the evening. It must want something."

"Lorraine, if you even suggest we leave milk and cookies on the coffee table for the ghost I am going to call your mother and tell her you have lost all your marbles"

"I wasn't thinking of leaving milk and cookies I thought maybe he'd come inside for a cold beer and chips."

"You know what this reminds me of, Lorraine? Remember last spring when you and those two reporters sat up all night waiting for the Martians to visit" I mean, I could understand that you may sit up inside all night waiting for something to happen but you three goofs sat out near a swamp because somebody claimed to have seen a space ship Remember? You came home at 7 a m , coughing and sneezing and angry because the only movement you saw on that swamp all night was a fat muskrat who couldn't sleep because three characters kept shining lights in its face Remember? Forgot the ghost Lea vs good enough alone."

"But Bob, this is different. I wouldn't have to stay up. I could just set the beer and chips out and MAYBE "

I should have known something was funny when Bob suddenly decided it was "all right" to leave a feast for the would-be ghost

It was 2 a m when I heard a noise in the front room. I woke Bob and made him venture into the front room with me.

The huge bowl of chips I had left on the coffee table was empty but for a few crumbs and both bottles of beer were sitting empty

For five days I believed that the Poe ghost had called on us and never, for a minute, connected the fact that Sheriff Matt crept around quietly the day after the chips had been eaten looking sick and drawn.

I was raising the chip and beer story to a city-friend when Bob broke into gales of laughter and admitted to sneaking downstairs, draining the beers and feeding the chips to the Sheriff while I slept.

The noise which woke me at 2 a m was Matt groaning a sigh of salty content

It's Bob's fault if I never get a chance to meet and greet the ghost of Poe, but just the same, it is nice to know that the Hamlet of Poe has its very own resident ghost

UNAPPROVED MINUTES

Regular meeting of the County of Beaver No. 9 held in the County Office on Tuesday, January 11th

Present were: Cm. Armitage, Brissard, Kwasnik, Lymburner, Krupenicki, McIntosh, Sears

Representing Towns and Villages H Berke, E. Field, N Semotiuk

Also present were Dr. Neil Gannon, Superintendent of schools, Ronald Pepper, Assistant secretary-treasurer, Robert Cross, secretary-treasurer

The meeting was called to order by the chairman, Cr. Sears Moved that the minutes of the regular meeting of December 7th be accepted.

Moved that the minutes of the salary negotiation meeting of December 30th, be accepted.

Moved that the School Committee approve the revised school bus drivers' contract and the schedule of rates as negotiated by the salary committee on December 30th.

Moved that maximum percentage increases be paid for salaries and wages for staff exclusive of bus drivers and teachers.

Bus drivers objected to the restriction of five days leave of absence for reasons other than sickness.

Moved that we require a request in writing for leave longer than five days and each request would be dealt with on an individual basis.

The teachers have expressed dissatisfaction with the change in the deletion of one day at the end of the 1976-77 school year having only one day when pupils are not in attendance rather than the two days as in previous years.

Some alternatives were discussed

Moved that the School Committee extend the Spring Break one day to include April 4th, 1977; that the last day of the school year be June 30th, 1977

No reply had been received from the Town of Tofield in regard to our interview with the Council about changing the school bus loading area at Tofield School

Some alternatives were discussed.

Moved that the Tofield Town Council be informed that the School Committee still prefers to load buses west of the school on 48th Street, Tofield

Comments from the principals of the schools in the County regarding the possibility of using the swimming pool in Ryley in the Physical Education Programs were presented

Except for Ryley School it was the opinion of the principals that it would be difficult to work such a program into the school time and were not in favor

A delegation from the Ryley Agricultural Society would be attending to discuss the use of the swimming pool by the school system.

Moved that Shirley Pidscaley be appointed to the County of Beaver school stan effective March 1st.

Moved that the resignation of Erwin Wiens be accepted.

Moved that the resignation of Norman Wald be accepted

Moved that the request for Educational leave from Olah Shybora be granted

Moved that the following non-teachers be approved as school basketball coaches: Karen Kalisz - Tofield, Robert Lysik - Holden, Norma Pan - Viking, and Val Charters - Ryley.

Moved that the individual school budgets be increased by twenty percent for 1977 including bus trips.

The Superintendent of Schools advised that the Vegreville Health Unit will be arranging a "Speech Clinic" in the County next summer.

A letter from the school bus drivers' association expressed some concerns in regard to school bus operation.

Moved that the regulation to policy 7.305 be amended to read 6:30 a m. instead of 7 00 a.m.

It was noted that there is an overland on a bus in Ekmolls for a short distance when kindergarten children are being picked up.

The bus supervisor, Neil Reid said he had contacted the enforcement officer for the Provincial Government and they advised they would take no action due to the short distance involved and the periodic times this occurs.

It was reported that a bus driver had reported a car passing the school bus while the flashing lights were operating. The R.C.M.P. advised the driver that he would have to come to the Tofield office and give his report in writing.

It was agreed this would be discussed with the R.C.M.P.

The bus drivers wanted to know if they were covered by Worker's Compensation It was reported that bus drivers are covered the same as all employees.

County School Committee briefs

It was reported that Robert Hammer is painting the parts room and other areas in the school bus repair shop. This should be completed within two weeks.

Gordon Teske, Otis Phillips, Charles Magneson, Lorne Gudmunson and Ted Strickbak attended on behalf of the Ryley Agricultural Society in regard to the use of the Ryley swimming pool by the school committee. They presented a brief prepared by the society.

Several questions were asked and the difficulties in bus operation and time tabling were explained. It was suggested that this would probably be a program that should be under the Regional Recreation Board.

The delegation said that as parents they would feel this as a program that should be offered in school. It was noted that parents at another centre had expressed the opposite view.

The delegation retired.

Moved that the school committee conduct a survey to get parents reaction to school use of the Ryley swimming pool.

Harold Hissett, Stewart Mc Mullen and Grant Fredericks attended the meeting in regard to the Bruce Community taking over the Bruce School for community use.

They presented a letter indicating the Bruce Stampede Association and the Bruce Agricultural Society were prepared to operate the facility jointly and have committed $1,500.00 each to the operational cost.

The School Committee expressed the concern that the organizations might be requested to use part of the facility for a private school. They do not want to lose pupils from our system as grants are based on pupils.

The delegation said would respect this concern.

Moved that the School Committee request approval of the Minister of Education to sell the Bruce School to the Bruce Stampede Association.

The minutes of the meetings of the Regional Recreation Board were discussed.

Cr. Kropelnicki reported on the recommendations to date from the committee which is reviewing the Regional Recreation Board agreement.

The list recommendation is that the Regional Recreation Board be composed of one council member from each of the town and village councils and four from the County Council. This would ensure that the municipal councils would have the control of the Regional Recreation Board as they are the parties who entered into the agreement. It would also ensure a voice from the rural recreation boards and the rural residents. Further meetings will be held shortly.

Moved that the minutes of the Regional Recreation Board be received and filed.

It was noted that the new regulations from the Department of Labor regarding maternity leave have precedence over our maternity leave clause in the Collective Agreement.

Moved that the December Operation Repair be accepted.

The School Bus Supervisor's Report was presented.

Moved that the School Committee accept the resignation of James Budd and that Reuben Laube be put on as regular driver when a route is available.

Several items reported by drivers which they felt were neglected by the bus supervisor were discussed with Neil Hood.

Moved that the school bus supervisor's report be accepted.

The rate of pay for bus servicing was discussed.

Moved that the rate of pay for bus servicing be increased by six percent.

Moved that the minutes of the Superintendent's Advisory Committee of December be received and filed.

Badminton in Tofield and Ryley

Yes, badminton is still scheduled for Tofield and Ryley. Come out every Tuesday from 8:00 p.m. - 10:00 p.m. in Tofield and 8:00 p.m. - 10:00 p.m. every Thursday in Ryley. Where? The high school gymnasiums. Let's get practised up for the North Eastern Winter Games.

North Eastern Games Dates
February 25, 26, and 27, 1977 in Lac La Biche

Everyone says "Ah, I can't be athlete. I can't good in sport to." Well folks, I can't about to be skiing with them.

The philosophy of the Winter Games is participation, fun, involvement, co-operation, enjoyment and exercise.

The purpose of the games is to promote interest and participation in new and un developed sports in Alberta. This is why basketball is no longer a part of the games. A North Eastern Alberta Tournament will be set up for all basketball leagues (both men's and ladies').

What I'm trying to say is, enter in any one of the following sports, no matter how good you are. All the fun would be taken out of the games if we were all experts in each event.

1) Volleyball - 18 and over Men's A and B Division Ladies' A and B Division

2) Badminton - No age limit - Men's and Ladies' singles, Men's and ladies Doubles, Mixed Doubles

3) Table Tennis - No age limit - Men's and Ladies' Singles, Men's and Ladies' Doubles, Mixed Doubles

4) Broomball - no age limit 1 Men's and 1 Ladies' team

5) Ladies' Ringette - no age limit

6) Downhill skiing - Giant Slalom, under 15, 15-20, over 20

7) Cross Country skiing - Junior Female 14 and under, Male and Female 15-24, Male and Female 25-40, Mixed Staff Female 18 and over

8) Speed skating - Male and Female 11 and under, Male and Female 12-14, Male and Female 17-24, Male and Female 25 and over

9) Cultural Activities - display your art work and if desired, you may also sell your works.

We are also looking for performing groups to perform between sporting events and during official ceremonies.

The County-wide playoffs will be held February 5th or 6th, if enough interest is shown.

Deadline for registrations is Monday, Jan. 31, 4:30 p.m.

For more information contact Val at the Regional Recreation Office in Ryley at 663-3555.

The Homemaker

Last week we looked at what to take on a holiday. This week, let's look at what to pack.

I find it best to take my packing check list and place everything I plan to take on a bed or table. Take a good look at the items. Are you missing something? Are you taking too much?

Pack odd-shapes and heavier items at the bottom of the suitcase. Place shoes in plastic bags or cloth protectors. Pack garments so that first wanted items are on the top (usually lingerie, sleepwear, etc.). Some booklets on packing suggest using the package method. You place dresses in one package and separates in another. They also suggest packing in layers with divider sheets of plastic or fabric between the layers. Personally if the clothes I'm taking are knits, I roll them and pack the rolls. I find there is less wrinkling this way and you can squeeze more in.

When you get to your destination, unpack as soon as possible. Shake out your clothes and place them on hangers. Wrinkles will hang out of most synthetics but if they don't, hang the garments in the bathroom over the tub and turn on the hot water for 15 minutes to steam away wrinkles.

It is a good idea to take along extra plastic bags for wet or soiled garments. I always include a small laundry bit which contains a miniature clothes line and laundry soap. A cold-water detergent is a good choice.

Keep liquids in plastic bottles and place these either in plastic bags or in a plastic-lined container to prevent damage from leaks. Glass has no place in a suitcase.

Remember to leave some room for items you will purchase in your suitcase. I like to go with one empty or only partially filled bag. Remember too that at most holiday spots you can purchase anything you are missing. Also you must expect to do some adapting. If you want everything just like it is at home, you might as well stay there.

3 December

There will be a "Sewing with Knits" class in Holden, February 16 and 17. The preliminary meeting is Feb. 3 at 3 p.m. in the United Church basement.

There will be an "Interior Decorating" course in Tofield beginning Feb. second at 7:30 p.m. in the meeting room of the town hall. There will be six Wednesday night sessions.

Preliminary meeting for Tofield Seared Stitchless Course is Feb. 1 at 2 p.m. in Catholic Church basement.

Jeanne Lougheed to chair fund

C.E. Keating, president of the Alberta Heart Foundation, announced Mrs. Jeanne Lougheed as 1977 provincial Heart Fund Chairman. A former Camrosian, Mrs. Lougheed is the daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Rogers, who spent many years here.

In accepting the position for a second term, Mrs. Lougheed declared a provincial February Heart Fund objective of $700,000.

"Albertans will be proud to learn that per capita donations to last year's campaign were the highest in Canada at 37.9 cents," stated Mrs. Lougheed. "This compares to a national average of 34.4 cents."

Forty Alberta medical scientists are currently engaged in heart research projects due to funds raised in the province.

"As provincial Chairman, I emphasize the need for continued involvement and commitment of volunteers and donors in assisting the efforts of voluntary health agencies," added Mrs. Lougheed.

No short cut to weight cut

Here's A Tip From Your Better Business Bureau:

Each year thousands of people hungry for a reducing short cut, mail away millions of dollars for promised "Miracle" Diets. A classified ad offering some fantastic diet for $2 usually returns a mimeographed sheet with some commonplace fad diet.

The main cause of obesity is overeating. Vitamin or mineral preparations have no reducing properties whatever, nor will they give reducers "Pep" or "Energy". Belts and girdles may cause the wearer to appear slimmer, but they do not remove fat or reduce weight. Remember, that in order to reduce weight, reduction of the amount of food consumed, by careful and proper dieting, is essential.

Real weight loss begins with a medical check up and a classified ad.

Investigate before you invest. If in doubt phone the Better Business Bureau of Edmonton and Northern Alberta 482-2341

District news from Ryley

Loss Reil

Visiting with the Elmer Anderson's and other friends over the weekend was Rod Johnson.

Shaw School Community held their annual meeting on Jan. 19. They elected Cecil Stannard as president, Barbara Johnson as secretary-treasurer. The meeting was held at the Eddie Chappell home.

The Sunshine Club has purchased the building formerly owned by Dr. Price.

Joseph Reil of Edmonton passed away in Victoria General Hospital, Victoria, B.C. on Jan. 28th, 1977, age 91 years.

Born in Seward, Nebraska, he came to Alberta with his parents in 1910. He leaves to mourn his passing, his son Wayne and daughter-in-law, Georgian, Sharon and Jim of Victoria, B.C., three brothers, John of Tofield, Ezra of Ryley and David of Trochu, four sisters, Mrs. Barbara Seiberg of Ryley, Mary of Portland, Oregon, Fannie of Tofield and Clara of Ryley. He was predeceased by his wife, Lucinda on Feb 7, 1957. Funeral services were at McCall Bros. Chapel, Victoria, B.C. on Jan. 23rd. Cremation followed. Interment is at a later date in Salem Mennonite Church cemetery, south of Tofield.

John and Elvera Reil of Tofield were visiting John's brother and sister in Ryley on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Kirkeland are the proud parents of a boy, Ryley Jay, born January 21, in Camrose Hospital. A little brother for Allen.

Ministik and district news

Mrs. Jim Reddick

The whist drive held on Friday evening at the hall was enjoyed by enough people to make up almost nine tables.

Prize winners were: ganis: first, Lawrence Gill; second, Wayne Klebaschuk; consolation, Michael Kaschuk; ladies first, Theresa Regier; second, Vi Reddick; consolation, Lorraine Davenport. Lil Leach was convenor of this second in the series. Margaret Paterson will convene number 3 on Feb. 4th.

Guests with Jean and George Klebaschuk on Sunday were Connie and Walter Pfeiffer of Millet. Monday evening guests were Joyce and Glen Rackiz and Opal and Donnelly McGinnis, all of Tofield. A most enjoyable evening was spent playing many old favorite songs of all.

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Klebaschuk were Norma and David Hughes of Wetaskiwin. They were married on Saturday and are now residing at Minnitik.

The next meeting of the Credit Union will be on Feb. 28th at 8 p.m. There will be no January meeting. Gas was installed in the centre on Jan. 17th, solving a big heating problem.

The annual Valentine dance will be held on Feb. 19th. The Metisrecrea will supply the music. Lunch will be available.

Sarah Waters and Al McDougall of Edmonton were Sunday guests of Jean and Ronald Rowland.

Valerie and Don Cheshire and Margaret Moisan of Edmonton were Sunday guests with their grandmother, Mrs. S. George.

Hastings Lake

Lynn Gates

The annual general meeting of the Hastings Lake Community Association was held at the Lake Hall on Jan. 17th. The 1977 slate of officers includes president, H. Gates; vice-president, R. Kerr; secretary-treasurer, L. Tiedemann, building and maintenance supervisor, V. Bates, recreation director, R. Fredrickson, social convenor, M. Jurgens, Pony Club rep., H. Jurgens, whist convenor, I. Scott. Mrs. K. Paterson will serve as the Ladies' Club representative and will chair the Fair Committee in preparation for the County Fair to be held in August.

An Italian dinner with bingo to follow will be held on Saturday, Feb. 26th, from 6 to 8 p.m. Mrs. B. Chernick will convene the dinner.

At the last round whist drive, Dale Winder and Linda Scott won the first prizes and consolation prizes went to Ethel Peterson and Ray Peterson. The next drive will be held on Jan. 28th at 8:30 p.m. sharp. Players are particularly asked to be prompt.

The Ladies Club held their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs B Chernick. Much of the proceeds from the past year's fund-raising projects and catering assignments was donated to 13 medical researchers and charitable organizations. The Melissa Tiedeman Memorial Scholarship in music was also established. Outgoing president, Mrs K Petersen, was thanked for her service to the club over the past two years. The new president is Mrs B Chernick. Mrs I Scott, vice-president, and Mrs. L. Gates, secretary-treasurer, will continue in their position for another year.

The next meeting will be on Feb. 17th at 1 p.m. at the home of Mrs. L. Fossa. All ladies in the area are welcome to attend and if further information is required, please phone I. Gates at 662-2617.

Matthew 28-19 Watch therefore for ye know neither the day nor the hour in which the son of man cometh Around the dial of a clock in Strasbourg, France are the words "One of these hours the Lord is coming." This is an arresting thought Not only has Christ promised to return suddenly, but He also expects us as believers to be waiting and eagerly watching for that blessed day Mary Harris has written the following poetic thoughts on that thrilling and momentous event

I get on very weary
With the trials of the day.
The foolish things that people do,
The empty things they say.
The only thing that cheers me,
Keeps the tears from flowing free.
Is the fact that Christ my Savior,
Is coming soon for me
I'm hoping, trusting, waiting
For that wondrous happy day

When "we shall meet Him in the air"
And go with Him to stay
And will it not be glorious then,
A life all free from care"
O how I pray it will be soon
He'll come to take me home!

If we as Christians grasp the reality of the truth of Christ's return it will revolutionize our attitudes and actions We will then experience the joy, the comfort and the spur to spiritual service that accompanies second coming watchfulness

The next meeting of the Tofield PTA will be held next Monday night in the school library at 8:00 p.m. Guest speaker Randy Ness' topic will be "Guidance Counselling" There will be an opportunity for parents to bring up topics for discussion. All parents are urged to attend.

Sister Mary Cecilia passed away in Monongah, West Virginia on January 8th at the age of 86 years

Sister Mary Cecilia was born in Pennsylvania on March. 25, 1890, the daughter of John and Augusta Klavitter The family came to the Round Hill District in 1901 and at the age of 13 years, she went to Manitoba to attend a Catholic School She taught school in several places in Canada and the United States although her main work was in painting and sculpture At the time of her retirement, she moved to her Order's mother house in West Virginia She leaves to mourn, one brother, Walter Klavitter of Edmonton; and three sisters, Annie Litke of Fawcett Helen Wiahan and Rose Kosakowski of Tofield

Friends and relatives gathered Thursday night to honour Sheila Klassen with a bridal shower After an introductory game which was enjoyed by All, the bride was presented with many useful and lovely gifts Hostesses, Doris Brown, Verna Epp, Kate Sackobat, Agnes Rempel and Ann Ewert served lunch Sheila's wedding to Robert Klassen will take place on February 5th in Saskatoon

Gaylene Neufeld left for Calgary last weekend after being transferred by the Bank of Montreal

Born to Don and Colleen Wiles (nee Wyllie) of Vermilion, a daughter, on January 17

Mrs. J.A. L. Smith spent Friday at the home of her parents, Mr and Mrs. J.W Robinson Her daughter, Edith-Mary attended the Alberta Conference on Pets and Society at the University of Calgary this week Edith-Mary's husband, Dr. J.G Williams who is on staff at the University of Calgary was able to attend part of the conference

From the Scrapbook

The past has its store of joys to remember.
The future is ours undefiled
Let us carry our weight with the courage of men
But proceed with the trust of a child.

Students win contests

by Grace Phillips

Kelly Morris, Michelle Erickson, Mark Jones and Donald Jensen, Grade 9 students in the Tofield School and winners in the local Essay and Poem Contest sponsored by Branch 91 (Tofield) of the Royal Canadian Legion, have also won top prizes in the Zone finals.

This zone takes in the Highway 14 area, from Tofield to Wainwright

Dave Dykeman, speaking for Branch 91 reported the above information and said that the students work will now go to be judged in a larger area - Camrose to Cold Lake

Awards will be presented to these students by the Legion in June at the Tofield School

Mrs. Dykeman, speaking for Branch 91 reported the above information and said that the students work will now go to be judged in a larger area - Camrose to Cold Lake

Hockey prospects

Doug Nachtigal (left) and Ed Donnan (right), top point-getters with Tofield in the Beaverhill Hockey League have a shot at taking the first steps towards professional hockey careers. The two 17 year olds have been invited to the tot training camp of the New Westminster Bruins, one of the ten junior hockey teams in the country

Heiberg re-elected Ag. Society prexy

Andy Heiberg was re-elected as another year as president of the Tofield and District Agricultural Society at their annual meeting on January 25.

Arsey Klassen is first vice-president, Lawrence Kallal is second vice-president, Hans Christensen is treasurer, and Linda Sears is secretary

Five persons were elected to the 15 member board of directors for a three-year term They were Louis Aubrey, Yvonne Brown, Joe Laarhuis, Don Litwin and Don Wood.

One dollar memberships in the society are available from Don Litwin, Jack McNeil or Don Wood Specific complaints as to operation of the Arena, etc., should be addressed to one of the persons on the Grievance Committee - Wes Lawson, Yvonne Brown or Don Litwin.

Points of interest that were raised at the meeting included the fact that, due to lack of participation, the number of public skating hours may have to be reduced.

Ice rental rates are $30 per hour for local [illegible] and $34 per hour for outside groups

Minor hockey teams and others are urged to contact Arena Manager Ed Ragsdale if they wish additional practice time as there are often ice [illegible]

The meeting was also told that building insurance rates have increased more than three and a half times to $3,370 annually. Thus, the society has decided to run the concession with volunteer help. [illegible] Koop has kindly agreed to order supplies, while Theone Jones and Yvonne Brown are the persons to contact if you are able to volunteer your services for a few hours once every two weeks At least four families per day are required to man the booth.

Board of Directors' meetings are normally held on the fourth Tuesday of every month, with February 22 being the date of the next meeting

Bruce REA holds its annual meeting

The twenty-third annual meeting of the Bruce R.E.A. was held on Friday night in the Holden Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion with 105(on members attending).

Three directors were elected to serve three-year terms of office They were Pete Mocikoski and Leo Marsmenko of Bruce and Leonard Loube of Holden.

Special guests at the meeting included Bill Hallet, local manager of Calgary Power and his assistant, Mel Hass.

Also in attendance were Milt Taranger of Camrose representing Farm Electric Service, Gordon Hay of Camrose, representing Calgary Power, and Kiel Wenlky of Camrose, president of the Alberta Union of R.E.A.'s.

Each of the guests spoke briefly on topics of current interest and concern.

One item on the agenda was unread and unmailed meter cards Members were advised to read and mail meter cards immediately to avoid additional charges for meter reading

Slides of the construction of underground rural wiring in the Olds region were shown by Mr Taranger

At the conclusion of the meeting, a light lunch was served to members and guests and a brief social hour was enjoyed.

Former entrance reopening sought

A delegation headed by John Baerg attended last week's meeting of Tofield Town Council to ask that the east entrance to the town be reopened

Mayor Freebury outlined the history leading up to the entrance's closure back in 1965 and indicated to the delegation that they should prepare a detailed report explaining the need for the reopening

Councillors also pointed out that if the entrance was to be re-opened, the railway crossing must be controlled.

Councillor Lampitt told council that a meeting of concerned citizens was held in regards to the operation of the Community Hall and theatre, indicating that a number of people are interested in acting as supervisors during movies and other events. Council named Councillors Lampitt and Nachtigal to arrange for the appointment of a Community Hall Board as soon as possible.

Mayor Freebury reported on the situation regarding regional recreation and advised council that copies of the revised agreement is being forwarded to all municipalities for their approval

Council as told that the Provincial Planning Branch had no objections to the construction of an apartment building southwest of the new senior citizens' home if the by-law is followed.

A revised outline of plans for future developments in the town was presented for discussion and will be revised further and resubmitted for council approval As well, the town's zoning by-law is to be updated

Council agreed to proclaim the week of February 20-26 as Scout-Guide Week in Tofield. A request had been submitted by the Boy Scouts

Information for this story was obtained from the minutes and a brief social hour was enjoyed.

Skate-a-thon gets $5,400 in pledges

The three day affair which took place last Saturday and Sunday in Tofield, was a huge success.

Eighty-two skaters participated, with fifty-four completing the seven-hour marathon.

Kaidy Coombes, who won the $40 voucher for the girl with the most money pledged, and Gordon Helberg who won the boy's prize, contributed to the grand total of $5,419.37

Of those skating, Vic Fairbrother deserves special congratulations for skating the seven hours while suffering from an infected toe, while four little girls in grade one amazed everyone by skating for the entire seven hours.

Eight hundred and fifty-five dollars still be given in prize vouchers and once these and other expenses are deducted, it is expected that approximately $4,200 will be given to the Agricultural Society.

Two Tofield hockey players get tryout bids ... from New Westminster Bruins

Two young hockey players from Tofield may have visions of playing in the NHL or the WHA sometime in the near future

Doug Nachtigal and Ed Donnan have been invited to attend training camp of New Westminster Bruins of the Western Major Hockey League when the team starts preparing for another season in the fall of '77

Both boys are only seventeen (17) years of age and both are currently in the lineup of Tofield Satellites of the Beaverhill Hockey League.

The two Tofield boys are the team's top point-getters and it is a combination of youth, scoring ability, skating and puck handling along with size that attracted the attention of scouts from the New Westminster team.

While it would not be unusual for seventeen year olds to make the grade in the WHHL in their first attempt, quite often boys with no previous junior hockey experience will spend a year with a lower-tiered junior team before being brought up to the ranks of the junior "pros".

Tofield Satellites went on a rebuilding spree this year and have the youngest team in the Beaverhill Hockey League

Because of the team's youth and inexperience, they got off to a slow start. In recent weeks they have started to click led by players such as Nachtigal and Donnan and have moved solidly into fourth place, only three points behind Mundare.

Mundare will be in Tofield for a game on Saturday night on that battle for third place in the standings Game time is eight o'clock

The executive of the Tofield team have been trying to tell hometown fans that they have an exciting hockey team full of youthful players and that home games should be well attended

After the announcement that two of the team have been invited to the training camp of a major junior hockey team, executive members feel they now have the proof of what they've been saying and are extending an invitation to hockey fans in the Tofield area to come out and see for themselves.

Hofferd - Weber

The wedding of Carol Weber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Weber of Edmonton, to Russell Hofferd of Fort St. John, son of Mr. and Mrs. R.A. Hofferd of Tofield, took place on Nov. 13th at Salem Mennonite Church at Tofield South with Harold Boettger officiating. The couple is residing in Edmonton.

Ryley news items

Lora Neil

On January 25, Mundare and Ryley played hockey in Tofield with Mundare beating Ryley 4-2.

Relatives and friends were saddened to hear of the fire at Gerden Kirkeland's farm which destroyed his barn, 3 calves, milking unit and bulk tank. Luckily the loading barn was not destroyed. He had a good sized herd of milk cows.

Ryley and Holden fire fighters were called.

Fred Brunsman, formerly of Dodds district passed away suddenly at 74 years. He was living in Pennsylvania, U.S.A.

He leaves to mourn his passing, his wife and family; brother's Harvey, Jos Jansen, Titus and Paul, and sisters, Clara Hershberger and Mrs.

Norma Boettger

George Knudsiton is a patient in the hospital.

Visitors at the Stan Hanks home were his brother, Mike and wife Rose of Edmonton.

A Legion meeting was held Saturday when they elected officers. Then a nice social evening was enjoyed.

County Council briefs

(UNAPPROVED MINUTES)

COUNTY COUNCIL MEETING, Jan. 19-77

Present were: Crs. Armitage, Kwasnik, Brimacombe, Knudsiton, Kropielnicki, McIntosh and Sears.

Also present Robert Cross, secretary-treasurer

The meeting was called to order by the Reeve, Cr Knudsiton.

Moved that the minutes of the regular meeting of December 15th be approved.

The minutes of the salary meeting of December 16th were discussed. Moved that the category of "Labor on Construction" be changed to "General Labor" and that the category of "Gravel Checkers" be deleted and that gravel checkers be included in "General Labor"

Moved that the minutes of the salary meeting be accepted and the maximum allowable percentage increases for each group be added to the 1976 salaries and wages for 1977

Due to closing off the banks for 1976 no financial statement was presented

Laurie Weatherill, Agricultural Fieldman, attended at this time

He suggested an Agricultural Service Board meeting should be held shortly.

The Council was very pleased to hear that the quality of sand and the plant maintenance had improved considerably at the Holden Sand Crushing Plant.

Moved that we advertise the Avadex Spreader for sale by tender as soon as possible.

Moved that the accounts as presented by general cheques numbered 19798 to 11138 and payroll cheques numbered 13466 to 13783 be approved and paid

Moved that the following members be appointed as the Agricultural Advisory Committee:

Paul Pidoborozny, Lyle Grealand, Otis Philips, Gertrude Mizera, Ronald Geeglein, Irene Warner, Norman Keeble, Mrs T. Lesbosky, Les Maruscacha, Vickie Field, Anna Helmer, Gerden Sigair, Richard Nordstrom Colin Lang

A letter from Stanway Crushing Ltd. advised that they would not be able to crush gravel in the County of Beaver No. 9 until May, 1977

As the tender was awarded to them on the understanding they would be finished by March 31st, 1977 it was felt this was too late as road bans would probably be in effect

Moved that we contact the second lowest tenderer Hopkins Construction Ltd to see if they could do the work earlier and that this matter be tabled until the meeting on January 17th

Cr Kropielnicki reported on the meeting of the Recreation which is reviewing the Regional Recreation Board consist of 4 elected members from the towns and villages, one Councillor from each Council and 4 members of the County Council.

After considerable discussion it was agreed that the report be accepted and the recommendation be concurred in.

Cr Brimacombe had been unable to attend the meetings of the Committee and he felt that, as Mr. Knudsiton had attended one meeting and had been chairman of the Regional Recreation Board he would be more valuable on this committee.

Moved that Cr. Knudsiton replace Cr Brimacombe on the committee reviewing the Regional Recreation Board agreement.

A letter from the County of Flagstaff advised that they were reviewing their fire agreements and requested that we advise them if we want any amendments.

Moved that we do not want to amend our fire agreement with the County of Flagstaff

A letter from the Provincial Planning Branch advised that the request for subdivision of the N.E. 21-50-20-W4 had been refused.

A letter from the Department of Environment, Water Resources Branch and an attached plan stated that they had done a survey of a drainage ditch to drain an area in the N.E. 17-49-18-W4. The owner of the property wants to run a ditch along the unopened road allowance south to Beaverhill Lake.

The plan also showed how this area could be drained with a shorter route east to the lake.

Moved that we are opposed to construction of a ditch along the unused road allowance east of Sections 5 and 17-49-18-W4

A letter from the Department of Transportation indicated that Hwy Signs had been removed along S.R. 626 and should be replaced.

Moved that the Councillors responsible for S.R. 626 arrange to have Hwy Signs replaced.

A letter has been received from the Department of Environment regarding reclamation of old coal or gravel sites be received and filed.

Correspondence from the Edmonton Regional Planning Commission advised that the subdivision request in the N.E. 27-51-26-W4 had been refused.

A letter from the Solicitor General advised that regulations are being developed changing the method of weight overloads. They are going to an axle weight rather than a total weight method.

Moved that the resolution from the Battle River Tourist Association be paid.

Corporal Lamarche of the Tofield Detachment R.C.M.P. attended the meeting.

The Council discussed various problems including enforcement of weight restrictions, road bans, vandalism of road signs, the Stray Animal Act, operation of snow vehicles and others.

The Reeve thanked Cpl. Lamarche for attending and felt that a good discussion had been held.

Cr. Knudsiton had received a letter from Gordon Strenberg, M.L.A. in regard to Secondary Road 622 from Ryley south. According to Mr. Strenberg he had discussed the construction of this road with Mr R. Cranbkite, Deputy Minister of Transport, and was not optimistic about being able to get this approved for construction in 1977.

Moved that Crs Kwasnik and Knudsiton be given authority to do whatever is necessary to have this road approved by the Department of Transportation for construction in 1977.

Due to the change in the natural drainage in the N.E. 1-49-18-W4 the Department of Environment requested that we license the drainage ditch adjacent to the road.

Moved that we proceed with the necessary procedures to license this drainage ditch.

Moved that we have no objection to a gas line crossing the road Allowance between the S.E. 21-49-13-W4 and the N.E. 16-49-13-W4 by Alberta Gas Trunk Line Ltd.

Moved that we have no objection to the annexation proposal by the Town of Viking to annex Pt. N.E. 28-47-13-W4 to the Town of Viking.

A letter from the Deputy Solicitor General requested information on services we will require in enforcing weight restrictions

Moved that we will require

James 1:22 - But be ye doers of the word and not hearers only

Some years ago a magazine called "The Breast Worker" carried a story which underscores the truth of our text. A woman was visited by a Korean convert who had walked 100 miles to learn more about Jesus. After giving his testimony, the young man recited the entire Sermon on the Mount without making a mistake. The missionary was delighted but felt he ought to warn him that memorizing the Bible is not enough. It's precepts must be put into practice. When he made this suggestion the Korean's face lit up with a happy smile. "That's the way I learned it," he said, "when I first tried to master that long passage, it just wouldn't stick in my mind, so I decided to grasp just one verse at a time and then follow its instructions as I lived among my friends and neighbors. When I put how well it worked, I had no difficulty remembering it, and I could go on to the next beatitude." The young believer had discovered a significant truth. Obedience of God's word becomes firmly imbedded in our memory and character which we act upon them.

The happiest Christians are those who are not only hearers but also doers of the word. They have found the Scriptures to be more than words.

assistance in entering road bans on approximately 1200 miles of County roads.

Alberta Government Telephones advised they will be replacing wire with buried cable in 05-14-W4, 07-15-W4 and 07-16-W4.

Moved that we have no objection or recommendations in regard to this construction.

The Council was advised that the Stray Animals Act had been proclaimed effective January 1, 1977 and the Domestic Animals Act had been repealed.

It was reported that a White Charolais Cow had been impounded in the pound kept by Gordon Beeton on December 21st, 1976 and had been sold to Wayne Carter on December 31st, 1976 for $70.00.

It was also reported that 10 head of cattle had been impounded in the pound kept by Gordon Beeton on December 21st, 1976. This had been picked up by the owner Earl Jackson.

By-Law No. 441 for sale of lots in Bruce was presented First Reading Moved. Second Reading Moved. Carried.

Moved that By-Law 441 be given Third Reading at this time. Carried Unanimously.

The food is terrible at Town & Country Decorating

"Of course it is. We don't even have a snack bar. Or an automotive department or a babysitting service. Just flooring. Nothing but flooring. You see, flooring is an important investment, perhaps one of the largest you ever make for your home. So it shouldn't be taken lightly. You should deal with specialists. We have to give you the best in flooring because that's all we have.

but the rugs are great!

Poe Pourri

by Lorraine Penhos

Things may never be the same around here.

About once a month I decide I need a holiday; a chance to get into the city just to do some shopping, see a few movies or just laze around.

It isn't difficult to arrange a "get-away" weekend because the neighbors are good in helping me plan monthly holidays. Normally Sylvia Meinke can find time to mind the store while I trot off to the city for a day or two.

January was different very different.

Sylvia was busy tending a sick youngster, so when asked, Grannie Redmay agreed to operate the store for a weekend.

Friday afternoon she left her cozy Shanty home, her son, her dogs and her CB behind, to become Poe's storekeeper.

"You know Lorraine, I haven't done anything like this for years. It's been a long time since I minded a store. I just don't know how things will work out," Grannie told me as we drove from Shanty to Poe Friday afternoon.

"You'll do fine Grannie. There's nothing to it. Really," I assured her.

After giving her the basic "this is how things work" routine, I left Grannie to fend for herself and headed to the city.

Monday, I returned.

I halfway expected to find at least a fire stage out of order. (One likes to feel missed at least a little.)

Not only did Grannie look anything but tired; the weekend cash tapes were in order, stock was neatly arranged, the coffee was fresh and tasty, and mail little notes told of phone calls and other messages which had accumulated over the weekend. The house was spotless and boasted a fresh-baking odor that would make anyone want to sit down and stay awhile. The cookie jar was filled with fresh-baked cookies without so much as a dirty spoon in sight.

I kept Gran here until two Monday afternoon and tried to get it out of her just how she had managed so well but all that was accomplished was her shoving me the general area of beaten zinc had tainted over the weekend.

All week people have been dropping into the store asking where my grandmother is and when I found time to (eat and sip coffee with customers) and mean is she coming back to Poe? (I let them think she is my Grannie and that as my Grannie some of her organizational abilities have rubbed off onto me.)

I have written a report for Poe Council and will recommend Grannie be made the honorary Poe Storekeeper. I think I'll take a week off this month.

News from Ministik

Mrs. Jim Reddick

Due to upholstery classes commencing on February 28, the February meeting of the Crafts Centre will be held on Monday, February 21st at 8 p.m.

Ceramics classes begin again this week for some on Wednesday afternoon, Wednesday evening and Thursday afternoon.

Diane Fenske, Eva Davenport and Sioux Dyer attended the social afternoon on Tuesday where Lorraine Davenport and Geneve Fenske modelled articles of clothing they had made in home economics at Fultonvale School.

Alphonse Loch has been a patient in General Hospital undergoing surgery.

Patients Jean Ferguson in the Royal Alex and Jeanne Wilson in the Tofield Hospital are coming along favorably.

Mrs S George was pleasantly surprised on Friday when her son Bruce in Aberdeen, Scotland phoned her. Visitors with her through the week were Mrs Ada Hostetler and Mrs. Martha Lasher of Tofield on Monday afternoon, Bill and Anne George on Thursday afternoon, Joan Rowland, Joan Taylor and baby son on Tuesday, and Clara and Doug George on Sunday.

Margaret Paterson convenes the whist drive coming up on Friday, February 4th.

Plans are finalized for the family Valentine dance on February 19th.

The Homemaker

The Added Touch

Often the difference between a house and a home that is cherished is the added touch. Accessories are objects that complete the furnishings in the home. They reflect our personality and interests. They enrich and complete our home furnishings.

There are two types of accessories those which are functional and those which are decorative. Decorative accessories are such items as paintings, sculpture and plants. The choice is purely a personal one.

Functional accessories include books, clocks, lamps, etc. With these accessories you must consider the objects functions, construction, and beauty. Does the object fulfill its purpose? Is the lamp capable of lighting the space it is needed for? Will the bowl handle the kinds of snacks you plan for it? Is the object well made? Will it last over a period of time? Is the object attractive? Usually we examine that if an object functions properly and is well constructed it is attractive.

Arrange your accessories to best advantage. A few good pieces are better than many excellent pieces so poorly arranged that they cannot be appreciated.

Displaying all the accessories one possesses at one time often creates much chaos and clutter. It is better to change accessories periodically in order to create renewed visual interest in the home.

Study your room. Look at its centers of interest. Consider the sources of light, both natural and artificial. Where will additional lamps, shapes, textures and color add to your room? This is the place for accessories. Functional accessories should be placed where they are needed.

Let accessories be that added touch in your home. Let them express your good taste and style.

Hastings Lake district news

Lois Fenske

A wool workshop was held at the hall on Saturday with Bill and Mary Tkachuk as instructors. The eleven participants practiced washing, carding, spindle spinning and wheel spinning under the Tkachuks' supervision, to everyone's satisfaction.

In the evening, the Hastings Lake Pony Club held a dance at the hall and Roy Fenske won a full-length dressing mirror in the raffle which was drawn that night. Socially the dance was a great success and it contributed a few dollars towards the new developments which are planned for the spring. With the assistance of Strathcona County, it is hoped to construct an arena on the open area adjacent to the hall. During the winter, meetings are held on the first Tuesday of each month at 8:00 p.m. at the hall.

Don Fenske was in Holden last week and reported that Alberta weather is far preferable to the eastern seaboard's right now. He saw enough rain to glisten a few growers' hearts.

Building has been fast and furious in the district recently, and many new and half-finished houses can be seen from the car, as well as a small barn and a very large one at the Clarence and Edith Sacre are building a different sort of house, all of sixty feet long and twenty wide, which will soon be ready to receive ewes or three hundred of its new babies; they need special conditions of temperature and humidity, and their beds have to be made with meticulous care - even for sterility. No prizes for guessing - they are sootlings and the building is a greenhouse.

The next whist drive at the Hall will be on Friday, February 11th, at 8:30 p.m.

Recreation Board postpones election

The Beaver Regional Recreation and Parks Board has agreed to postpone its annual election of officers until a report has been submitted by the special investigating Committee

The decision to postpone the elections was made at the organization's regular monthly meeting held last week in Ryley with Dennis Cooper in the chair

At the request of the special committee, Vern Hafso of Viking agreed to sit on the policy committee

It was agreed by all members that visits to all communities, on a regular basis, by members of the recreation department, should be continued in the future Members were told that Susie Stenerud of Ryley began working in the recreation office on Wednesday for two hours daily on a work-experience program She will be working at least [illegible] under the direction of Val Charters.

Len Josephison of Viking indicated to members that he would get Viking Town Council to forward a letter with drawing their motion to opt out of the regional recreation program [illegible] regional recreation program were represented at the meeting, which saw other regular matters handled in routine fashion It was a short session, lasting just over one hour.

Information for this news story was obtained from the unapproved minutes of the meeting.

Holden and district news

Mrs. G.H. Taylor

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Mesowski were visitors in Edmonton the weekend of January 22nd, to help celebrate the birthday of their granddaughter who was one year old.

Mr and Mrs. Wayne Fleming of the Okotoks district entertained their families at a dinner on Sunday, following the christening of their daughter, Charlotte Ann. Rev. Father Andrew Morrison of St. Francis Xavier's Roman Catholic Church, Camrose performed the ceremony

The Holden Ladies Social Credit Auxiliary held their monthly meeting on January 26th at the home of Mrs. Anna Merka with Mrs. Mary Hardy presiding Minutes of the previous meeting were read, regular business and correspondence dealt with At the conclusion of the meeting, the hostess served lunch and a social hour was enjoyed.

Mrs. Frances Lashuski returned home last week from Tofield Hospital after being a patient for a few days for treatment and having a cast on her arm.

Clare Anderson and Mrs. Frances Hansen were Wednesday visitors in Tofield, Mrs. Hansen going for a dentist check-up.

Harriet Reddy and Anne Kongsrud of Ryley were Friday afternoon guests with Mrs. Helen Tiedemann.

Mrs. Ruth Campbell was pleasantly surprised last Saturday afternoon when her son, Bill Campbell of Montreal phoned. He said it was very cold and stormy in Montreal, the coldest in 10 years, with lots of snow

A member of a long-time pioneer family of the Bruce district, Mrs. Jean McRae of North Vancouver, B.C. passed away, on Saturday, Jan. 22nd at the age of 85 years. She leaves to mourn her loss, her husband, Art; one daughter, Mrs Pat Carr of Vancouver, her mother, Mrs Lulu Fredericks of Bruce, three brothers, Ben of Edmonton, Irven and Grant of Bruce, three sisters, Mrs. Lillian Tinke and Mrs. Gladys Dorin of Bruce and Doris of Calgary; also ten grandsons, Guy.

The funeral was held in the School Gym of Bruce School on Friday with Rev David Meikle officiating and interment was in the Bruce Cemetery.

Beth and Ernie Mertz of Viking were Sunday visitors with Beth's aunt, Mrs. Beth Campbell. Ernie went up to Pee to see their uncle, Alec Barlow but, who was away from home on business with friends.

Recent visitors with Lara Hilliard at Vimla Lodge were Ernie and Offey Good. Other visitors from Holden were Olga Hansen, Lloyd Clark and Conrad Meiley Lone Holden of the Bruce district also called on Mr Hilliard and other residents at the Lodge.

A former long-time resident of Holden, Mrs. Bess Connerty of Edmonton, was honored by a number of friends at a tea held in her home during November and December, having had a fall, breaking her right arm and having it put in a cast. Both she and Steve have also had a severe attack of the flu, Steve being confined with this chronic ailment.

The annual Congregational meeting of Holden United Church which was to have been held Sunday evening, was postponed until Tuesday evening.

A former Holden resident, Mrs. Gladys Rose Harris (nee Mumford) of Dr. Angus McGuigan Nursing Home, Edmonton, formerly of Wetaskiwin and widow of Ben (Ted) Harris and member of a former long-time resident pioneer family of Holden, the Mumford family, passed away Saturday, Jan. 8th, after a lingering illness She leaves to mourn her loss, two daughters, Mrs Jack (Mary) Syers of Thunder Bay, Ontario, and Mrs. Allan (Patsy) Thomas of Barrests, B.C.; seven grandchildren; one brother, Ralph Mumford of California, and four sisters, Mrs. Susan Mohr, Miss Mildred Mumford, Mrs Myrtle Emond and Mrs. Anne Muir, all of Edmonton The funeral service was held Monday morning at the Foster and McGarvey Funeral Chapel with Rev. Leonard Moore officiating and interment was in the Wetaskiwin Cemetery Before her marriage, Gladys was employed at Barns Creamery Ltd., now the N.A.D.P. and her late husband was employed by the Hugh McAfee Hardware store, later Allan's Hardware

The Holden Senior Citizens Group held their regular monthly meeting on Thursday, this also being the annual meeting. George Osterhout presided at the group, president at the business meeting with regular business attended to and the minutes of the previous meeting read and approved. A delegation from Holden Masonic Lodge attended the meeting with a discussion regarding the group using the Masonic Lodge hall for meetings etc. The same slate of officers were nominated for the coming year. At the conclusion of the business meeting, lunch was served with hostesses being Mrs. Kate Nichols and Mrs. George Gislason.

Lad Maslanka has been home for the past several days after spending a couple of weeks in Tofield Hospital and is feeling much improved

Mrs. Lawrence Horum had the misfortune to fall while skating on the rink and is at present at patient in the Viking Hospital waiting to have a cast on her wrist, which she broke. The Holden skating rink seems to be an unfortunate area for adults, this being the third lady to fall there breaking their wrists.

Mrs. Rena Fjellstrom was in Edmonton Monday for a doctor's check-up and was pleased to have a very good report.

Oscar Abath is still taking treatments in an Edmonton hospital and is coming home on weekends.

IN MEMORIAM

STAUFFER: In loving memory of our dear Mother Penny, who passed away February 4, 1976.
Two dear bright eyes, a tender smile
A loving hand that helped me guide,
Deep that in God that all was right
He joy to make some other glad
Each and suffering one she bided,
Some gentle act of love she'd do,
His thought of self but of "the other"
I know He said, "Well done, dear Mother."
Ever remembered by Evelyn, Norman and family. 25c-3340

Mundare streaks in hockey league

Mundare Sabres are the hottest team in the Beaverhill Hockey League as they are on a five-game unbeaten streak.

The streak has left the Sabres solidly in third place, as of the latest standings issued on January 26th, seven points ahead of Tofield with the latter having one game in hand and only four points behind Lamont with Lamont also having a game in hand.

Ryley Flyers continue to lead the league as they hold a slim one-point advantage over Lamont. However, Lamont has a game in hand on the Flyers.

Mundare started off its winning streak by dumping Smoky Lake 7-3 and then followed by whipping Andrew 6-1.

After losing held to an 8-8 stalemate by Holden, the Sabres started winning again as they pounded Lamont 10-3 and then upset the league leading Flyers from Ryley by a score of 6-2 on Tuesday night in Tofield.

Lakusta is pacing Mundare's attack as he has amassed 24 points to date while Lacyk follows with 44 points.

Standings	W	L	T	Pts
Ryley	13	3	1	33
Lamont	11	3	2	24
Mundare	9	5	2	20
Tofield	6	8	1	13

THE BUSINESS OF FARMING?

Dear Editor:

The recent meeting in Ryley which was called to discuss farm power costs was attended by representatives of the Government, the Union of B.E.A.'s, Farm Elec Services and local B.E.A.'s. The main concern expressed was the extend to which the cost of installing and maintaining power lines had risen. (The cost to the Tofield B.E.A. for pole replacement in 1976 was in excess of $40,000. Some new installations now go as high as $3,500)

However, this is just one example of what inflation means to the farmer.

The strong Labor Unions are in a position to demand periodic wage increases to cover the rise in the cost of living. In reality, this means passing some of these costs along for someone else to pay. And so it goes down the line and ends up with those who have suffered the least. The farmer is one who cannot pass these costs on. So he expenses continue to increase.

We cannot say that the cost to produce this or that was so much and that we might take an equavalent sum in return when we sell - plus a reasonable profit. If such was the case, some of the bills we pay wouldn't seem so big.

Which brings up another point if the consumer was paying a more realistic price for beef, for instance the Labor Unions would be asking for still larger pay increases.

In view of our short growing season and the availability of the cheaper, grass-fed, Australian variety, some consumers might question the merit of raising beef in the country. Even if we could be assured of an ample and continuous supply, the effect on the economy of our country might well be disastrous. Though the beef producers are receiving very little for their effort, the employments of thousands depends upon their product.

60th Anniversary

Theodor and Clara Bendiksen of 11208 - 49 Avenue, Edmonton celebrated their 60th anniversary in January, when their daughter and son-in-law, Kathleen and Jack Wimpler, entertained [illegible] at their home.

The couple were married in the United Church at Ryley on January 10 1917. Mr Bendiksen came to Canada from North Dakota in 1902 and Mrs Bendiksen arrived with her parents and other family members from Minnesota in 1912. Mr Bendiksen started buying and shipping cattle at a very young age and in his later years he operated a garage and implement business, also carrying on a livestock trucking business. He retired 20 years ago and moved to Edmonton in 1965. Congratulatory messages were received from The Queen, Lt. Governor Ralph Steinhauer, Premier Peter Lougheed and the Honorable John Diefenbaker.

Seventh-day Adventists open new Ryley church

Saturday was a special day for the Ryley Seventh-Day Adventist Church as the congregation joined with many friends to hold the first Sabbath Worship Services in their new church.

The church was the result of many months of planning and work and, although not completely finished, the church is fully usable. Eleanor Johnson, a long with many church members worked many long hours to have the church ready for opening services.

Wayne Tetz led out in the Sabbath School program. Special music was supplied by the Handspahl family from Stony Plain. The mission report was a personal account given by Wendy Bascom, a student at Canadian Union College, near Lacombe, who spent a year as a student missionary teaching English in Indonesia. Elder Jim Wilson, Alberta Conference president of the Seventh-Day Adventist Church, led an interesting and thought provoking [illegible] entitled "The Christian and His Living." Sabbath school programs for the children's divisions were held in the [illegible] area.

The congregation was welcomed to the Worship Service by Pastor Johnson. Elder Wilson offered prayer, Elder Cliff Patterson, Canadian Union College's Business manager and former Ryley church member called for the offering. Special music was provided by the Canadian Union College male quartet. Elder Norman Klam, treasurer for the Alberta Conference of the Seventh-day Adventist Church, was the speaker for the service. The benediction was given by Pastor Littman, former pastor for the Ryley church.

Everyone was then invited to a fellowship dinner held in the Legion Hall. While enjoying the delicious food, people also had the opportunity to visit with friends and renew old acquaintances.

The public was invited to attend the official opening service held during the afternoon. Harry Anderson of Edmonton led out in the song service which included some congregation singing gems and a duet by Mrs. Jane Farmer and Miss Sherry Johnson. Elmer Wilson gave the invocation and Pastor Johnson welcomed the capacity congregation. Elder Norman Klam read the scripture and offered prayer. The offering call was given by Elder Cliff Patterson and the Canadian Union College male quartet provided the special music. Elder Wilson presented the sermon dealing with christian living. The service closed with a solo given by Harry Anderson and the benediction was given by Pastor Glynn Davies, former pastor. Piano accompaniment for the day's program was provided by Mrs. Helen Anderson from Sedgewick.

The new church is to be the setting for a series of meetings concerning Bible prophecies. The meetings will begin Friday at 7:30 p.m. and will continue every Friday, Saturday and Sunday evening until March 20. The meetings will feature films on the life of Jesus and a talk given by Pastor Johnson. There will be a separate program for children up to age 8. The public is invited to attend these meetings and any other services held in the new church.

Tying for first place while representing the Tofield sub-local the annual bonspiel sponsored by the Beaver Local, A.T.A. in Viking on Feb. 5 were Ted Whyte (skip), Bob Garneau, Denise Neville and Coryne Kermay.

Also from the Tofield School were Myrna Kendrat, Curtis Hastings, Carole Nolan, Stephanie Blades, Elaine Zimmerman and Al Pollock. Charlie and Ruby Sears from Tofield represented the School Committee.

The teams skipped by Bob Evans of Viking and Ted Whyte of Tofield tied for first place. To break the tie, the third, on each team threw single rocks, with the Viking third securing victory by placing his rock directly on the button.

A pot-luck supper closed the day's activities.

The Tofield participants report an enjoyable good day competition, good food, and good [illegible].

by Grace Phillips

Since January 17, Brian O'Toole, B.Ed. has been the Physical Education instructor at the Tofield School.

Mr O'Toole fills the position held by Harry Watson until [illegible] and briefly, by Norman Wahl in the early part of January.

Mr O'Toole's home is St Albert. He comes to Tofield from Pomoka where he taught in the Separate School. At present, he is living at the Stan Schacher home but will soon be moving into Tofield.

Stauffer to head Bardo recreation

Leonard Stauffer was elected as president of the Bardo Recreation Association at the association's annual meeting which was held recently.

Named as vice-president was Glen Frasers while Pat Lewis will be the secretary and Lyle Heiberg is treasurer. Named as hall president was Ken Stauffer.

The membership approved two priority items for 1977. The first will be the installation of a water and sewage disposal system in the Recreation Center.

The second item will be the restoration of the old (original) Bardo School.

The school first opened in 1908 and closed down in 1910 when a new structure was erected. Since then, the school has been used as a shop, storage building and a hog [illegible].

The present owner has offered it to the Association if they want to restore it to its original form. It is presently located about a mile from the Recreation Centre and a spokesman for the group indicated that the restoration would involve a lot of work, which, if it is to be done [illegible] soon.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Gaetzie Barker of the Regional Recreation and Parks Department.

Important match faces Satellites

With Smoky Lake Imperials on a winning streak the chances of Tofield Satellites making the playoffs could very well tonight be decided by the outcome of the game tonight (Thursday).

Although the Satellites have lost but one of their last four games Smoky Lake by virtue of their win over Lamont on Saturday night, have now moved to within two points of the Satellites and have two games in hand.

At the same time, the Satellites, in spite of suffering the Mundare Sabres 42 to 23 and leading 4-3 early in the third period, fell apart and [illegible].

On Thursday they had tied Lamont 1 to 1 in one of the best played games of the season. Only the outstanding work of the Lamont goalie kept them from a win in this one.

On Tuesday, an exhibition game has been arranged with the R.C.M.P. from Edmonton coming to town, the should be a good match as the Satellites defeated them narrowly last year and they are out to [illegible] Thursday.

League standing to Feb. 7 Lamont 29, Ryley 26, Mundare 22, Tofield 18, Smoky Lake 16, Holden 8, and Andrew 7.

Query scale of coal mine reclamation

Only part of each plot was harvested to obtain the published results, and no attention was paid to the poor results for 1975, declares the Round Hill Dodds Agriculture Protective Association, as it studies the reported reclamation of mined land in the Round Hill Dodds area.

"The tests only simulate reclamation," it continues.

The association questions the validity of results obtained in reclamation tests conducted by Can Pac Minerals and Calgary Power in their bid to establish a coal-fired power generating plant in the area. The doubt was expressed in a statement issued last Thursday, and signed by Fred Gosberidge, Calvin Lauder and Becky Strathcona as president, vice president and secretary of the Protective Association.

The statement, and the doubt it expresses, was in response to figures recently announced by the survey team in respect to crops produced during the 1976 harvest, following a number of varying tests conducted on land prepared in a variety of manners.

[illegible] on the SW quarter of 14-48-18-W4, the tool was carved out as part of the Bur mead Coal Mine land, about six miles southeast of Round Hill.

Following publication of the results, the three directors commented:

We have recently been advised of the results of the so called "reclamation tests" conducted in the Round Hill area by Can Pac Minerals and Calgary Power Limited. The reported results of 38 bushels of barley per acre on an disturbed land, 79 bushels on reclaimed plots with topsoil replaced, and 57 bushels per acre on reclaimed plots with no topsoil replaced are impressive. However, the claim made by the companies that the tests prove agriculture productivity of land disturbed by surface mining can be returned to levels equal to the yield from undisturbed land is still unsubstantiated. The tests only simulate reclamation Conditions after large scale mining would be much different.

In these press release the companies failed to give details on the following the fourteen individual plots covered a total areas of approximately 200 ft by 150 ft. and originally had 12 inches of topsoil. The four individual undisturbed plots were 12 ft wide and the full length of the test area (300 ft), making a total reclaimed area of less than a quarter of an acre! The ten reclaimed plots were 12 ft

DO YOU REALLY KNOW WHAT CONSTIPATION IS?

Constipation is a condition not a disease. It may be caused by disease but much more often occurs in perfectly healthy individuals. It is, in fact, hard to define. Some people have a habit of a daily bowel movement others equally normal may have a movement only every 2 or 3 or more days. Probably any reasonably regular timing for emptying the bowel with a soft painless stool and without cramping, may be considered normal. Therefore constipation may be considered as dry stools which are difficult to pass and may be painful to expel

How to help avoid constipation and be regular.

An appropriate program of Metamucil often combined with the following should relieve constipation

1. Eat meals at regular hours, and chew all solid foods thoroughly and well
2. Eat sufficient residue producing foods such as fruits vegetables and salads
3. Drink sufficient water fruit juices, buttermilk, or milk on a daily basis and form the habit of drinking and enjoying these at certain times during the day
4. Exercise daily a brisk walk, bicycling, running or jogging can be of considerable help in relieving constipation and [illegible]
5. Avoid straining by answering the urge for a bowel movement promptly delay may result in loss of the urge
6. Adopt a routinely convenient time of day for your bowel movements
7. Take all the time necessary when at stool. Avoid straining tense and allow normal peristalsis (natural movement of the bowel) to take place
8. Any significant change in bowel habit either diarrhea or constipation should be brought to the attention of your physician PROMPTLY!

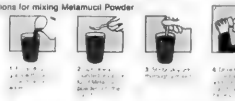
What is Metamucil®?

Metamucil is a natural source laxative. Certain natural plant seeds are effective as a laxative because they have the property of absorbing water and work to form a soft pliable stool which can be easily passed and expelled. Modern preparation and processing has resulted in extracting and purifying the natural "mucilloid" from psyllium seeds to present Metamucil as an effective laxative.

Metamucil is gentle and easy to take.

Take the powder as needed: one to three teaspoonfuls per day mixed with a cool liquid. Metamucil promotes a soft stool easily passed and expelled.

Directions for mixing Metamucil Powder



Metamucil is available in two convenient forms: Metamucil Powder [illegible] and 12 [illegible] Instant Mix in orange, [illegible] effervescent lemon lime Metamucil Instant Mix in pre [illegible]

Viking area farmer heads rape growers

Elmer Lovenuth, a Viking district farmer, was elected president of the Alberta Rapeseed Growers' Association at the annual meeting of the producer group in Edmonton on January 30th and 31st.

Mr Lovenuth takes over the office vacated by Walter Van De Walle of Legal who has served as president for the past three years. Walter Paszkowski of Sexsmith was named vice-president and Elmer Johnson of Edmonton returned as secretary treasurer.

Delegates to the meeting endorsed a resolution calling for "vigorous action" to obtain a reduction in freight rates on processed rapeseed products to bring their transportation costs more in line with shipping costs of the raw product.

Alberta rapeseed crushing plants, saddled with heavy freight rates, are finding it almost impossible to compete for markets, placing the relatively new western industries in a precarious position.

The meeting was told that a bushel of rapeseed can be shipped from Sexsmith to Vancouver for 16 cents while an equivalent amount of rapeseed oil or meal costs 61 cents to travel the same distance.

Foreign crushers can now buy raw rapeseed in Vancouver and ship to their overseas plants for processing for less than the cost of shipping oil or meal from Alberta to Vancouver. Alberta plants, with the capacity of processing 42 million bushels annually, crushed only 14 million bushels last year.

Retiring president Walter Van De Walle, commenting on problems of the crushing industry, said a solution of the freight rates problem would be to the advantage of growers who would be presented with greater sales opportunities, guaranteed by contracts with crushers, if the processors were able to operate in a more competitive atmosphere.

Commenting on the outlook for rapeseed, Stan Boulter, executive secretary of the Rapeseed Association of Canada, said that rapeseed now takes care of about 20 percent of the Canadian domestic market while soybean oil has about a 37 percent share.

A 50 percent share of the domestic market is a realistic target, Mr Boulter said, in emphasizing a market approach that features the complimentary character of rapeseed products, rather than stressing their purely competitive features.

Rapeseed is an excellent liquid oil but encounters graininess problems when hardened for margarine or shortening. The simplest way to overcome this difficulty, Mr Boulter said, is to blend it with other oils such as palm or soybean.

While this appears at first glance to be a restriction of rapeseed oil by dilution, in actual practice, Mr Boulter said, it could work out to the advantage of rapeseed producers by increasing demand.

Rather than bemoan the unsuitability of palm and other tropical oils, he suggested a positive approach that exploits to the fullest the superior qualities of the component fatty acids of rapeseed oil, and balancing the less desirable qualities by blending with other oils.

The Homemaker

The energy problems the United States are presently coping with are a good remin der to us that we too need to be concerned about energy con servation. This article, by Marian Williams, DHE at Ver milion, suggests some ways to save energy in the kitchen

The kitchen is one of the biggest energy using rooms in your home What can you do at home to cut down on your energy consumption in the ki chen? Here are a few simple ways to save

Your stove is the biggest user of energy in the kitchen

Fine Oven Meals With a little forethought, meals can be planned to save energy How about a total oven meal casserole, baked potatoes, and baked dessert can often be cooked together

Keep The Door Closed Don't peek! Did you know that each time you open the oven door you lose about 20 percent of the heat that's inside?

Don't Use The Oven For Small Jobs If you're toasting or broiling, use a smaller ap pliance such as a toaster or fry pan

Use Glass Baking Dishes Glass or ceramic baking dishes trans fer heat more efficiently than metal and lets you set the tem perature about 25 F (14 C) lower

Check Oven Temperature At least once a year check the temperature of your oven with a thermometer

Pots And Pans For use on top of the stove, buy pots and pans that are bright and shiny, with straight sides and flat bottoms and tightly fitting lids Your food will cook more quickly, more evenly, and more economically

Clean The Pot Fith The bottom of the saucepan should cover the element entirely but not extend more than one inch beyond the outer ring of the element

Don't Grease The Grates When you're cooking any vegetable, use only a small amount of water You'll save energy, vitamins and flavour

Insulate If You Reorganize Keep your fridge and freezer away from the kitchen stove, direct sunlight and heat vents. Leave enough space around the fridge so you have good circulation of air

Defrost Regularly The frost build-up in a refrigerator should not exceed one-quarter inch Ice reduces the cooling power by acting as unwanted insulation

Use Your Dishwasher At Full Capacity Wash only full loads of dishes - don't use it for a few plates and forks Save them up and do a full load at the end of the day

Use Small Efficient Appliances Try pans, toasters, and kettles are more efficient than the stove for small jobs Keep them clean and in good working condition for better performance

A REMINDER

Forecast for 1977 78 Dairy Year as stated by the Alta Dairy Control Board

It would appear that the new dairy year from April 1, 1977 to March 31, 1978 will not present as many problems and uncertainties to Alberta Dairymen as the past year

Production throughout Canada has levelled off to be about in line with requiremen ts Therefore we do not expect further cuts in existing quotas and yet we cannot expect any major increases in existing total quotas

To be of assistance to Alber ta Dairymen in their planning for the coming dairy year we offer the following in formation which we believe to be conservative yet which could be subject to some variation

1. Providing you have delivered at least 90 percent of your quota the dairy year, for the 1977-78 dairy year your new quota will be at least equal to that which you now hold

2. The over-quota levies will be in effect but the rates will be less than those in effect this year

3 There will be no quota transfer assessment where the complete herd and quota are transferred to a single party

4 Some quota assistance may be available to cream producers changing over to milk - see your plant manager or dairy branch inspector

5 No quota transfers will be allowed during the month of March due to the dairy year end adjustment

6 Producers who could lose quota on the year end ad justment due to cir cumstances that fall within the definition of a catastrophe, may apply to the Dairy Board for consideration. The definition is as follows,

"catastrophe" includes severe illness or death of the quota holder, sudden death of a significant part of the

A new world of measurements

It's bad enough that we are to forget the term bushel now we have to use 'hectare' instead of acre. Well, just what is a hectare as compared to an acre? One hectare has to equal to 2.5 acres.

Starting February 1st, delivery quotas will be announced in kilograms per hectare (kg/ha). Farmers delivery permit books for the current crop year show both the old and new land measure assigned to the delivery of different crops.

Hectares for quotas purposes are already calculated in the permit book. Deliveries after February 1st will be applied against the quota figure in tonnes instead of bushels. The payment of grain delivered will be recorded as so much per tonne instead of so much per bushel.

This new metric system will eliminate the necessity of an elevator manager having to convert the net pounds of the delivers to bushels. Under monthly, to price the grain.

[illegible] the manager will [illegible] the net pounds of the grain sold and simply multiply [illegible] by the factor given for each [illegible] there [illegible] weight to volume [illegible] ferent values for each [illegible]

A 40 hectare field is about 100 acres. To find the number of hectares when you know the number of acres multiply by 0.4 or divide the number of acres by 2.5.

I Cor 1.27 But God hath chosen the foolish things to confound the wise and the weak things to confound the things which are mighty

One summer at a lake resort I was privileged to become acquainted with Homer Redshriever, the well known composer and song leader. He told me that while he was affiliated with evangelist Billy Sunday he participated in a campaign where a mentally retarded young boy came to sing each night in the choir. "Joey was not very bright" said Redshriever "but he never missed any of our meetings, and wouldn't leave until he had shook my hand

Sometimes I was rather embarrassed by the way he constantly hovered around me and I secretly wished he would discontinue the practice. Then one evening a man came with a warm handshake saying, I want to thank you for bring an kand to my son, Joey. He's not right mentally, but never has he enjoyed anything so much as singing in the choir. He works hard during the day doing simple chores for people so he could contribute to the collection. Through his pleadings my wife and my five other children came to this evangelistic campaign and have now received Christ. Last night his 75 year old grandfather who has been an atheist all his life was saved and tonight his grandmother also came forward. Now our entire family is converted." Redshriever felt rebuked that he had been annoyed by the presence of the boy. He realized once again that God delights to use the small things to accomplish His greatest miracles.

IN MEMORIAM

STAUFFER In loving memory of our dear Mother Lena who passed away February 4, 1976
Two dear bright eyes, a tender smile
A loving head that rested on pillows
Dear Lord in God that all was right
We ask to make some other bright
It was and suffering one she knew
Her struggles are over but oh the other
I know He loved well done dear Mother
Ever remembered by Evelyn, Ron man and family

Canadian comment

OTTAWA — (CP) — President Jimmy Carter's [illegible] is undoubtedly keeping the gas in the United States economy to get recovery rolling and slash the American unemployment line-up. There's more than a suggestion that Washington has warned Canada to climb on the bandwagon with the same tactics, or get lost in the [illegible].

There's no question that the Canadian wage and price control program has been at least partially successful in reducing inflation. It would have been more effective had governments at all levels behaved seriously about cutting their own spending. Most of what we get was cosmetic; there are still those in the federal cabinet fighting for a guaranteed annual income scheme.

The price of moderate success in fighting inflation has been rising unemployment which will top eight per cent this year unless the government acts. Finance Minister Donald Macdonald must produce an unemployment-cutting solution in a budget within the next few weeks.

His problem is to find the areas for tax cuts which will most effectively put Canadians back to work, without damaging the gains we've made in holding down inflation. There wouldn't be much sense in tax cuts favoring investment in new manufacturing capability, because Canada is only operating at about 75 per cent of existing production capacity at present. Neither would personal income tax cuts do a tremendous amount of good, because in Canada, the provision of extra spending power doesn't necessarily benefit Canadian manufacturers. Additional buying power supplied by personal tax cuts would quite likely be largely eaten up in spending on imported goods, particularly in a situation where the U.S. was breaking its economic neck to encourage exports.

The most promising area for Finance Minister Don Macdonald to swing his tax cutting axe would be the sales tax field as it affects labor-[illegible] products. There are many manufacturing sectors of the Canadian economy which are taxed much more heavily than their U.S. counterparts.

Such taxation policies may provide government revenue, but they contribute to lower the ability of Canadian industry to compete fairly. The automobile industry is only one example.

Don Macdonald has attacked the Finance portfolio assignment with a good balance of caution and innovation. He seems to be making more progress than any other finance minister in the last decade in solving chronic economic difficulties.

The 1977 budget will be his greatest test to date.

Tofield holds down final playoff berth

Tofield Satellites playoff hopes took a bit brighter following the club's 5-4 over Smoky Lake last Thursday night.

The victory left Tofield in safe possession of fourth place in the Beaverhill Hockey League, three points ahead of Smoky Lake who has one game in hand on the Satellites.

Second place Ryley Flyers will be in Tofield for a game on Saturday night, a game which has been tabbed as "fan appreciation night" with an unnamed local "special" citizen to be honoured.

Lamont continues to lead the standings, holding a nine two-point lead over Ryley with a game in hand. Mundare is in third place while Tofield holds down the final playoff position, followed by Smoky Lake, Holden and Andrew.

Lahusta of Mundare leads the scoring race with 81 points, followed by Hodgson of Lamont and Lucyk of Mundare. Schacher of Lamont is the league's bedman to date with 125 minutes in penalties, closely followed by Lindenberg, also of Lamont, who has amassed 112 minutes.

Service planned

A commemorative service has been planned for the Community Center in Tofield on Sunday to honour the memory of the man who founded the Boy Scout movement.

The service will get underway at two o'clock with the guest speaker being Rev. David Meddle of the Tofield United Church.

Sunday's service will be non-denominational with the public being invited to attend. Participating will be Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, Wolf Cubs and [illegible].

Next week is "Scout-Guide Week" in Canada with tribute being paid to the founder of the Scout movement, Lord Baden-Powell.

Rhonda Williams is Valentine's Queen

by Grace Phillips

Before a large audience in the gym of the Tofield School on Monday, Rhonda Williams was crowned the 1977 Valentine Queen of the Tofield Junior High School by Linda Jensen, last year's Queen.

The other Valentine princesses were Jeanne Wiens, Jo-Anne Neufeld, Monica Taylor, Sydney Gouglens and Kim Flint.

Jim Warner, president of the Big 3, was introduced by J.C. Languet, vice-principal. Jim with the assistance of vice-president Linda Jensen, introduced the remainder of the Big 3 executive and the Valentine Princesses.

Queen Rhonda drew the lucky tickets from the Valentine box. They were claimed by Mrs. Dolores Johnson and Gerry Ralph. Prizes were awarded to Aneta Kuglelndt and Terry Van Buskirk for selling the most tickets for the princesses. The princesses were presented with chocolates and necklaces, the queen received an additional prize.

Mrs. Cecile Gannon escorted by Dr. Gannon, cut the large Valentine cake.

On behalf of the Big 3, Debbie Dubiak, social convener, presented Mrs. Grace Phillips with a bouquet of spring flowers. Mrs. Phillips thanked the students, the guests and the members of the staff for their work for the annual Valentine tea.

Decorations for the tea centred on the theme "Cupid's Capers" were made by the Grade eight and nine students. All Junior High students assisted in the serving of the lunch.

Adult supervisors of the lunch preparation were Mrs. Annee Preston, Mrs. Joan Warner, Mrs. Rosel Jensen, Mrs. Helen Tiedemann and Mrs. Louise Blakley.

Sears wins farmers

A rink from Tofield High School walked off with the Bank of Montreal Trophy after they won the Grand Challenge Event during the recently concluded annual Tofield Curling Club's farmers' bonspiel.

Members of the winning rink included Dave Sears as skip along with Doug Walker, Barrie Jones and Randy Erickson.

The win was the second big one for a rink skipped by Dave Sears as his team won the County of Beaver high school championship during a bonspiel in Viking on Saturday. Other members of that rink were Doug Walker, Randy Erickson and Gordon Rehsmith.

The other finalist in the Grand Challenge was Shanchka of Vegreville while Minisk placed third and Tees Eglons was fourth.

ATA plans development

by Grace Phillips

A professional development day is to be held in Holden on Friday, Feb. 25 for all the teachers in the County of Beaver.

General sessions are in the morning, the speakers being Dr. Rollie Wardash and W. H. Brooks. The topics of their addresses will be "The Role of the Teacher" and "Back to Basics" respectively.

Afternoon sessions will be divided into Elementary, Junior High and Senior High groups where topics relevant to each group will be discussed.

Tofield in Holden out

Provincial minor hockey playoffs began last week with two area teams entered in two different categories.

Tofield has a team entered in Bantam 'C' playoffs and the team was its first outing by doubling Marwayne 4-2.

The second game in the two game total-goal series in the Zone 2 quarter finals will be played on Friday. The winner of this series will advance against Viking in the Zone [illegible].

Holden's entry in Midget 'D' competition was eliminated after they conceded when they were blanked 14-0 by Sedgewick in Zone 2 quarter finals.

Sedgewick now goes against Innisfree in the semi-finals.

Lake with the first game of the semi-finals in Sedgewick on Friday.

Ryley rink wins in Camrose spiel

A Ryley quartet swept to top honours in the annual farmers' curling banquet held in the Rose City Curling Club in Camrose.

Ted Sirulchuk of Ryley went undefeated in the week long bonspiel to take top honours and the Central Garage Trophy. Forty rinks had been entered in the competition which was divided into four events.

Other members of the winning rink included Dale Watson, Darryl Albrecht and Kevin Boggs.

Ed Dalmer of Millet finished in second place while Ray Adamson finished third with Ernie Dorn of Bruce in fourth place.

Taking the 2nd Event and the U F A Co-op Trophy was the George Heck foursome from Daysland. Other members of the rink were Darrel Anderson, Ed Blatz and Larry Blatz. Second place to the event went to Gary Schmaltz of Camrose while Gordon Gretsom of Camrose was third and Arnold Gilroy of Bawlf was fourth.

Top prize and the Camrose Implements Trophy went to Dan Hayes of Stroome whose team was composed of Dennis Loesch, Gordan Loesch and Red Zimmel.

Second place went to Dale Rath of Leduc with Roger Gretsom of Camrose third and Dennis Wilson of New Norway fourth.

Fourth Event honours and the Imperial Oil Bush Trophy went to Reg Enright of Rosalind [illegible] consisted of Karl Benson, Lake Smith and Gordon Kamerman.

Second place in this event went to Allan Cole of New Norway while Jim Loesch of Stroome was third and Roy Cunningham of Kelsey was fourth.

Eleanor Armstrong of Red Deer went through the weekend bonspiel undefeated to grab the Revelstoke Trophy. Other members of the winning rink included Bonnie Pundle, Lynn Langmore and Gilbert McPhee.

Second place went to Roberta Bait of Edmonton whose rink consisted of Bernice Patterson, Pat Meadus and Margo Ireland. Third in the event was Jolly Dreyer of Edmonton.

POTATO POWER

What is the most important natural source of vitamin C around the world? It's not lemon or orange juice. It's not green salad or fresh fruit. The answer is the potato.

In truth other fruits and vegetables surpass the potato in vitamin C content. However, it is a commodity eaten almost the world over. We eat potatoes so often that they do become an important source of vitamin C.

Peeling methods are a major factor in retaining vitamin C in potatoes. Use a sharp, stainless steel blade knife. The outer peel of the potato has the least vitamin C content while the underlying layer directly below the outer peel has the highest. The inner portion shows a constant concentration of vitamin C.

Many people consider that potatoes are a fattening food. A medium potato (3½ oz.) baked or boiled furnishes 100 calories. This is no more than 1 medium apple, 1 large orange, 1 medium banana, ½ grapefruit, 1 serving lima beans, corn or peas. A half cup of mashed potatoes has 68 calories. A half cup of cottage cheese has 116 calories.

As well as providing vitamin C potatoes contribute iron, B vitamins and essential carbohydrate.

Try these potato recipes:

Potato Salad
4 medium potatoes, boiled, peeled and sliced
1 cup tuna, shrimp, chicken or pork
1 chopped onion
½ tsp salt
½ tsp paprika
¼ tsp pepper
1 can mushroom soup.

Place layer of potatoes in buttered casserole. Top with layer of tuna, shrimp, chicken or pork, then onion. Season with salt, pepper and paprika. Repeat layers. Pour mushroom soup over all. Bake at 425 F for 30 min. Serves 4

BRAN MUFFINS
1 c All-purpose flour
2 T sugar
2 tsp baking powder
½ tsp salt
½ c grated cheddar cheese (optional)
1 egg
½ c milk
2 T rapeseed oil
1 c hot mashed potatoes

Preheat oven to 400 F. (204 C.) bun. In a large bowl blend flour, sugar, baking powder, salt and cheese (if used). In a medium bowl, thoroughly combine egg, milk, potatoes and oil; using a rotary or electric beater. Pour liquid mixture over dry ingredients and stir gently until moistened. Use as few strokes as possible. Fill greased muffin tins two-thirds full. Bake for 25 minutes. Serve hot with butter. Yields nine large or 12 medium muffins. Leftover potatoes can be reheated in oven or over low heat.

News from Ministik

Mrs. Jan Redditt

The Ladies Club meeting for February was held Wednesday afternoon at the hall, with roll call being the exchange of Valentines.

Most favorable and gratifying reports were given on the last two whist drives of the series.

Eva Davenport will convene the 4th of the series, while Margaret Paterson, Ida Ish, and Betty Williams the 5th and last of the series when aggregate prizes will also be awarded.

A bingo was planned for May 13th and mention made of the annual Strawberry Tea on June 4th.

February birthdays were Barbara Herricks and Diane Fenske. Each received a box of chocolates, a birthday card and had "Happy Birthday" sung to them.

Lunch hostesses were Mrs. Sarah Kleinschrath and Dolly Reddick.

The February Community Lunge meeting was held last Sunday evening at the hall.

Hastings Lake

Lou Fenn

The whist drive on Friday started with a considerable handicap when it was discovered that the cards and scoresheets were missing, but a little ingenuity enabled a lively evening of whist to be enjoyed by a record eight tables. Finest winners were Margaret Paterson, Don Fenn, Elsie Neufeld and Dale Winder. The next card evening is on Friday, Feb. 25th, at 8:30 p.m.

Lynn and Derrick Tiedeman held a tobogganing party on Feb. 6th for neighbours and friends. About sixty people took part, with tobogganers of all ages from two to sixty-two racking life and limb on the slope and afterwards, enjoying a hot supper outdoors around a bonfire.

Local hockey teams have done well this winter, although you may not even know where they play. The new indoor sports complex at Fultonvale is the home ice and at least three of the teams have reached the top of their league: Midget A, Peewee A and Mite A, facing opposition as far flung as Josephburg, New Sarepta, Vegreville and Tofield.

Barb and Al Chernich have just returned from a short holiday in San Francisco and enjoyed the sunshine and cherry blossoms of California. Barb is looking after the Italian dinner to be held on the hall on Saturday, Feb. 26th. The dinner starts at 6:00 p.m. and is to be followed by bingo.

The next Hall Board meeting will be on Monday, at 8:00 p.m. in the hall.

President Dennis Fenske was unable to be present so Baden Bowerman took over the chair.

A calendar of events of the league for the year was posted in the hall on the bulletin board. One can also be seen at the local store.

John Heitman resigned from the sports committee and a replacement will be sought at the March meeting.

Bill Reddick reported on the auction sale to be held on April 28. Coffee and cake was enjoyed by all in attendance.

Registrations took place at the Crafts Centre on Friday afternoon for upholstery classes. There is a full class of 13. Michael Hughes will be the tutor.

Progress of Joan Ferguson is very good, while Jeanie Wilson had a little set back and will have to have more attention to her ailing knee.

Alex Kleinschrath is a patient in the Tofield Hospital, so is his grandson, Lorne Farmer.

Margaret Paterson and Olivine Sears have been chosen as co-ordinators of the up coming County Fair '77, in August.

Ryley news items

Lena Reil

The Ryley 4-H Busy Beavers sewing club held their regular meeting in the Home Ec room on February 3. All nine members were in attendance. The members brought their material for their projects and started on them. The girls discussed the projects and achievement day. The next meeting will be held Feb. 17.

The Ryley Legion hosted the men's senior curling at the District level. Canmore won out and will go to provincial playdowns in Lethbridge.

So far no one has picked up the glasses found on Hazel Bryant a couple of weeks ago. If they are yours, phone 663-3891.

Gary Vergette and Terry Grier called on Mrs. Barbara Seaberg on Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Jean Goodall has returned home from a most enjoyable holiday in Hawaii.

In hockey, Ryley edged Lamont 5-3 and beat Holden 10-3.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Lunde of Lindbrook visited with Elmer and Agnes Lunde in Ryley on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Hellesoe's have returned back to Ryley after enjoying themselves while on holiday in Hawaii.

Mrs. Nancy James' visitors over the weekend were from Edson and Tofield. Her daughter Sharon and children were weekend guests.

A lovely Valentine party was held at Mrs. Brenda Hedglelend's home in Ryley, with her granddaughters, nieces, nephews and a couple of friends of granddaughters attending, also the parents and grandparents of the children.

RYLEY-HOLDEN 4-H HORSE CLUB

On Jan. 25 the Ryley Holden 4-H horse club had a demonstration in Ron Hisey's barn on how to mount a horse, as well as a grooming competition. The record books were discussed then ended with a lunch. Public speaking was the important topic for the Feb. 8th meeting at the Holden School. Each member brought a piece of tack and learned how to clean and polish it. Dr. Gannon will give a talk on public speaking in the Ryley School on Feb. 22 at 8:00 p.m.

All interested 4-H clubs are invited to attend.

The Ryley Lions Club held a hot social and dance on Feb. 12th with music by "The Travelers". Garnet Bornstad was guest auctioneer for the hot social. A special "Happy Birthday" was sung to Charlie Herbert.

"Now's the time for a change- to save you some change."

Fred Russell, Northwestern's Superintendent of Customer Service passes along these tips on furnace filters and how you can save money and increase your heating efficiency.

Forced-air heating system filters are designed to trap dust and lint from the air. When they become clogged, the flow of air is restricted, reducing heating efficiency, thus costing you money.

If your furnace filter is of the disposable glass fibre type, it should be cleaned monthly and replaced at least twice a year. Permanent type filters should be cleaned and oiled according to your furnace maintenance guide. If in doubt, check with your furnace contractor.

Besides checking your filter, be sure your furnace motor and fan bearings are lubricated according to manufacturer's instructions. Registers should be cleaned of dust and other objects. Furniture and rugs should not obstruct hot and cold air registers.

Get all the heat you pay for this winter by paying a little attention to your heating system now.

For more information pick up the free pamphlet "Waste Watcher's Guide To Energy" at your nearby gas company office.

METRIC UNITS
FOR GRAIN FARMERS

The Canadian grain industry will be switching to metric measurement in the near future. After that date grain will be bought and sold by the metric tonne (t). A metric tonne is equal to 1000 kilograms and should not be confused with either the short ton or the long ton. Grain prices will be quoted in dollars and cents per tonne (e.g. $140.25/t).

Grain seeding and fertilizing rates will be given in kg/ha. A hectare (ha) is equal to 10,000 square metres. Grain yields will be quoted in either kg/ha or t/ha. Land areas will generally be measured in ha, while small plots and areas of buildings will be measured in square meters.

Volumes of grain storages, truck beans, etc will be measured in cubic metres. To determine the weight of grain in a storage it is necessary to know the volume and the bulk density of the grain, which will be given in kg/m3. The approximate density of the grain can be calculated from the test weight obtained at the elevator. The test weight is the number of grams in a half litre container. Since grams/litre is the same as kg/m3, the density can be obtained by multiplying the test weight by 2. Therefore, to estimate the amount of grain in a storage:

1. Determine the volume in cubic meters.

2. Obtain the test weight of the grain.

3. Multiply the test weight by 2 to get kg/cubic meters

4. Multiply the cubic meters by the kg/cubic meters to get kg.

5. Move the decimal point three places to the left to get the number of metric tonnes.

The density of water is 1000 kg/cubic meters or 1 t/cubic meters or 1 kg/litre.

Grain densities are lower than that of water, with a range from about 310 kg/cubic meters for sunflower seed to 770 kg/cubic meters for beans and peas. Average bulk densities are approximately as follows:

Wheat 750 kg/cubic meters
Flax 680
Rapeseed and Mustard 640
Buckwheat 618
Rye 720 kg/cubic meters
Corn 700
Barley 630
Oats 470

Smaller volumes, mostly liquids, will be measured in litres. A litre of water weighs 1 kg. There are 1000 litres in a cubic metre. Very small volumes will be measured in millilitres (ml). A ml of water weighs 1 g, and there are 1000 ml in a litre.

Long distances will be measured in kilometres (km) and very short lengths in millimetres (mm). There are 1000 mm in a metre and 1000 m in a km.

The centimetre is now being used to measure snow fall. It will also be used for body dimensions and a few other items.

Pressure will be measured in kilopascals (kPa), and a typical car tire will require about 200 kPa for proper inflation.

Chemical application rates will be given in g/ha or litre/ha. About 140 litres/ha of water will be used with many chemicals.

Power ratings of tractors and engines will be given in kilowatts (kW), which is the same unit that is already used for electric power.

If you wish to become more familiar with making measurements in metric, we have several publications on metrics and can obtain a slide show for group showings.

DRY SKIN MADE BEAUTIFUL AND COMFORTABLE!

There is a new creme that actually soothes skin dryness in a most dramatic way. It works by significantly raising the skin's depleted water level to the point at which dryness no longer exists. Its name is COCREMA, and it is made with the purest grade of select cocoa butter. When used to take the "horror" out of skin dryness, it transmits moisture. Just a few bedtime applications of COCREMA Dry Skin Creme and your skin dryness given way to new, fresh radiant beauty of the kind that quickens the pulses of those around you. And, the new beauty is lasting too COCREMA Dry Skin Creme is so easy to use and makes your skin feel so good

"MUSIC APPRECIATED
R. R. 1, Tofield, Alberta
Feb. 7, 1977

Dear Sir
I would like to send a big "Bouquet" to the Music Director of the Tofield School, Mr. Everett Norris

Mr Norris came to Tofield in the fall of 1975 and since that time has worked so very hard for the music students in Tofield. He gives so freely of his time and asks nothing in return except some cooperation from students and parents. He has practice almost every night after school for one class or another and due to his efforts has some very remarkable "Stage Bands". Especially the senior band which is a real success. We in Tofield can be very proud of the talent these youngsters have

"Thanks" Mr Norris for your unselfish efforts
A Grateful Parent

The Tofield School Stage Band is busy practising for a debut in the Edmonton Plaza on March 10th, when they will be playing during the annual teachers convention. The band is playing under the direction of Bob Coins.

Students will check career opportunities

A plan to help students plan and investigate career opportunities will be implemented on March 23rd when Viking School will host a day-long project involving Grade 9 through 12 students from Viking, Holden, Ryley, Tofield and students from the Counties of Minburn and Two Hills.

The County of Beaver has been able to tap the considerable expertise and resources of the Counselling and Guidance Branch of the Department of Education and Athabasca University plus, industry, business, colleges, technical schools, the university and local people for this project

Students and their parents will be invited to attend presentations and ask questions on various career fields which represent a wide cross-section of possibilities available to the youth of today

An orientation program for students Grades 9 through 12 has been developed by Athabasca University and will be presented by teachers in the County who have volunteered to prepare the students so as to maximize the utilization of the extremely competent consultants who have donated their time to the cause of making our students aware of the considerable challenges and opportunities awaiting them in Alberta

Each of the twenty four consultants will present his or herspn as many times as the need dictates. A teacher acts as a chairperson for each session and coordinates the presentation which consists of a 15-20 minute film or slide presentation of a recent and relevant nature, a prepared address by the consultant who will speak on careers in his field, career ranges, career progression, advantages and disadvantages, how to get started and qualities needed

Following will be a question and answer period of 5-10 minutes for a total of 30 minutes. Sessions begin at 9:30 and henceforth for each hour of the day until 2:30.

Parents are encouraged to attend and they may apply at a specially created Parent Information booth in the Viking School where a guide will be assigned to them.

Professional Day held for teachers

By Grace Phillips

Teachers in the County of Beaver attended a Professional Development Day in Holden on Feb. 18.

The Dr. Rollie Ward, an educator of long experience, chose as his topic "The Role of the Teacher." He reviewed the expectations of society in 1872 and in 1925 when, he said, teachers were expected to set a standard of conduct not necessarily followed by the members of the community. Modern communities require socially acceptable behavior in accordance with prevalent social standards.

Dr Ward urged teachers to develop in their students respect for law. He felt that character development, though of vital importance cannot be taught, rather, it is caught from those with whom [illegible] is associated.

The large number of students in classes makes personal relationships between student and teacher difficult. Dr Ward saw large classes as a detrimental factor. A good teaching lie urged that teachers become involved to a reasonable extent, in community activities.

Robin Stuart of the A.T.A. speaking on "Back to the Basics" felt that the "basics" were all that conditions in pioneer days required but in the modern world, students must also have cultural subjects added to the bare bones of education.

Schools, with many added courses, have been expected by society to cure its ills and solve its problems. Such expectations are not reasonable and the problems remain.

The term "basics" seems to mean different things to different people. To some it means cutting off all the modern additions to the curriculum but the element of compulsion is the reservoir question. "If the clock is to be turned back for school, should it also not be turned back for bosses? transportation" work? but many people would be willing to return to pioneer conditions. Why should the schools do so?

The welfare of the students should be everyone's primary concern. Teachers should be allowed and encouraged to do a quality job with adequate finances, smaller classes, inservice training and professional autonomy. Under such conditions, the "basics" will be, and have been taught

Reacting to the two speakers were panel members Dr N Gannon, R. Wells, J Jepson and D Watson

Lunch, courtesy of the County of Beaver, was served by a Holden ladies organization

The afternoon was spent in group discussions in various subject areas. At 3 o'clock, a brief meeting of the Beaver Local of the ATA was held with president [illegible] in the chair

Holden holds ladies 'spiel

by Mrs G H. Taylor

Holden Ladies Curling Club held their annual bonspiel recently with twenty-four rinks entered.

The bonspiel was a huge success with the B Kemmerinsky rink winning the First Event and trophies provided by Beaver Motors and Cassly Dishes.

Second place went to J Hebewaychuk with C Maxwell coming in third while L. Kentie was fourth

Taking the Second Event and the Revelstoke Trophy was I Leiss with David's foursome placing second while M. Malick was third and M. Curtis placed fourth

B. Matoga won the Third Event and M and M Burns Trophy. Second place went to Trieger while A. Stary was third and M Heigeland was fourth.

Girl hears story read over radio

By Grace Phillips

Tracey Reil, Grade six student of Curtis Hastings in Tofield School, had the honour of having her story read over the Alberta School Broadcast program "Write On" on Monday

Other students from Mr Hastings class were given honorable mention on the same program. These were Duncan Fairbrother, Deanna Matyeso and Kim Bredie

The four students were participants in the Young Writers Club featured on the Alberta School Broadcasts program

After listening to the program, they reacted in writing and Mr Hastings sent their top efforts in to the program director. As a result, the students had the rewarding experience of listening to Monday's broadcast

Tofield ATA has meeting

By Grace Phillips

Bob Garness, president chaired the February meeting of the Tofield sub-local of the Alberta Teachers' Association last Wednesday

Members heard the treasurer's report. They were reminded of the arrangements for reservations at the Plaza Hotel Edmonton for the Teachers Convention on March 10 and 11

Mr. Garness stated that a memorandum of agreement had been signed between the Elk Island Trustees' Association and the ETA Inland Teachers' Regional Bargaining Association, of which the County of Beaver teachers are now members.

It was announced that a donation had been sent to the Tofield Hospital by the sub-local as a memorial to Terry Adams.

Communication between the school and the home was discussed. The Tofield Journal, newsletter and agendas in The Mercury were mentioned as channels of communication

Information regarding the forthcoming Professional Development Day was distributed.

Honoured

Andy Heiberg was presented with a plaque in recognition of his outstanding community service by the citizens of the Tofield-Ryley Districts. The presentation was made to Mr Heiberg in the Tofield Arena on Saturday night between periods of the Tofield-Ryley hockey game with Ron Gaeglon making the presentation

More than fees

Minister of Advanced Education, Dr. Bert Hohol is being lauded in some areas and damned in others for his action recently in imposing higher university fees for foreign or visa students entering the province's post-secondary institutions next fall, for the first time. Students already enrolled in courses will not be charged the higher rate, unless they switch courses.

From many points of view, we support Dr. Hohol, but we wonder if other considerations shouldn't have been applied also.

For instance, in several faculties, there is an arbitrary quota or percentage reserved for the foreign students, which, in effect, reserves a specific number of seats exclusively for them.

Unhappily, this quota isn't necessarily tied to the same academic requirements demanded of our own students, with the result that often Albertan students with excellent marks, but just a mite below the level set by the severe competition among our own, find themselves unable to gain a seat in the classrooms, while foreign students with much lower ratings are admitted because of the quota.

We'll acknowledge that the same thing happens in reverse, too. When the quota for foreign students is filled, they too can't get in, even though they may top some of ours.

The point is, Alberta's taxpayers are paying the shot over many years to educate these pupils. Even at the new increased rates for university tuition, the taxpayer picks up from seventy to eighty percent of the tab, and similar rates would seem to cover the public colleges and similar institutions

It seems to us Alberta still does pretty well by the outside students. . . the question is, how fair are we being to our own? And do we really help other countries by educating their pupils . . . do they return home to use and develop all their knowledge, or remain here to exploit it?

Disturbing trend

Almost regardless of how you look on the major corporations and the huge profits they earn, there is room for very general concern with the figures produced last week by Statistics Canada for the fourth quarter of 1976, as compared with the same period the year before.

According to the government statistical survey, Canadian industrial corporations overall recorded a drop of nine percent in their profits after taxes, as compared with the year before, despite the fact that sales overall were up more than eight percent. Putting the two together, it means profits fell off by nearly seventeen percent, which is really a shocking report, and not too bright an outlook. Because after all, jobs are tied to profits, and we need more and more jobs to take care of the growing number of workers on the job market.

The survey breaks figures down into three major categories, mining, manufacturing and other industries. And here it's interesting to note that the overall performance would have been far worse had it not been for gains made by the mining sector However, after-tax profits in the manufacturing area fell eleven percent, despite sales increases of nine percent, whereas in "other" industries, the drop was seventeen percent even in the face of sales increases amounting to six percent!

Looking at reports which say profits reached over two billion dollars, many people would say that really isn't too bad after all, but contrasted to sales figures of more than sixty billion, it doesn't loom very large. Whereas last year's profits came out to slightly over four cents profit per sales dollar, this year's are just under 3.6 cents. And many people aren't many people who would knowingly invest their savings for that kind of return, at either level.

Report from

Parliament Hill

DON MAZANKOWSKI, MP

The House of Commons resumed sitting on January 24th following the Christmas recess Prior to the Christmas break, the Session has seen only three bills passed into legislation and three were of minor significance The government began this sitting with the same lack of interest in serious issues The first order of business was a resolution to televise the proceedings of the House. The resolution passed but [illegible] costing will not begin until a special committee examines the costs and technical considerations involved.

A Bill currently at Committee stage, which is causing concern in western Canada is Bill C-33, which facilitates conversion to the metric system in the grains industry

The Bill proposes to replace acres with hectares and bushels with tonnes. The new system was to go into effect on February 1st, but because of the difficulties it will cause western agricultural producers, implementation has been postponed through the efforts of the Progressive Conservative M P's

Other Bills in the government order of business include a new Bill of Rights, immigration legislation, a transportation policy and amendments to advance payments legislation After March 31st, a motion will be introduced by the Progressive Conservative Party to initiate a debate on whether or not the Anti-Inflation controls program should continue The Finance Minister is expected to bring down a budget before the summer Such a move is surely needed to deal with the problems of sagging investment, unemployment and a sluggish economy It is to be hoped that the budget will contain measures to deal with these serious issues

The government has stated that it wants to pass thirteen pieces of legislation before Easter If it continues to pressure the House with insignificant or repugnant measures, however, this does not seem like a feasible objective During the months ahead I will continue to keep you informed as to the proceedings of the House of Commons.

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA — (SP) — Speculation that there may be a federal election sometime in 1977 has been cropping up periodically for the past six weeks The Progressive Conservatives and the New Democrats are taking the possibility seriously, to the extent of making sure that their political machines are ready to be thrown into gear, but despite rising Liberal fortunes in the Gallup poll, odds are heavily against Prime Minister Trudeau going to the people

Opposition parties fear that the Liberals, who have been down to rock bottom in the polls, will seize the opportunity presented by increased popularity and the advent of a Parti Quebecois government in Quebec City to try and father a renewed mandate

They also point out that things may be getting pretty tough economically later this year, and the Liberals would not want to face the country in 1978 with the state of the economy in shambles

The argument is being made that the Liberals are ready to strike with an early election because they want to avoid facing the country under the new distribution of seats in the House of Commons Any election held after June 11 this year will be on the new seats [illegible] Under the Election Act, the Chief Electoral Officer must call more seats for a general election between the 22nd and 30th day following the dissolution of Parliament

Is it all a co-incidence?

Holidaying in the Southern United States Stewart Sonder of Dubawnt came across the following report and felt it might prove just as interesting to many of our readers as it did to him

From Page 4 in the March 10 1970 issue of The Moles Messenger it reads:

"COINCIDENCE"
In May of 1919 at Diisseldorf, Germany the Allied Forces obtained a copy of some of the Communist Rules of Revolution. Nearly 50 years later the Reds are still following them After reading the list stop after each item and think about the present day situation here and all around our nation

A Corrupt the young, get them away from religion Get them interested in sex Make them superficial, destroy their ruggedness

B Get control of all means of publicity, thereby:

1 Get people's minds off their government by focusing their attention on athletics, sexy books and plays and other trivialities

2 Divide the people into hostile groups by constantly harping on controversial matters of no importance

3 Destroy the people's faith in their natural leaders by holding the latter up to contempt ridicule and disgrace

4 Always preach true democracy, but seize power as fast and ruthlessly as possible

5 By encouraging government extravagance, destroy its credit, produce fear of inflation with rising prices and general discontent

6 Incite unnecessary strikes in vital industries, encourage civil disorders and foster incompetent and soft attitude on the part of government toward such disorders

7 By specious argument cause the breakdown of the old moral virtues, honesty, sobriety, self restraint, faith in the pledged word, rugged honor

C Cause the registration of all firearms on some pretext with a view of confiscating them and leaving the population helpless

That was quite a list, wasn't it? Now stop and think . . . how many of these rules are being carried out in this nation today? I don't see how any thinking person can truthfully say that the communists do not have any part in the chaos that is upsetting our nation Or is it just one big coincidence"

Agriculture moves into metric orbit

Three Sector Plans for the Canadian agricultural sector are expected to be submitted to the Metric Commission for review and approval early this fall, covering Grains and Oilseeds (6 1 1), Foods (6 1 2) and Feed Trade and Seed Growers (6 1 3) Recommendations of these Sector Plans by the Sector Committees, expected within a few months, will mark the beginning of scheduling, the third phase of Canada's four phase metric conversion program in the agricultural, fishing and trapping sectors

These plans will provide guidelines to conversion for several aspects of those sectors to groups such as cash crop farmers, livestock, poultry and seed suppliers and users By following the [illegible] timing will be co-ordinated within the sector and between suppliers and customers or end-users and conversion will be accomplished at minimum disruption and cost

What Do Those Dates Mean?
To Livestock and Poultry Feeders

Although some feed suppliers may begin packaging their feeds in metric sizes this September the majority are expected to wait until just before the "must convert" date, February 1, 1977

The feeds will be packaged in 5 kg, 10 kg, 20 kg, 25 kg and 40 kg bags and bulk sales will be by the tonne (1000 kg)

[illegible]
February 1, 1977
February 1, 1977
February 1, 1979
January 1, 1979
July 1, 1979

There will of course, be no difference in the actual feed [illegible] only the bag size or the unit of bulk sell storage

Automatic feeders will not need to be re-adjusted right away Feeds such as milk replacers may continue to be [illegible] and mixing devices.

Automatic proportioning mixer-grinders may be used as previously, unless the actual formula is changed

Scales, such as those used by hog producers for check weighing market hogs, would not need to be converted immediately Equivalent and desirable sizes in kilograms can easily be marked on the beam when hog grading standards have been converted

In short, equipment now in use need not be replaced until it wears out and needs replacing, or until the farmer finds that the change to metric should be made for his own convenience.

To Seed Users

Metric seed packages will begin to appear in spring, 1977. For field crops, sizes will most likely be 100 g, 1 kg, 2 kg, 5 kg, 10 kg and 25 kg bags Cars will continue to be sold by mass as well as by [illegible] ing 60 000 kernels) Seeds for gardening are likely to be packaged in 1 g, 2 g, 5 g, 10 g, 25 g, 50 g, 125 g, 250 g and 500 g sizes Some flower seeds, such as lobtrula may be sold in envelopes packaged by count, as they are now

For Seed Equipment

Seed drills will be used at the same settings and spacings as before conversion Corn planters may be used with the same plates or new metric ones and would depend only on corn variety and size of kernel

Farm maps should be converted to show the number of hectares that in each field for easy calculation of seed, pesticide and fertilizer requirements (1 ha 10 000 m-2)

Seed growers who also operate cleaning plants may wish to convert scales [illegible] conversion tables may be used until it is convenient to replace or convert scales

To Cash Crop Producers

Deliveries and sales made on and after February 1, 1977 will use the tonne (1) as the unit of sale, replacing the bushel It is in this area that the simplicity of the metric system is demonstrated Adoption of SI will eliminate the time-consuming, and sometimes error-causing, conversion of pounds to bushels that now must be made each time grain is moved or trade

Although harvesting equipment need not be converted right away, it would be advisable to make a note of the capacity of combine tanks and storage bins in cubic metres (m-3) Here again, equipment need not be replaced until it [illegible]

To Dairy Farmers

To the extent that dairy farmers are users of prepared feeds, they will be affected by the feed conversion dates The end product, milk, will most likely be sold off the farm by the litre (1) beginning about April 1, 1977 The kilogram (kg) will be used for record of production and other record purposes

The dairy farmers only concern with equipment would be recalibration of bulk milk tank charts, which will likely be the task of marketing agencies, and of farmers are involved in a recording program, recalibration of the measuring equipment

1 Corinthians 10 31 whether therefore ye eat or drink or whatever you do, do all to the glory of God

Since man's highest purpose is to glorify God, it is possible for the Christian to honor the Lord wherever he has been called to serve Any worthwhile occupation performed according to the Father's will provides an opportunity to exalt His name

Charles Spurgeon once said, if we desire to bring glory to God, we need not give up our business, unless it is morally wrong. Some people have the mistaken notion that the only way they can live for the Saviour is as women's missionary or a missionary But if this were true many of us would be prevented from magnifying the Lord in our daily lives! Among the most effective servants of God I have ever known are men and women engaged in secular work, but whose overwhelming ambition is to glorify the Heavenly Father I think of a dear friend for example, who owns a furniture store His office is a Spiritual maternity ward for many sinful souls have experienced the new birth there A note of praise permeates every aspect of his business Many other people who come to mind who in their daily employment carry out their work "heartily as unto the Lord and not to men" These faithful laborers exalt the name of Jesus as they conscientiously fulfill their responsibilities and bear witness by their wor

Build pipeline to Ft. McMurray

December 23 (Canada newswire) — Alberta Oil Sands Pipeline Ltd. announced today that contracts for the northern 186-mile section of its oil pipeline from Fort McMurray to Edmonton have been awarded to Banister Pipelines and a joint venture between Pe Ben Pipelines Limited and H.C. Price Canada Ltd. The awards are subject to satisfactory completion of contractual terms.

The joint venture will do approximately one-half of the work and Banister Pipelines the other half on the two 75-mile portions of the 32-inch diameter pipeline The successful bids, which total $12 4 million, were $2 3 million above the lowest tender

Syncrude has advised that, should its gas line and the Alberta Oil Sands Pipeline both be constructed by union contractors, the operating engineers will sign an agreement relating to the Syncrude project, thereby forestalling the possibility of a legal strike in April 1977

In January, 1977 work is expected to commence on the northern section of the pipeline, with completion of the entire line to be accomplished before April 1978

The back step looks like an extra store shelf Husband Bob has decided that sprucing is here and has taken upon himself to greet the season's early arrival by officially opening the outdoor cooking craze.

"Bob, nobody barbecues in February Listen, I'll cook these steaks in the oven, bake some potatoes and prepare some corn on the cob You can take your supper and eat it outside. But don't light that barbecue, people will think you're nuts."

No matter how "outdoorsy" I described supper, the words floated past his ears as he reassembled the barbecue which had been neatly tucked away for the winter well after last year's barbecue season had ended.

Most women would be happy if their husbands showed the flair for summer cooking my husband shows Every spring I tell myself how lucky I am not to have to prepare all the meals and every time I curse that barbecue I seem more intensley

"The barbecue is set up, cleaned and ready for the season. Do you know where the barbecue forks and things are?"

"In the last cupboard drawer to your left."

Then it starts

"Is there any barbecue sauce in the fridge or should I take a bottle from the store? Did you order that barbecue spice I told you about? And where do you keep the garlic salt, the instant meat tenderizer and the onion salt?"

He's found everything he needed and now the back step looks as though he has built an annex onto the store.

"Bob, I don't mind you hauling half of the kitchen onto the back step but must you mopping up the barbecue brick dust be dragged into the house

I enjoyed the steaks but already I am praying for a snowstorm to lengthen winter and shorten the barbecue season

YOU AND YOUR FOOD DOLLAR

Agriculture Canada has the following article that reminds us of wise ways to use our food dollar

Dollars spent for eating are dollars well spent. Or are they? Do you often wonder if you make the best use of your food money?

First, leave your budget needs and what you can afford to spend on food You should spend enough to give your family nutritious meals they enjoy eating. Plan your menus for the week taking advantage of seasonal foods but keeping it flexible enough to allow for special bargains or unexpected company Fellow Canada's Food Guide to ensure a well-balanced, nutritious diet.

Shop only once a week, alone, avoiding impulse buying Check what you have on hand in cupboard, refrigerator and freezer and allow for the amount of storage and refrigerator space you have Buy by grade whenever possible and choose the grade that suits the use. Check a "special" price with the regular price, sometimes it's not really a "special"

Prevent waste by proper storage Put frozen foods in the freezer immediately and all dairy products in the refrigerator Handle fresh fruits gently and use promptly Use fresh vegetables as soon as possible Tread in its original wrapper keeps fresher at room temperature or in the freezer, in hot weather, refrigerator storage will prevent molding

Save on food by using reliable recipes and follow them closely avoiding unnecessary leftovers Save bacon fat in covered jars in the refrigerator and use as fat and flavoring for sauces, casseroles, eggs, potatoes and French toast Freeze bones from roasts or poultry, scraps of meat, leftover vegetables and their cooking liquid for making soups Roll or grind stale bread and use for breading or topping

These are only a few hints on stretching your food dollar. Finding ways to cut food costs is a continuing concern and should be taken very seriously!

Remote sensing aids resource management

Remote sensing from aircraft and satellites is being used to monitor the environmental changes brought about by hydroelectric developments in James Bay, Quebec, and northern Manitoba.

The nature and size of both regions makes the collection of information a formidable task. The James Bay Development Corporation, for example, is responsible for an area of 138,000 square miles. The whole area is covered by 38 satellite images. Information obtained using remote sensing techniques is proving valuable for classifying lakes, making inventories of forests, monitoring the movement of ice and surveying wildlife.

The Canada Centre for Remote Sensing, a branch of the department of Energy, Mines and Resources, is helping the Societe de developpement de la Baie James to carry out a lake classification study, one of its most important environmental projects. The information being collected by aircraft on the conductivity, color, depth, acidity, surface temperature and oxygen content of the multitude of lakes in the region will be used to manage these resources.

In Manitoba, water from the Churchill River is being diverted through the Rat and Burntwood Rivers into the Nelson River to produce hydroelectric power. As a result, the level of Southern Indian Lake will rise ten feet, the flow of water through the Rat and Burntwood Rivers will increase by 30,000 feet per second, and the level of Lake Winnipeg will be regulated to store water for the power plant.

Since the development will flood thousands of acres of land and change the flow of water through many channels and rivers, shoreline erosion, sedimentation patterns, ice conditions and water quality can be expected to change. Ultimately, all these factors will affect fisheries, wildlife and recreational areas. The changes must be monitored so that hazards to the environment can be detected early and perhaps reduced before they become unmanageable.

The Lake Winnipeg, Churchill and Nelson Rivers' study Board has completed a project that predicts the impact of the hydroelectric project on the environment. Satellite imagery is helping to assess whether the actual impact is consistent with the study's predictions.

WE'RE CALGARY POWER

We'd like to shed a little light on some questions you may have about us.

Our name is Calgary Power and we've been in the business of supplying electrical power to Albertans since 1911.

We are, and always have been, a Canadian company. Over 99% of our shares are registered in Canada—keeping the money in Canada working for Canadians. Albertans make up 33% of our shareholders. As a free enterprise company we don't receive taxes — we pay them.

We're proud of our Alberta heritage and are planning for the future — to ensure you have electricity when and where you want it.

RCMP are checking defective vehicles

In addition to a crackdown on speeders, RCMP are also going to go after drivers operating defective motor vehicles

The crackdown on motorists with defective equipment is not limited to certain areas but, is province wide as RCMP attempt to take additional steps to bring an end to the high accident and fatality rate in the province

The campaign to force motorists to have their vehicles in good running order began on Monday morning throughout the province with RCMP stopping vehicles for thorough equipment checks with written warnings or summonses being issued to offenders

As well, RCMP will have vehicles removed from the road if violations are considered excessive

At the same time, RCMP will be paying special attention to such driving offences as failing to signal, lane changes or turns, improper parking of vehicles on the highway, drinking drivers and other related liquor offences

RCMP have issued a request for public co-operation in the safety campaign by having motorists check their vehicle's equipment such as horn, lights, brakes, glass, turn indicators, windshield wipers and by having defective equipment replaced.

While announcing the new highway checks, RCMP have also issued a warning to operators of snowmobiles that it is illegal to operate such machines on any property but your own or on land on which you have permission to travel without valid insurance and license plates

Such insurance and license plates are needed for snowmobile rallies as route usually mean travelling, at least partially, on public property

Anyone having any questions regarding the law and snowmobiles are urged to contact the nearest detachment of the RCMP for more information

Kingman Scouts, Cubs host area's oldtimers

The Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs of Kingman learned some of the history of their community from the people who helped make that history

The occasion was a giant get-together in the Kingman Hall on Monday night as the Cubs and Scouts hosted the senior citizens of the area for an evening of getting acquainted and talks about the "good old days"

After the Wolf Cubs opened the evening with their traditional howl, members of the Boy Scouts followed with a gymnastics demonstration

The Cubs then joined Dale Wissler in singing a couple of nonsense songs which were followed by Lorne Brace and his two sons, Martin and John, who rendered three songs. Old photographs and artifacts were then put on display with the older members of the community explaining the history as depicted by the pictures Some of the younger boys were quite surprised by earlier pictures of their dads which showed them with an abundance of hair The older members of the community enlivened the occasion by telling stories of the earlier days in the Kingman area which the younger generation thoroughly enjoyed

The evening ending was arranged by the Scouts and Cubs in honour of Boy Scout Week which is being celebrated this week throughout the world

Because Monday evening's program was such a huge success, the Scouts and Cubs are attempting to make arrangements for another evening to which they would invite the entire community

Power contracts blowing fuses

Newfoundland and Quebec are preparing for what may be the biggest legal battle over Labrador since the island won 110,000 square miles of the territory from Canada in 1927, writes Michael Harrington from St. John's. The long-simmering issue is exploding again because the Quebec government has refused to allow Newfoundland and Labrador Hydro to recapture from Hydro-Quebec some of the output from Newfoundland's giant Churchill Falls hydro-electric power plant. Newfoundland wants 800,000 kilowatts back from its prime customer in order to justify the construction of a transmission line across Labrador and the Strait of Belle Isle into Newfoundland This line was originally intended to carry power from a hydro plant Newfoundland wants to develop on the Lower Churchill (Gull island), a project that has been temporarily shelved The province proposed paying for the power the same price it charges Hydro-Quebec But Quebec wants about 10 times that price or 7.000 - 10.000 square miles of southern Labrador an area which strategically includes the headwaters of five large rivers draining into the St Lawrence Newfoundland says no to this - and the difficult impasse eventually may have to be settled by the Supreme Court of Canada or by federal government intervention, or possibly both Newfoundland now has requested Churchill Falls to sell it the 800,000 kilowatts, claiming the corporation can do this under a lease that predates the Quebec contract

Reclamation of Agricultural Land Disturbed by Surface Mining for Coal in the Camrose-Ryley Area of Alberta

This report is a brief nontechnical description of the first test results from agricultural land reclamation research being conducted on the SW 14-48-19-4, four miles east and 1.75 miles south of Roundhill, Alberta. These investigations are located in the Camrose-Ryley area where coal mining has been propcaed The plots are on farm land representative of much of the area Experimental use was made of some mine spoil materials from a small inactive coal mine located on the same quarter section

Research Objective

Government regulations in Alberta require that agricultural land disturbed by surface mining for coal be restored to a level of agricultural productivity equal to or better than that which prevailed prior to mining

There is need for proof that reclamation of surface mined areas is realistic and a need for knowledge of how to obtain the most favourable results at the lowest cost compatible with full restoration or enhancement of agricultural productivity after mining

The research work began in 1975 when several trenches were excavated and filled with different materials to establish plots that would be used for several years of research and reclamation demonstration

Description of Research Site

The plots are located in a farm field that was cropped to oats in 1974 and has been under cultivation for many years. The plot site has three soils which are dominant in the Camrose-Ryley area

(a) Angus Ridge loam, a Black Chernozemic soil of superior agricultural quality because of the deep layer of humus-rich topsoil (Ah) about 10 inches in depth

(b) Camrose loam, a Black Solonetzic soil also with a good depth of Ah (about 6 to 8 inches) and having a clay-enriched subsoil (Bnt) commonly known as "hard pan" or "solonetzic layer", a condition that is characteristic of the Solonetzic soils in Alberta

(c) An inadequately drained Gleysolic soil characteristic of the low wet places and pothole margins in the area

A detailed description of these soils may be found in Alberta Soil Survey Report No. 21

Description of Research Project

The investigations are designed to compare the agricultural yields from several materials (some of which are favourable plant growth media) which may be used to re-establish crops on levelled mined land Using a bulldozer and a front-end loader, five trenches 14 feet wide, 5 feet deep and 200 feet long were excavated leaving about 12 feet of undisturbed land between the trenches Figure 1 shows the field plan of the research area in relation to the world

After the trenches had been excavated they were filled with the following combinations of subsoil and mine spoil materials (Figure 1)

Trench No.	Composition of Materials Placed in Trenches
1	Mixture — 75% till and 25% shale
2	Old mine run spoil (run of pile)
3	Till
4	Upper 4 feet of original soil (mixed)
5	Mixture — 50% till and 50% shale

Trenches which were excavated and filled with different mixtures of subsoil and mine spoil materials

Mixing of the trench fill was done with this front-end loader

The sources of these materials were till — excavated from the 3 to 5 foot level of the trenches during excavation, old mine run spoil — from the nearby coal mine

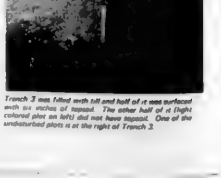
shale — from the nearby coal mine, upper 4 feet original soil — excavated from the trenches and mixed topsoil (Ah) — stripped from the surface of the trenches prior to excavation

When the trenches had been filled a six inch layer of black topsoil (Ah) was placed as surfacing on one-half of each trench (Figure 1)

Samples of the undisturbed land and of the materials placed in the trenches were taken for chemical analyses The tests employed are used internationally by soil scientists and reclamation research workers to categorize the suitability of soils, subsoils, geological materials and mine spoils as growth media for crops and other vegetation

The filling of the trenches was completed in June 1975 and they were left in fallow for the balance of the year In mid-September wheat was seeded to secure some cover crop to protect the surface from erosion during fall and spring



Trench 3 was filled with till and half of it was surfaced with six inches of topsoil. The other half of it (light colored plot on left) did not have topsoil. One of the undisturbed plots is at the right of Trench 3.

As seen here, Bonanza barley grew fairly well on the topsoiled part of Trench 2, and grew even better on Trench 3 (lower and camera right)

On May 28, 1976 the trenches and the undisturbed strips between them were seeded to Bonanza barley, in rows 14 inches apart, by a grain drill seedbox [illegible] with a modified [illegible] Fertilizer was applied at the rate of 45 lbs. of nitrogen (N), 50 lbs of phosphate (P_2O_5) and 30 lbs of potash (K_2O) per acre An alsalka-crested wheat grass mixture was seeded between the barley rows to establish a forage crop stand for 1977 as the start of a forage crop-cereal [illegible]

Barley Yields from Research Plots

When the barley was ready for harvesting (September 2) ten samples for grain yield determination were taken from each of the plots, both with and without topsoil and also from each of the undisturbed control strips The individual barley samples were threshed, weighed separately and the yields determined

Importance of Soil Tests

The yield data in Table 1 are logically related to the respective levels of soluble salts in the various materials as shown by the following data secured by soil test analyses

Soil Salinity Analyses and Interpretation

Trench No.	Growth media	Conductivity millimhos/cm (a)	SAR (b)	Interpretation As Growth Media (c)
1	75% till — 25% shale	4.0	8.0	favourable
2	old mine run spoil	8.2	11.0	unfavourable
3	till	4.0	9.0	favourable
4	upper 4 feet original soil, mixed	4.2	7.5	favourable
5	till 50% — shale 50%	6.4	12.0	unfavourable

Table 1 — Barley yields on selected Mine Overburden Materials and on Adjoining Undisturbed Land — 1976.

Trench No.	Growth Media	Bonanza Barley — Bushels per Acre* With Topsoil	Without Topsoil	Undisturbed Land
1	Mixture 75% till and 25% shale	67	62
	Undisturbed land			66
2	Old Mine run spoil mixed	75	56
	Undisturbed land			80
3	Till	89	58
	Undisturbed land			84
4	Upper 4 feet original soil, mixed	72	61
	Undisturbed land			61
5	Mixture 50% till and 50% shale	73	31

*fractions of bushels not shown

(a) Conductivity is an electrical measure of the amount of water soluble salts ("alkali") in the materials The higher the conductivity the greater the amount of salt present

(b) SAR is a measure of the relative amount of sodium among the salts present Materials with high SAR values tend to be exceedingly sticky and difficult to work They are unfavourable media for plant roots

(c) The more favourable materials have the lower conductivity and SAR levels

Trench 2 and Trench 5 (without topsoil) produced lowest yields — 56 bushels and 31 bushels per acre respectively They also had the highest conductivity and SAR values. This relationship confirms the usefulness of soil test analyses.

Conclusions

1 Yields were substantially increased by surfacing the plots with topsoil with the exception of Trench 4. The reason for the decrease in Trench 4 is not known but it is believed that an error in tagging grain samples may have occurred during the harvest Observations during the growing season indicated a growth increase for the [illegible] surfaced with topsoil on Trench 4

2 The three trenches containing material rated as favourable to plan growth, namely Trenches 1, 3 and 4 produced yields of 67, 89 and 81 bushels per acre respectively These yields are very similar to the yields on the undisturbed control plots. It is noted that the yields on Trenches 1, 3 and 4 were obtained prior to the benefit of the legumes and grasses in the planned crop rotation

3 The yield data obtained in the first test year supports the position that the agricultural productivity of land disturbed by surface mining can be returned to levels equal to the yield from undisturbed land

4 The yield data also indicate that choices exist in the selection of material to be used as growth media for crop production on reclaimed land. This will assist in the selection of materials that will permit the cost savings sought as part of this research program

Glossary

Ah — The A horizon enriched with humus or organic

Bnt — The B horizon when:
(n) it contains over 15% exchangeable sodium, or more exchangeable sodium plus magnesium than calcium;
(t) it is enriched with silicate clay

Chernozemic — An Order of soils including soils with a thick, nearly black, or black organic-matter-rich A horizon

Gleysolic — An Order of soils that are saturated with water continuously or during some period of the year

Overburden — All of the material that lies above or [illegible] the coal seam

Shale — A rock formation commonly found overlying coal

Solonetzic — An Order of soils usually with a thin A horizon and a [illegible] columnar B horizon that often presents an impervious or "hard-pan" condition

Spoil — Overburden material after it has been excavated or moved as in surface mining

Till — Unstratified glacial till or glacial drift deposited by the ice and consisting of clay, sand, gravel and boulders intermingled

AMA wants more duty free shops

Canadian motorists travelling across the international border should enjoy the same duty free shopping privileges as air or sea travellers according to the Alberta Motor Association.

The Association in conjunction with the Canadian Automobile Association, is therefore urging changes in government legislation that would permit Canadian duty free shops at international land border crossings. At present these shops exist only on the American side of the 49th parallel.

Duty Free Shops are under the jurisdiction of Revenue Canada, Customs and Excise Branch. Current regulations permit duty free shops in Canadian seaports on both the East and West coasts and at international airports, but not at land border crossings.

In pressing for expansion of shopping privileges to Canadians travelling by automobile, the Alberta Motor Association points out that Canadian and U.S. motorists crossing into Canada patronize American duty free shops, whereas motorists entering the U.S. from Canada cannot enjoy duty free privileges.

Revised regulations that would remove this inequality among motorists have been drafted and are awaiting Cabinet approval, Meanwhile the Canadian Automobile Association and it's affiliate clubs are pressing for it's speedy acceptance.

Government aids fertilizer plant at Wainwright

Wainwright FluidChem Ltd has accepted an offer of $82,322 under the Canada-Alberta Nutritive Processing Assistance agreement, it was announced on Jan 19 by the Honourable Marcel Lessard, federal Minister of the Department of Regional Economic Expansion and the Honourable Marvin Moore, Alberta's Minister of Agriculture.

The new plant, located just east of Wainwright, will manufacture liquid fertilizer for agricultural use, utilizing a process which is relatively new in Western Canada.

President Bryan Perkins said the fertility will use dry forms of fertilizer mixed with clear liquids which are reacted together by using attapulgite clay from Georgia This clay holds the dry ingredients in a suspension and prevents settling out, he explained

Primary products of the plant will be nitrogen, phosphate and potash fertilizers.

Three persons are expected to be employed at the facility.

The development assistance offer, cost-shared equally by DREE and Alberta Agriculture, is based on rate of 19.4 percent of total capital to be employed for the project, estimated at $389,700.

To order hopper cars

The federal government has decided to order 2,000 rail hopper cars for grain transport and to stimulate industrial activity

Transport Minister Otto Lang, who is also minister responsible for grain marketing, said details of the order have not been settled.

But the plan is to start the program "immediately," he said

And, while contracts with factories must be negotiated, it is hoped some of the work will be directed to depressed heavy-industry locations in Nova Scotia, the minister added.

Dangers of low carbohydrate diets

Did you know that low carbohydrate diets can be dangerous to your health?

Low carbohydrate diet books say all you have to do to lose weight is to stick to proteins like eggs, meat and cheese and fats. You can eat as much of them as you like but you must stay away from carbohydrates like bread potatoes and sweets. However, what these books do not tell you is that you may end up paying a high price for these seemingly painless diets.

According to the American Medical Association, low carbohydrate, high fat diets can trigger a condition known as ketosis. Although ketones normally play a part in the body's metabolic processes, an over abundance of them can, in addition to suppressing the dieter's appetite, cause a metabolic pattern similar to diabetes.

The health problems that have been linked by the medical profession to low carbohydrates diets include dehydration, kidney trouble, fatigue, rapidly depletion of calcium and conditions associated with heart disease. The sinister part of these diets is that their full impact on the dieter's health may go unnoticed for years.

Alberta Agriculture's home economist, Helen Rayward, advises people who want to lose weight after the holiday season to follow the "Canada Food Guide". She says it recommends diets that are low in common sense, such as some carbohydrates. For those who feel they must have a snack between meals, Mrs Rayward suggests raw vegetables.

If you would like a copy of the "Canada Food Guide" write to the Home Economics Laboratory, G S Langman Building, 4999 - 116 Street.

Holden district news

Mrs G H Taylor

Mr and Mrs Ernie Merta and sons of Viking were Friday afternoon visitors with Beth's aunt, Mrs Beth Campbell. Beth had been attending the County of Beaver Teachers workshop in Holden. Ernie and the boys packed her up to drive on to Edmonton, the boys going to a hockey game while Ernie and Beth visited with their daughter, Elaine.

Mrs Pearl Allan returned home over the weekend after spending the past two weeks on a holiday trip to points in Florida with her sister, Mrs Mary Mohr of Edmonton.

Mr and Mrs George Hanchuk had Doris' mother and other relatives visiting with them Tuesday of last week.

The regular monthly meeting of the Friendship Group met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs G H Taylor with Mrs Edith Carlson in charge of devotions. The minutes of the previous meeting, held Jan 20th at the home of Mrs E Brekland, were read and approved. It was decided that members would meet at the home of Mrs Beth Campbell on Thursday afternoon to trim and package the seed postage stamps collected to be sent to the Bible Society. It was also announced that we would send the usual sums of money for the little protege we sponsor in the Mustard Seeds mission in Hong Kong.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs Edith Carlson on March 17th. The meeting closed with a hymn and the Mizpah Benediction repeated in unison. Lunch was served by the hostess Mrs Edith Carlson assisted in serving and an hour of fellowship was enjoyed.

The Holden Calorie Counters are holding a bake sale on Saturday from 10:00 a.m. to twelve noon in the Holden Prosen Food shop.

Mr and Mrs Frank Andruchow and children of Edmonton, Mr and Mrs Eugene Damlah and children of Leduc were recent weekend visitors with the girls' parents, Mr and Mrs Ernie Good and sister and family, Mr and Mrs Jim Lash Doyle and children, Judy and children also called at Viola Lodge to see Clara Millicent.

The Holden Social Credit Ladies Auxiliary held their regular monthly meeting on February 15th at the home of Mrs Mary Hardy. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved, with correspondence being read and dealt with. At the conclusion of the business meeting, the hostess served lunch and a social hour was enjoyed.

Mrs Olive Good packed Lars Ruland up from Viola Lodge Wednesday afternoon the past week and took him over to Camrose for a treatment on his hand.

Mrs Theodora Hansner also has not been in good health for the past several weeks, was taken to hospital Friday morning when her condition worsened and is a patient in Tofield Hospital.

The Holden Senior Citizens Group will hold their regular monthly meeting tonight (Thursday).

Mr and Mrs Marshall Sleyka and girls of Sherwood Park were visitors during the weekend with his mother, Mrs Mary Siwyka.

Sunday guests with Mrs Beth Campbell were her daughter, Marjorie and husband. Ken who had just returned from a holiday trip with friends to Hawaii, her grandson, Bill and wife, Pat Campbell and their baby son, all of Leduc.

Miss Leona Gardecki of Edmonton visited with her mother, Mrs Mary Gardecki over the weekend.

Mrs Frances Hanson who has been a patient in Tofield Hospital for the past several days having treatment and a check-up was transferred to an Edmonton hospital for further observation and treatment.

Residents of Holden and district are reminded that the World Day of Prayer is being held on Friday March 4th at the Holden Lutheran Church commencing at 2:00 p.m. Everyone is welcome and the Lutheran Ladies will serve coffee and lunch at the conclusion of the service.

Mr and Mrs Sylvester Kasprick were honored at a reception on November 30th when a banquet was held at the Hillard Hall to celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary which was catered to by their daughters with approximately 100 guests attending the occasion Mr and Mrs Kasprick, who were originally from Erickson, Manitoba, resided in Hilard for two years before coming to reside in Holden where they purchased the former Strichuk property and they have made extensive renovations to it. Mr and Mrs Kasprick have thirteen children and 88 grandchildren and 18 great-grandchildren.

ADC eases loans in father-son finance

Alberta's minister of agriculture, Marvin Moore, has announced changes in various Agricultural Development Corporation (ADC) lending programs to make them more applicable to current farm credit needs and situations.

Of particular interest to persons wishing to enter the farming industry will be the amended Beginning Farmers Program and the new Father-Son Farmer Program. The Beginning Farmer Program, designed to assist potential farmers to develop a viable farming unit, will now provide maximum loans of $130,000 per individual for basic purchases of land, machinery, livestock and improvements. In addition, applicants may contribute a maximum of $50,000 in combined assets or cash.

When assessing an application for Beginner Farmers' loans, ADC will consider the vested interest of the applicant, the applicant's experience and training and the repayment ability of the proposed operation. Beginner farmers will continue to be eligible to receive a 3 per cent interest rebate on the outstanding principal balance for the first five years of the loan. This rebate is provided to encourage new farmers to establish and meet a farm plan and to comply with the terms and conditions of the ADC loan.

For some time ADC has been experiencing difficulty in financing father-son farming operations. The new program should significantly alleviate this situation. For years, where financing is not available from the Farm Credit Corporation and the total farm unit cannot repay ten-year guaranteed bank loans ADC will consider providing term loans to a maximum of $180,000 per applicant, providing the father and son form a farming company, or partnership, or develop a formal working agreement. Security will be in the form of a mortgage on the land purchased or, if required, on land owned by the father. The term of the loan will be a maximum of 20 years at an interest rate of the base ADC direct loan rate plus 1 per cent.

A new program has been introduced to provide for financial restructuring of a farm operation through the provision of direct loan funds in cases where it can be shown that the amount of short-term or long-term debt is out of balance with the financial position of the farm's viability because the annual demands for debt retirement require an exceedingly large percentage of net cash farm income, ADC will consider term financing.

This refinancing will be conditional upon the following restrictions:

(1) funding provided by a specific guaranteed loan will not alleviate the financial imbalance,

(2) there is ample land and building security, (3) the farmer has a favorable credit history, (4) conditions beyond the individual's control contributed to his present financial difficulty and (5) the individual has a history of good management of the financial and cultural aspects of his farm. These loans will be provided at the base loan rate plus one per cent and are repayable in a maximum term of 20 years.

Mr Moore feels that these revisions and the introduction of new programs will significantly assist the farming industry in Alberta. New farmers will now find it easier to enter the industry and some established farmers will be given greater opportunities to continue their operations.

We apologize for any inconveniences to our customers for the lack of hot water recently.

The problem has been solved and we hope to be able to serve you again.

Musk ox suitable for Alberta farms

Climatewise musk oxen could be successfully raised in Alberta.

This conclusion was reached by Clarence Burpee, acting president of the Canadian (Alberta) Musk Ox Association, and Judd Bunnage of Alberta Agriculture who visited the Institute for Boreal Research's musk oxen farm at Fairbanks, Alaska, and an Eskimo village on the west coast where some of the animals have been used. Mr. Burpee purchases at Hughenden.

Mr. Burpee and Mr. Bunnage went to Alaska to see how the Americans are raising their musk oxen and to find out whether it would be possible to obtain breeding stock from the institute's farm for people in Alberta who may wish to raise these animals. The few that are being raised here at the present time were purchased from zoos at very high prices.

The musk ox farm at Fairbanks is jointly operated by the University of Alaska and the Kellogg Foundation. They intend to distribute the animals to the native villages in the state so that the Eskimos can gather the qiviut (wool) and knit it into clothing for tourists. To make sure that the natives follow this objective, the Kellogg Foundation retains ownership and control of animals sent to a village.

According to the Eskimos at Unalakleet, they are very willing to take the animals, these people would raise the musk oxen for meat if they owned them, and they would sell breeding stock. Very few of the women are interested in making clothing out of the qiviut because the prices they receive are too low to compensate for the time involved.

"Our impression after visiting the farm at Fairbanks and at Mr. Burpee's" "is that we could raise musk oxen here every bit as well as the Americans can raise them in Alaska. Their climate is very similar to the parkland belt in Alberta." However, the Americans are not keen to export breeding stock because they do not want competition in the production of qiviut. The market for qiviut has remained good as long as qiviut is scarce Mr Bunnage says. "Nobody really knows whether the demand for this excellent product is elastic or inelastic"

Mr Burpee reports that research conducted to date, indicates that musk oxen are suited to domestication, but lack of breeding stock has slowed the growth of such an industry in Alberta. "We need", he says, "an active association to promote political and public opinion which would favor trade with the Eskimos for musk ox calves."

Progressive Farming

1976 TAX AMENDMENTS
According to Len Fuller, taxation specialist there have not been many changes to the tax rules for 1976, but farmers should be aware of the following amendments.

One of the amendments concerns the Annual Dominion and Protection Act. It states that the income tax due on compensation paid by the federal government to the owner of a herd which had to be destroyed, to prevent the spread of a serious animal disease, can now be deferred until the following year if the herd cannot be replaced until that time.

There were also two changes in capital cost allowance for 1976. A farmer may now write-off up to $500 of the purchase price of a tool like a chain saw or a piece of welding equipment if it was bought after May 26, 1976. The previous maximum write-off was $100.

Another amendment, the investment tax credit is not new, but it bears repeating. Under this ruling a farmer and other businessmen can deduct 5 per cent of most investments in new machinery and in buildings from their federal income tax. In fact, it applies to most items in the capital cost schedule that were purchased between June 10, 1975 and July 1, 1977 However, no tax credit is allowed on used farm machinery, tile drainage, the costs involved in acquiring a milk quota or other similar assets

In the case of farm buildings, that were under construction June 10, 1975, only those costs incurred after June 10, 1975, qualify for a tax credit However, the entire costs of buildings begun before July 1, 1977, qualify for a tax credit, providing the footings or other base support installations were started between June 10, 1975, and July 1, 1977, and the building is completed according to the plans and specifications agreed to in writing before July 1, 1977

Mr Fuller recommends that anyone who is considering purchasing new machinery or putting up a new building this year should do so before July 1, 1977 so that he can take advantage of the 5 per cent investment tax credit.

Personal income tax exemption levels for 1976 have been increased by 11.3 per cent as a result of the rise in the consumer price index in that year This means that the exemption for a single tax payer is now $2,691. The exemption for a spouse is $1,230 and for a senior citizen or disabled person it is $1,307 The exemption for a child under 16 years of age has been raised to $886 and for a child over 16 years of age it is now $719

Mr Fuller detailed [illegible] on the above tax amendments and on the personal income tax exemptions can be found in the 1976 "Farmer's and Fisherman's Guide" and in "Your 1976 Personal Tax Guide."

As well, I would like to bring to your attention a Farm Law Course in Vermilion, March 8th and 9th starting at 9:30 a.m. in the Elks Hall, everyone is welcome to attend

Old Age, Can. Pension benefits to rise in 1977

Increases in benefits under the Canada Pension Plan, Old Age Security pension, Guaranteed Income Supplement and Spouse's Allowance were announced Dec. 8 by Health and Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde. All become effective in January, 1977.

An estimated 965,000 Canada Pension plan beneficiaries will receive increases of 8.3 per cent.

The new monthly total at the single rate for persons receiving both the basic Old Age Security pension and maximum Guaranteed Income Supplement will be $360.47.

For a married couple, both pensioners, the combination of the basic pension and maximum supplement will provide a payment of $488.74 for the couple monthly.

The basic Old Age Security pension will rise in January to $141.34 from the present $130.39.

The Guaranteed Income Supplement is paid to pensioners who are single, apart from the Old Age Security pension, is limited. The amount of the supplement varies in relation to the amount of income.

To children who are receiving benefits as orphans or children of disabled contributors in addition, there are some 12,000 considered benefits, such as for a surviving spouse in receipt of a retirement pension as well as a survivor's benefit.

The increase, calculated on the past year's rise in the cost of living as measured by the Consumer Price Index, will apply to all persons in receipt of Canada Pension Plan benefits as of December 31, 1976. The increases will be reflected in the January cheques.

The maximum retirement pension effective January, 1977, will be $173.61 per month. The maximum disability pension payable in 1977 will be $75.05 per month, while benefits for disabled contributors' children and orphans of deceased contributors will be $41.84 per month. Maximum monthly surviving spouses' pension will be $108.94 for persons under age 65 and $104.17 for spouses 65 or older.

Of the estimated 965,000 persons who will be in receipt of Canada Pension Plan benefits at the end of December, some 330,100 will be retirement pensioners, 135,000 will be surviving spouses, and 61,200 will be disability pensioners. Another 117,700 receive benefits while

The maximum Guaranteed Income Supplement for a single person, or spouse of person whose spouse is not a pensioner and is not receiving a Spouse's Allowance, will be up in January to $6.13 from its current $97.76. The maximum supplement for a married couple, both pensioners, will increase to $86.65 each from $86.81. Added to the basic pension, this will give each married pensioner $229.27 monthly, or a total of $488.74 for the couple.

The Spouse's Allowance is paid to persons between 60 and 65 years of age who are married to Old Age Security pensioners and meet residence requirements. Entitlement to a Spouse's Allowance, and amount paid, is based on yearly income.

The maximum Spouse's Allowance will increase to $228.27 from $226.20. The maximum Spouse's Allowance is made up of an amount equivalent to the basic Old Age Security pension and the maximum Guaranteed Income Supplement at the married rate

Hidden dangers of baler string

Be careful how you handle bale strings. There can be hidden dangers.

A farmer in the Ponoka area who was in the habit of rebaling broken bales had a near tragedy recently when a plastic bale string in the new bale became entangled in his grain screw as it was feeding in chunks of hay. His hand broke caught in a loop in the string and was jerked violently towards the hammers. Luckily, the heavy glove the farmer was wearing was pulled off and he escaped injury. The glove went through the grinder.

According to Ted Darling, Alberta Agriculture's district agriculturist at Ponoka this near accident is only one of many that can be caused by carelessly handled bale strings. An unsecured bale string anchored in frozen ground or in manure for example as a ready made snare for an unwary farm worker. Also bale strings can become snapped around the beaters and shafts of a manure spreader causing loss of time and if eaten by cattle sheep or horses they can cause sickness and even death.

Mr Darling's advice is "Do not rebale broken bales unless you first retrieve all the original strings, do not leave bale strings at a feedlot or allow them to accumulate on a corral pile! Always pile them in a safe place until you have enough to burn."

Mrs Agnes McGuire celebrated her birthday on Sunday with all of her family. Harvey and Pauline and family of Viking Alice and Eric Munkedahl and family of Ryley, Raymond of Edmonton and Donnely and Opal and family of Tofield as well as grandchildren present to enjoy the day.

Mrs Ethel Moon, Mrs Hazel Patterson and Mrs Dorothy Clark of Tofield along with Mrs James Wansness of Ryley attended the 15th annual meeting of St. Paul Presbyterial held in St. Paul last Thursday.

Guest speaker at the World Day of Prayer in Tofield will be Freda Regehr. She has just returned from a nine-year teaching program in Africa.

A number of ladies at the Anglican Church enjoyed a showing of slides taken in Australia by Mrs. Ron Taylor. After the showing the AWL served coffee and the ladies had a chance to chat.

In the past nine years, the combined income to homes for retarded children from auction sales has been $465,000. Last year's income was $84,728.13. Tofield - Lamont area raised $2,916. This year's auction will be held in Lamont on March 7th.

The Youth Total Abstainers Group which was organized recently met at the home of Rachel Collins on Saturday evening with fourteen young people in attendance. Following a discussion period the group enjoyed a hayride and then returned for refreshments and a sing song.

Mrs J.A.L. Smith spent Friday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J.W.

Viking grain buyer scores on 'Western'

Helmer Hanson of Viking could hardly believe it ten days ago, as he watched the winning numbers roll off on the Western Canada Lottery program. As he and his family watched, the numbers matched his ticket stub to the tune of $50,000. Talking with The Canadian yesterday, Mr. Hanson laughed "it really gives you quite a feeling."

Mr. Hanson was to receive his cheque yesterday, but so far has not had time to plan how he'll use it. "There are a few small bills to pay," he said, "but there'll be no round the world cruises, or anything like that."

A lifelong resident of Viking, Mr. Hanson is a supervisor for Pioneer Grain in Viking, and also owns a farm a short distance from town. He'll be retiring on June 1st, he said, and the extra funds may come in really handy at that time.

Married and with one daughter still at home, Mr. and Mrs. Hanson have a daughter married and living in Viking, while a son lives at Whitecourt.

He'll continue to buy tickets on the Western, he thought adding, "I guess I can't get away from it now. He's won a few small prizes over years of ticket buying he says, but this is the first time anything like this has happened. It's still hard to believe."

Garden club has meeting

By Dora Brown

Members of the Tofield Garden Club met on February 14th at the home of Bertha Phillips.

The Tofield Fair, which is to be held on August 20th this year, was discussed. Louise Kyle and Audrey Brown were delegated to bring a list of suggested classes for the horticultural section of the fair to the next meeting at which time the horticultural classes for the fair will be discussed further.

Dora Brown was elected to represent the garden club on the 1977 Fair Committee. Yvonne Brown and Theone Jones are going to represent the Tofield Garden Club at the annual meeting of the Alberta Horticultural Association on March 6 and 5th at Red Deer.

Correspondence regarding an invitational arrangement class to be held at the Provincial Horticultural Show in Stony Plain on August 14th and 15th was read and discussed. One of the club members, Myrna Hurbert will participate.

LEADING the fight for women's progress within the Carter administration is Mrs. Joanne Kreps. Mrs Kreps, the new Secretary of Commerce, has urged the president to appoint more women to responsible posts in the government.

Agricultural Society busy with '77 plans

Tofield and District Agricultural Society has started making plans for two upcoming major events.

Hector Schmidt has been named as chairman of the Fair Committee and planning will soon be in progress for the annual August Fair.

There will be a new addition to the 1977 Fair as there will be a section for school exhibits to permit students an opportunity to show off their creativity.

Plans are now being made for Tofield's annual July 1st celebrations. The Agricultural Society acts as a co-ordinating body for this occasion in cooperation with other organizations within the community who take care of specific tasks.

The society has set a date of June 1st for the official opening of the new addition to the Arena.

Local and visiting dignitaries will be invited to participate in the opening ceremonies while a beef barbeque is being planned to feed the hungry people in attendance.

Society members have been told that the concession booth in the Arena is operating smoothly with volunteer help although more help is needed.

The society has asked that anyone wishing to lend a hand in the concession's operation get in touch with Theone Jones.

Some complaints have been received about the operation of the Arena while rumors are circulating about other complaints which have come to the society's attention.

A spokesman for the society indicates that anyone wishing to file a complaint about the Arena's operation is free to do so and such complaints should be put in writing and forwarded to the grievance board.

More information about future events on the society's agenda will be released as plans are finalized.

Pioneer scholarship

Cheryl Magneson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Magneson of Ryley, is shown accepting the "Pioneer Teacher Award" amounting to a $225 scholarship, from Mrs. Myrtle Bosmans, daughter of the founder of the award. The presentation took place at Camrose Lutheran College where Miss Magneson is a 2nd year university student.

Charteris resigns

Val Charteris submitted her resignation as program supervisor with the Beaver Regional Recreation and Parks Department, with her resignation to take effect on April 1st.

Miss Charteris submitted her resignation at the regular monthly meeting of the Recreation and Parks Board held late last month (February).

The Board acknowledged Miss Charteris' resignation. However, they set up a committee consisting of Vern Hasse, Don Armitage and Andy Heiberg to discuss the situation and bring in a report at the March meeting.

Prior to submitting her resignation, Miss Charteris, in an oral report, suggested that people in the county should cooperate and communicate more with each other and that people in recreation should evaluate what they are doing and what they have done in the past.

Her points were received approval from some members and there was some discussion on how recreation could be improved.

In earlier business, approval was given for pay increases to recreation department members and it was agreed that the job description and salary of the secretary should be reviewed by both the policy and finance committee.

A motion to withdraw membership from the Alberta Recreation and Parks Association for a one-year period was approved by the Board.

The Board meeting was attended by representatives from Tofield, Holden, Viking, Ryley, Bruce, Kinsella, County of Beaver and departmental staff.

Information for this news story was obtained from the unapproved minutes of the meeting which was held on February 23rd.

John Batiuk, MLA will report weekly

For several months, John Batiuk, who is MLA for the Vegreville area, has been writing a weekly report of his activities, and these have been carried in a number of newspapers serving constituents in the northern reaches of his constituency.

Last week Mr. Batiuk arranged to make these reports available to The Mercury

Since his constituency covers the larger portion of the County of Beaver and since this covers a major segment of The Mercury's readers, we feel the columns will be of interest very generally throughout the area served by The Mercury. On this basis we propose to carry the columns on a regular schedule.

We would be interested in comments from readers, and we feel Mr. Batiuk probably would be also.

REPORT FROM YOUR M.L.A.
JOHN B. BATIUK

The third session of the 18th Legislature opened on Thursday, February 26th with the reading of the Throne Speech by the Honourable Ralph Steinhauer, Lieutenant Governor.

This is the one hundredth anniversary of the signing by the Indian people and representatives of Her Majesty of Treaties Number Six and Seven Due to the fact that is a special event for the Lieutenant Governor, he was attired in his native regalia.

The Throne Speech of 1977 differs to some extent from the previous speeches stressing more on improvement of programs etc rather than totally to the dollar bill. If the numerous promises, some of the more specific ones in the throne speech are -

1. To re-assess the goals and objectives of our basic education system and to consider providing greater emphasis or acquisition of knowledge and skills.

2. To continue the record performance again this year the funding for construction of housing and shelter units for low income.

3. To continue to improve our already high standard of health services.

4. To propose legislation to assure utilization of our land resource for the citizens of Alberta.

5. To take initiatives in international trade and tariffs to improve new markets for our agricultural products.

Since the adjournment of the fall session I was involved in several committees, plus my access to my constituents [illegible] of all the time.

One very important caucus committee that I was appointed to last fall was a committee of three government M.L.A.s to review the Status of the Rural Electrification Association at the province.

Our government was aware that some R.E.A.s which were twenty and more years old were experiencing financial difficulties. Some of these lines were in need of replacement yet the REAs needing the replacement were in such difficulties that if nothing would have been done [illegible] electric power [illegible].

Our committee met with fifteen groups at various times since the fall session to discuss the problem and in the final recommendation committee we recommended to our government to provide assistance to those REAs experiencing financial difficulties in replacing power lines. It is indeed gratifying to see on Page 10 of the Throne Speech that the government will [illegible] providing arrangements for refinancing these important systems.

I [illegible] at this time, thank all the groups that accepted our invitations to meet with us and have input to the committee's deliberations. I am grateful to all the people participated in our discussions. These discussions have [illegible] provided input in a timely and [illegible] manner. I enjoyed [illegible] and appreciated the [illegible] I received from all of you.

Over the past several weeks, I received numerous requests from Natural Gas co-ops and many individuals requesting me to oppose an increase in the price of natural gas to the consumers. Being a member of a gas co-op, I too realize the concern of consumers to pay more for this fuel. Due to the fact that we are not able to have a two price system, and whereas 85 - 90 percent of our natural resources are exported, one must realize how much our province would lose by not asking for the market rate. Because of this extra revenue, programs such as the $40 million cow-calf assistance, the homeowner tax discount, transportation allowance on farm fuels, Senior Citizens Home Improvement Program, and numerous other programs which benefit the farmers and urban people have been made possible.

At present, the $70 million rebate plan provides natural gas to the Alberta consumers at 45 cents per M.C.F. less than those outside the province. Even though I am not in a position to oppose an increase in the price of gas, I will propose strenuously to our government to give the gas consumers in Alberta a return rather as a greater gas rebate or some other similar assistance which would afford the [illegible] and in the consumer.

I trust that most all Alberta will concur with me that this may be in the best interest of Albertans in the long run.

I have over the past several months received several letters from groups and individuals expressing the hope for our government to increase support for libraries and again the Throne Speech provides for a commitment of our government for policy changes and enlarged support for libraries will be announced.

A Time for Intercession

Why don't we today pray the bold prayers of Jesus and the Old Testament prophets? Instead of praying, "Please God, if it be Thy will" they declared "It shall be." When Elijah said, "It shall not rain no rain fell.

Lutheran inner city pastor, Erwin Prange acted on James 5:17 Their declaration of faith turned a Texas drought into a flood. Many such experiences are recounted in this book as the author explores the ministry of intercession. Prange discovers how to use what he terms the "Family Covenant Prayer" to bring healing to family relationships. His insights are profound.

Let the Tide Come In

A book for all who find themselves unable to accept man as a charismatic theology but who want the full life and ministry which the Holy Spir - gives. C. Ernest Tolham

As I see it

— by Dr. Walt Buck, M.L.A. Clover Bar

The third session of the 18th Alberta Legislature opened with the Speech from the Throne last Thursday. The speech was lengthy but was rather short on substance. It appears that the government has lost its enthusiasm for leadership. The number one priority is education, but the government seems unsure of what actions it will take in this area.

Agriculture

The government has talked about expanding agricultural markets. The new International Marketing Branch has been set up, replacing the ill-fated Alberta Export Agency. Let's hope the new Marketing Branch is more successful than its predecessor. I am pleased with the promise to move on the [illegible] lending program to assist in bringing [illegible] into agriculture, but we'll have to wait for the mechanics of that program before we endorse it.

Heritage Savings Trust Fund

I am disappointed that a number of important issues have not been included in the government's program. There was no mention of revenue-sharing for municipalities, foreign ownership of farmland, and the government's priority list contains no new initiatives. It was basically a rehash of old priorities.

The Heritage Savings Trust Fund Committee

A committee to study investments of the Heritage Savings Trust Fund will be established. I have moved to have the Chairman of that Legislative Committee be an Opposition M.L.A. By next year the Fund will be equal to the provincial budget. Under the Act, the Cabinet determines, behind closed doors, ways in which 30 percent of the fund will be invested. It is vital that accountability be established for investment of billions of dollars, and one way to assure accountability is to appoint an Opposition member as Chairman.

Oaks Revived

Last Monday and Tuesday night I had the pleasure of attending Parent and Cub banquets in Fort Saskatchewan and Lamont. I wish to thank the Cubs for inviting me, and to congratulate the parents for their unlimited hours of work with the boys.

Education Week set in Tofield

by Denise Neville

Education week is here again.

This year's theme is "Education Week - Every Week Be Involved!"

In keeping with this theme all parents are invited to get involved by visiting Tofield school on Tuesday between the hours of 1:00 and 3:30 p.m. During this time they may observe school classes in operation.

The Physical Education 30 class will be sponsoring a "Funny Carnival" in the gymnasium from 7:30 - 8:30 p.m., the same evening. During this time there will be a concession open for the children and adults can enjoy free coffee and donuts in the library where they can also view an arts and crafts display by the junior high. In addition, the Tofield bands will be entertaining in the gymnasium.

Further information will be available on posters displayed around town and also in a newsletter to be sent to homes later this week.

Hastings Lake district news

Lois Penna

Representing Hastings Lake in the First Tofield Cub Pack, Kevin Claxton, Warren Blair and Danny Gates took part in the Baden-Powell ceremonies last week in Tofield, attending a colour parade on Feb. 20 and a banquet on the 22nd.

On Friday the whist drive went smoothly with the aid of new, donated card packs. There were nine tables, with players aged from nine to ninety and prizewinners were Gladys Gill, Ray Peterson, Angela Winder and Gordon Kyle.

On Saturday, the hall was filled with members and friends sampling the Italian supper and the ladies once again demonstrated their culinary versatility. An estimated 150 people enjoyed the meal, which included dishes such as chicken risotto, lasagna and ham tetrazzini.

The Hastings Lake Pony Club entrant for Tofield Figure Skating Club's Carnival Queen contest is Cindy Hanley and if successful, she will be crowned on March 19th, the first day of the two-day carnival at the Tofield Arena.

Last Saturday evening was Family Night at the hall when members and their families gathered for an evening of cards, parlor games and visiting.

The annual meeting of the Hall Association has been changed to March 9th at 8 p.m. at the hall.

The men of this district have spent several afternoons getting the old hall at Mackenzie ready to move. It will be used to make an addition to the hall, mainly for kitchen space and a dining area.

Another "Kids' Dance" is planned for Friday, March 11. The two previous dances were very successful. Credits given to Linda Tiedemann for her able planning and supervision of the dances.

Yearbook doing well

By Grace Phillips

Alice Villeneuve, chairman of the committee responsible for the production of the Tofield School 1977 Yearbook, reports that the work is one-third completed and that only 40 of the 250 books to be printed are not yet spoken for.

The campaign for commercial advertising has begun. Letters have been sent out soliciting advertising, but in case any individual, firm, or organization has been overlooked, the members of the Yearbook staff will be happy to respond if contacted. Teresa Laarhus at 662-2274 and Alice Villeneuve at 662-2761 are the students to phone.

The yearbooks will be ready for distribution in September as soon as school opens.

A PROUD GRAIN HERITAGE
Improving and Progressing
Here are 5 truths about our present grain handling system.
• Alberta Wheat Pool's country elevator system can easily handle 355 million bushels per year
• The two Vancouver based terminals, AWP #1 and Pacific, can unload, weigh, store, clean and put aboard vessels at least 20 million bushels of grain per month
• The Canadian grading system requires the world's highest standards. Our terminals meet customers specific demands. Accuracy of weight, grade and purity is the envy of world traders
• Alberta Pool has spent $21 million on modern, up-to-date, efficient grain handling plants and equipment since 1970. The system is adequate, efficient and modern
• The Canadian grain handling and exporting system has always been able to accommodate all the grain provided to it by producers. It could export a billion bushels next year if the challenge were there
Westerners can be proud of the modern, viable grain handling and marketing organization called Alberta Wheat Pool. Owned by farmers, it will serve Alberta and B.C. agriculture for generations yet to come.

Mr. and Mrs. John Heimbechner and family and Arnold Heimbechner attended a surprise birthday party for Mrs. Rachel Heimbechner at the Two Dry home in Munday on Sunday. Also attending were Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Heimbechner and family

Poe Pourri

And I thought I was alone in my appreciation of Poe, Alberta.

Every so often I get mail from Mercury readers discussing subjects of all kinds and recently I received a letter from a lady in Tofield who shares my feelings for Poe.

She says in her letter that Poe "has always had a soft spot in my heart" and says the reason for her Poe-affection is the result of an incident which took place 40 or more years ago when this lady was in her teens.

"Five or six of us started out from our place in a dance at Ryley. It was at Indoe and we were travelling in an old coupe with two of the boys lying in the closed rumble seat. I said every young person had a coupe (as they do now) and doubting up literally was a must. On our way home, the vehicle stopped just near Poe. We had the good people up so we could phone for help. They gave us coffee and the gentleman in charge suggested we wait a bit before calling for help just in case the coupe motor was flooded. After we drank the coffee, the boys found that this must have been the case as the car started right away. We were so grateful to the people at Poe."

While I am not just to sure what a coupe looks (looked) like, I know that a rumble seat was an extra space next to the rear of a car, located behind the roofed seat and that it could be folded shut when not in use. I can imagine the two boys sharing that small a space were more than happy to drink a cup of hot coffee.

Many readers stop in at the store or write a short note telling me about "how things used to be" in and around Poe in years past probably one of the reasons I enjoy his here.

While things have changed considerably in the past 40 years, it's always good to remember.

To all those who write or call in, this column is especially for you. Thanks for taking the time to share "Remember Whens" and, in particular, thank you Mrs. Scott for an interesting and warm letter.

CARDS OF THANKS

I wish to express my sincere thanks to my relatives, neighbors and friends for their wonderful kindness to me during my stay in hospital. To the Rev. Hughes, Dr. Tofield Nursing Lake U.C.W. and to all those who visited, sent cards, flowers and gifts. To all those who visited me and to those who brought gifts, for the many, many cards, and to those who took the time and effort to be so cheery and comforting to me, also to those who helped in any way and to those who provided meals, baking, cream and fruit. Many, many thanks. I know I will never be able to repay you for all your kindness, but I shall try in my own small way.
May God bless you all.
Sincerely,
Jean Ferguson
29c-3419

I would like to say a hearty thank you to all my relatives and friends for their visits, cards, gifts and prayers while I was a patient at the Camrose Hospital 28c-3930

IN MEMORIAM

ANDERSON In loving memory of Regina Anderson, who passed away on March 8, 1963.

Tofield School wins Provincial curling

The Provincial Alberta Schools Athletic Association curling championship was won by the Tofield High School team in Stettler on March 3.

The team consisting of David Sears (skip), Doug Walker, Randy Erickson and Gordon Schmidt won the final against Salisbury High School, receiving a large trophy in recognition of their prowess.

The trophy is on display in the hall of the Tofield High School. Its winners are receiving congratulations from students and staff. J.C. Lampitt as the team coach is as proud of the trophy as the boys.

The Tofield team first won the Central East zone finals and then preceded to represent Central East in the provincial finals.

They won their first game against representatives of the North Central zone and then repeated their success against the South West zone team. This win advanced them to the semi-finals against the Central West zone team.

In the final Tofield boys again played the North Central team who had won the "B" event. After eight ends, the score was 7-3 in favor of Tofield. The trophy was presented by Ed Hancheruk, commissioner of the Alberta Schools Athletic Association.

Since Mr. Lampitt was unable to attend because of illness, Bruce Tofield Physical Education teacher, received the trophy on behalf of the Tofield team.

Provincial champions

Tofield High School curlers won provincial boys' honours during playoffs over the past weekend. After they had earlier won county and zone honors. Members of the team are, left to right, Brian O'Toole (coach), Dave Sears (skip), Doug Walker (third), Randy Erickson (second), and Gordon Schmidt (lead) and Jack Lampitt (coach).

Ryley okays present recreation agreement

The Village of Ryley has decided that no changes are necessary in the amended version of the master agreement covering recreation in the County of Beaver.

This decision was reached at the regular February meeting of village council when councillors felt they did not have enough information to warrant making any changes in the agreement.

There was general discussion on regional recreation and Councillor Taylor was named as an alternate delegate to the special committee on regional recreation.

Mayor Baker and Councillor Heilmann were named to attend the North Eastern Alberta Winter Games in Lac La Biche on behalf of the village.

Secretary-treasurer Hevland informed council that the equalized assessment for 1977 had been set at $799,250.

Council authorized its signing authorities to sign an agreement with CNR which would allow the village to use a private crossing for access to the village's water pumping house.

Council was informed, by letter, that W Charuk had been named as the village assessor by the Department of Municipal Affairs.

Assistance was given to the village foreman to proceed with setting up H P control of the water supply, at an estimated cost of $1,000.

Mayor Baker and Councillor Heilmann were given authority to hire two people to renovate the village office.

Information for this news story was obtained from the unapproved minutes of a meeting of village council held on February 14th.

Vegreville PC's will re-organize

Federal Progressives met in Vermilion recently to establish a new association to cover the enlarge Vegreville Federal Constituency.

Sixty-five delegates from all over the constituency attended the meeting and divided the constituency into eleven zones.

It was agreed that a general founding meeting would be held in Vermilion on April 27th to elect a permanent board to oversee PC activities in the enlarged constituency.

Named as chairman of the founding committee was Steve Shybunka of Two Hills with Terry Rupnah of Vegreville as chairman of the nomination committee and George Nazman of Vegreville as constitution committee chairman. Thirteen people were named to sit on the founding committee.

Don Mazankowski, MP for Vegreville since 1968 closed the meeting with a short talk on activities in the House of Commons.

They lost in an extra end to the Fort Saskatchewan rink who went on to the Provincial playdowns at the Stanley

Protect the sub-trades

Recent discussions with representatives of some of the building sub-trades indicated just how vulnerable they are in respect to being paid for their work when the job is finished. Supposedly protected by the Mechanic's Lien Act, the Act really takes care of them only on the small jobs, and give little effective assistance on the big ones.

Perhaps it would be better to say the Act would protect them, but trade customs militate against it.

In effect, any builder or sub-trade may file lien against a property if payment hasn't been effected within a reasonably short period following completion of the work. The lien is registered against the title, and continues on the record until it is discharged.

In the case of new construction, however, the contractor is usually required by the owner to certify that all sub-trades have been paid, and that there can be no cause for liens being registered before he is willing to make out the final payment. In other words, the contractor is required to certify that he has truly completed the job, even to the extent of paying the sub-trades and suppliers, so the owner will face no liens.

But in all too many instances, the contractor is thinly financed, too, and rather than borrow the money to pay his bills, he requires the subs to sign the statement that they have been paid, in order for him to collect, so he can pay their bills. So they're required to sign away the only protection they have, to have any chance of collecting. If they don't sign, they're told, and instead use their legal protection of registering a lien, not only will it involve lawsuit and complication over the whole thing, but there will be costly court action and delay, and on top of it all, they'll be blacklisted in future.

Most are small businesses, and can't afford either the loss, or the blacklisting. Obviously, there's a need for revision of the regulations, which were intended to protect small tradesmen. The owner needs protection when he has paid out all the funds required, the sub-trade needs protection to be able to collect, and somehow both should be armed against the occasional unscrupulous contractor. Certainly they're few in number, but they can be disastrous when they crop up

A female God

Much interest and not a little sardonic amusement followed the report a few months ago of a staunch feminist who advised a troubled friend to "pray to God. . . She will take care of you."

But a writer in the United Church Observer, Anne Squire this month develops the concept further with a number of interesting views, suggesting that on the basis of evidence in the Bible, God may be called "our Mother" as well as "our Father"

A teacher at Carleton University, Mrs. Squire points to the story of creation in Genesis, where both male and female were made "in the image of God". In Isaiah, God is compared to a woman giving birth or nursing her child or comforting a child. And Jesus, in one story, told his listeners that God is like a woman who seeks a lost coin.

In these days of increasing interest in the place of women in the church, Mrs. Squire points out one of the Hebrew words used for God in the original Scripture is Elohim, which she says, combines both masculine and feminine grammatical forms

Not only is the place of women being reviewed, but Mrs. Squire suggests such thinking offers relief for many men. There are men, she suggests, who have been forced into the masculine stereotypes of aggressiveness and authority, but who need the liberating power of a God who can be loving, nurturing, responsive and feminine

On the other hand, Jesus seems to have told his disciples to pray in the well known words, "Our Father . . .", and later, on the cross, he urged "Father, forgive them . . ."

Canadian Comment

DARTMOUTH — (CP) — The computers and communications gear to operate one of the lightest shipping control centres in the world are already installed in the Federal Department of Transport Building here, across the bay from the great port of Halifax

The system introduced last July 1 on a voluntary basis will become compulsory this summer, possibly as early as July 1 the first anniversary of the voluntary program

Regulations will require that any vessel over 300 tons entering Canadian waters notify Transport's shipping control centre at least 24 hours in advance Ships smaller than 300 tons, but carrying dangerous cargo, such as potential pollutants, will also be required to give notice Ships are required to inform officials of their cargos, the name of the master, and any navigation defects or hull damage Transport will have the authority to hold ships with are deficient outside Canadian territorial waters until defects are made good

The system is called ECAREG, which stands for Eastern Canada Traffic System, and Transport officials hope it will make Canada much less vulnerable to oil spill accidents like those which have plagued the Eastern seaboard recently

The computer system will store information about all registered ships, and will be able to warn East coast officials about ships with previous accident records, or captains with a history of trouble

The rules will also apply to ships leaving Canadian Arctic ports which plan to sail through Canadian territorial waters

ECAREG has the potential to control accidental and deliberate pollution of Canadian territorial waters but it remains to be seen whether or not the regulations can be enforced There are few legal precedents for punishing offenders, and there are very few ships available to compel compliance

The government is moving in the right direction with control of shipping on the East Coast; the West coast should be next We should also be mounting a comprehensive program of ship building to provide cutters which can enforce the new rules, and converting the Canadian Coast Guard into a paramilitary organization along the lines of the U S Coast Guard

It's all very well to make claims and pass laws, but regulations are worthless if they cannot be enforced

Report from my M.L.A.

by John S Batsh

The week of February 28th started with the Premier's statement re a loan of $50 million to the province of Newfoundland repayable on a twenty year term with interest and 10 per cent earnings on the investment

Recently, there has been a great deal of talk regarding the lethality of the Canadian nation By doing this our government is showing confidence in the stability of confederation and making such a move reflects a strong confidence that Canada will continue to be a viable and united nation

The report of the Alberta Heritage Savings Trust Fund was a provision that any portion not to exceed 15 percent of the total amount provides for making investments by loans to provincial governments or individuals if the loan is guaranteed by a provincial government or by the government of Canada

It is very gratifying to note that over the past couple of years Alberta has become the only provincial government or government of Canada who is financially self sufficient and capable to loan monies to them rather than they go to the American market

The Minister of Agriculture Mr Moore, has announced that the payments to the cow call operators will start receiving the assistance within a few days, stating that because a change in average of income of two years and also the number of applications exceeded more than anticipated, the total payment is will reach close to $45 million

The Premier stated that he received an invitation to make a trip to the Soviet Union to discuss the matter of grain sales and The Premier has not, as yet, accepted the invitation and was not sure of going Recently the Premier and the Minister of Agriculture Mr Moore, met with the Canadian Wheat Board to have discussions and briefings with regard to such a tentative trip The invitation was given to Alberta as a result of Premier Kosegin's visit to Alberta in the fall of 1975 A trip to the Soviet Union was arranged in 1973 but due to the Western Economic Opportunities Conference the trip had to be cancelled

The Speaker extended a welcome back to Mr Stefanuk the Clerk of the Legislature and expressed sympathy to the Clerk on behalf of all Members of the Legislature Mr Stefanuk's father recently passed away

The continuation of The Throne Speech debate continued with many informative items being brought into the debate Education continues to be a very important issue and it is very encouraging to realize that the quality of education is of a very high standard Last year when the Deputy Minister of Education from Southern Arabia came to view the educational standards in Alberta he was asked why he chose Alberta - and his response was that he had been advised by several countries that Alberta would be the choice to select

Many times we, as citizens, deliberately criticize and condemn the educational system Since our children are the greatest asset we have, it is human nature to do so occasionally, yet we must realize that the parents, clergy, and the various local governments are also responsible for the upbringing of our children

It appears that all Members of the Legislature applaud and appreciate the housing programs and shelter units for [illegible]

The announcement by the Minister of Government Services and Culture regarding support for libraries was very welcome It was, however disheartening to see in the newspaper - the Pride Star Edmonton's alternate newspaper, relate to grants to libraries in the provinces of Canada for 1975 and show that all grants were higher in other provinces The misleading statement is that Alberta's figures was a 1976 figure and not a 1975 one In 1975, Alberta provided a $15.00 per student grant for the libraries in all schools in Alberta plus individual grants to other libraries which by far exceed any library grant in any other province

Attorney General Jim Foster stated in the House the members' concerns about the Alberta Hospital patient charged with murdering a Calgary woman and his intension to request the Board to Review to re-assess their day parole and these released

The following week will see general business in the House with the completion of the Throne Speech debate and the presentation of the Budget on Friday, March 11th

Anyone wishing to contact me during the session may do so by telephone

As I see it

by Dr. Walt Buck, M.L.A. Clover Bar

When Leader of the Official Opposition, Bob Clark, spoke in the Legislature during the Throne Speech debate last week, he pointed out short comings in the government's program plans this year

Mr Clark declared the government had a good opportunity to speak out strongly for Canadian unity, but made only fleeting reference to it late in the Speech

There is also still far too much reliance on non-renewable resource revenues for our prosperity, and very little reference to long-term planning in Alberta Many people - new Canadians Natives and the working poor - are not sharing in our prosperity

Mr Clark basically outlined three themes of priority interest to us They are "The Public Right to Know", "More value for the taxpayer's dollar" and "Centralization of Power within the Edmonton Bureaucracy"

In the area of the Public Right to Know, I have introduced a bill which will ensure that public business is done in public Information used to reach decisions which affect us in our everyday lives will be made public At the same time, there will be complete protection of individual privacy The bill is patterned after the one introduced in the House of Commons by Conservative M P. Ged Baldwin of Peace River nearly eight years ago

I am still very concerned about foreign purchases of our valuable agricultural land and will be re-introducing a bill to limit the amount of farm land which may be purchased and owned by non residents of Alberta

If you have problems, comments or suggestions, please contact my Legislative office 204 Legislative Building, Edmonton or phone 427-2231.

Warble and Louse Control

Alberta Agriculture's entomologist and pest control specialist, Michael Dolinski, urges farmers to inspect their cattle during the next three months for warbles and lice

He points out that inspectors will be checking all cattle going through sales and for animal markets this spring for warbles Any animals with warbles that are not destined for slaughter will be treated before they leave the premises at the seller's expense Warble infested cattle that arrive at community pastures this summer will be either sent home or treated at the owner's expense, before being allowed to enter the premises

"Cattle which have lice," says Mr Dolinski, "make poor gains and can become anemic " Anemic animals are more susceptible than others [illegible]

Mr Dolinski recommends checking for warbles by running your hand over an animal's back to see if there are any lumps Lumps contain warble grubs If there are only one or two lumps, you can either squeeze out the grubs or treat the animal with Ruelene With either of these methods, you should check for additional grubs every two weeks until the end of May

Although cattle that scratch often have lice, this is not always the case Where checking for lice you should look carefully at the area around the animal's eyes and jaws as jaw bone If a white-faced animal has a moderate to heavy infestation, you will see what look like bluish patches on its face (especially around the eyes) from a distance of two or three feet With a dark faced animal, the only sure way of finding out whether it has lice is to put it in a chute and check its head and neck by parting the hair

Beef Cattle - The most appropriate way to treat an animal with more than a couple of grubs is with a systemic insecticide Systemics will also control lice

The following table shows the types of treatments that can be used to control warbles and lice Systemics can be used on cattle after March 1

Treatment	Controls Warbles	Controls Lice
Pour-On
Systemic (e.g. Negoven)	Yes	Yes
Non-Systemic (only product Karlan 2)	No	Yes
Spot-on (only product Tigovon)	Yes	Yes
SPRAYS
Systemic (e.g. Co-Ral)	Yes	Yes
Non-Systemic (e.g. Malathion)	No	Yes*
Backwash (only product Ruleneme)	Yes (must be rubbed into holes)	Yes*
Hand Dusting
Non-Systemic (e.g. Cindrin)	No	Yes*
(no systemics available)

* Only works if in direct contact with lice.
Follow label directions for application rates and restrictions

Dairy Cattle

Milking dairy cattle should not be treated with a systemic insecticide unless you are prepared not to use the milk for the number of days specified on the product label.

Dry and young dairy animals can be treated for warbles and lice in the same way as beef animals, but there are important restrictions relating to the waiting periods between treatment and calving, the use of milk for human consumption and slaughter.

The following table shows the methods that can be used to treat milking dairy cows.

Treatment	Controls Warbles	Controls Lice
Spray
Non-Systemic (e.g. Malathion)	No	Yes*
Backwash (only product Ruleneme)	Yes	Yes*
Hand Dusting (e.g. Cindrin)	No	Yes*

* Only works if in direct contact with lice.
Follow label directions for application rates and restrictions.

How About a Little Fibre?

That title sounds like an introduction to a report on new fabrics on the market. It's not! Vitamin C, vitamin E and protein have received lots of publicity, but fibre, it is fibre's turn. Fibre is considered by many to be the latest miracle worker. Of course, it isn't but just like other nutrients it has an important role.

What is fibre? Dietary fibre is the plant material not digested by human beings. It is mainly carbohydrate. Fibre in the diet helps prevent development of some gastro-intestinal diseases, circulatory related conditions and metabolic diseases. It promotes regularity, softer stools and tends to more frequent elimination. Fibre also increases the excretion of bile acids, sterols and fats.

Foods high in fibre include whole grain cereals and breads and raw fruits and vegetables.

Foods high in fibre may help you control obesity. First they usually have few calories and second, the chewing required slows down and limits food intake.

Of course you can get carried away and have too much fibre in your diet. It is not necessary to eat large quantities of bran every day. Just be sure that each day your diet includes some whole grain cereals and fresh fruits and vegetables. I have copies of a "Guide to Good Eating" in my office if you would like a quick reminder of what foods you should every day.

This recipe was sent by Betty Birch, D.H.E. at Stettler. The batter can be kept in the fridge for up to two weeks. You just take out what you need each time you bake. The bran and raisins provide fibre.

Refrigerator Bran Muffins

2 eggs
½ c oil
1 c sugar
2 c milk
1 c bran
2 tsp soda
1 tsp salt
1 c raisins

Sift dry ingredients. Mix wet ingredients and stir in. Don't over-mix. Stir in raisins. Spoon batter into greased muffin tins and bake at 400 for 15 minutes.

Insect Secrets to Kill Your Unpleasantly

Terrible as these little creatures sound and look, they do happen along every once in a while. If you've noticed small brown insects in your cupboards, they are likely merchant grain beetles. Michael Dolinski, entomologist, with Alberta Agriculture says the adult grain beetles are about one-tenth of an inch long. They live and breed in stored food and in the cracks and crevices in cupboards which contain small particles of food. They multiply rapidly and feed on a wide variety of foods including cereals, flour, meal, macaroni, spaghetti, dried fruits, chocolate, shelled nuts, spices, meat, and dried pet food.

Control

The first thing to do if you see merchant grain beetles in your cupboard is to find the source of infestation. Examine all the food in the cupboard, especially products that have been stored for some time. When you find the source of infestation, burn or freeze the product to destroy the beetles. If you put the food in the garbage without first destroying these insects, you could start a new infestation, especially in an apartment building.

If you want to salvage food that has only a few beetles spread it out (not more than two inches deep) in a pan, and put the pan in a 150 to 250°F oven for at least 20 minutes. Keep stirring the contents. If you have a large amount of food to treat, leave it in the oven for an hour or two. Alternative to using heat to destroy merchant grain beetles is to put the product containing the insects in a freezer for 24 hours.

After you have removed the contents of your kitchen cupboard, treat it with one per cent Baygon or 2 per cent Malathion (deodourized). If you cannot find these strengths, buy a concentrated product and dilute it according to label directions. Using a household sprayer or a paint brush, thoroughly wet the interior surfaces of the cupboard, paying particular attention to cracks and crevices. Do not treat counter tops or other surfaces which may come in contact with food. If you use a spray, remove food, containers, cooking utensils and dishes before spraying.

Wait until the insecticide has dried before replacing your packages and dishes. If you wish, you can cover the shelves and the bottom of drawers with paper. Do not worry if you see some insects a few days after you have treated a cupboard or drawer. They will die when they come in contact with the treated areas.

Prevention

Ideally, products which are susceptible to merchant grain beetles should be stored at a temperature below 15°C. However, since this is often not possible, Mr. Dolinski suggests the following precautions.

Buy only small quantities of food, especially during the summer, if they are susceptible to grain beetles or if you do not use them regularly.

Examine all food products and packages carefully when you bring them home to make sure they are free of beetles.

Keep storage areas clean and dry.

Store surplus products in insect-proof containers, such as tightly sealed glass jars. Many kitchen canisters do not keep out small insects.

Clean containers thoroughly before putting fresh products into them. Never add new food products to old ones.

Examine all stored food packages and containers periodically. Unchecked packages of oatmeal crackers and pet foods are common sources of merchant grain infestations.

Fourteen ladies of Holden Ladies Order of the Royal Purple visited March 1st at Viking, attending the regular meeting of Viking lodge.

Mrs Carrie Olson, who had been staying the past few weeks with her son Arthur in Camrose, is now residing in Bethany Senior Citizens' Lodge as Camrose.

Mrs Mary Zenk was a patient in Tofield Hospital for a few days after having an unfortunate fall and breaking her arm.

Mrs Mike Chomiuk, who was a patient for several days in Viking Hospital, is back home and feeling improved.

Mrs Mike Gara drove to Tofield last week with Clare Anderson and visited with Mrs Frances Hanson in Tofield Hospital. Mr and Mrs Taylor also called on Mrs Hanson who was in Tofield and drawers with paper. Do not worry if you see some insects a few days after you have treated a cupboard or drawer. They will die when they come in contact with the treated areas.

CLC band returns after tour

Called the greatest thing to happen in instrumental music, at the College level in this province, the CLC Brass Quintet plus one, proved their worth on a whirlwind ten-day tour of much of Alberta.

Playing in high schools and churches on a circuit that included Medicine Hat, Lethbridge, Calgary, Banff, Jasper and north to Barrhead, the six member ensemble was highly acclaimed by students, band directors and audiences of wide musical backgrounds.

The group of Kri Lynn Dirnn (trumpet), Ross Broadhurst (baritone), Ivan Mast (Edmonton), David Riske (Bruderheim), Arthur Bird (Mirror) and Paul De Boer of the College Music Faculty, traveled 2200 miles and played 26 successful concerts during the ten-day "reading week" break. On every occasion audiences were amazed at the group's capabilities, tone, and mastery of repertoire.

Comments such as "they are so young to be so good" "we want them back", and well on their shoulders and will no doubt influence the performance they bring during their home concert at Messiah Lutheran Church in Camrose on March 20th.

Progressive Farming

New Wheat Varieties

How applicable are the new wheat varieties to Alberta conditions?

According to Alberta Agriculture officials, the new varieties can be grown here but, as a general rule, they have few advantages in this province over the older varieties.

Information released by the federal research station at Swift Current, Saskatchewan, says that Sinton, a bearded wheat variety, is more easily harvested than Manitou or Neepawa but may shatter in high winds prior to swathing or when left for straight combining. When moisture is scarce, Neepawa usually outyields Sinton. Sinton's main advantage over Neepawa is its resistance to leaf rust. However, Sinton matures later in Alberta than Neepawa.

Chester, a new variety of wheat with resistance to wheat stem sawfly, usually yields about the same as Canuck, but has shorter straw and matures about a day earlier than Canuck. However, it is less resistant to loose smut than Canuck. Chester is superior to the older sawfly resistant wheat varieties and has good bread making quality, according to the Swift Current release. It is recommended for areas where sawfly damage is a problem.

Glenlea shows little advantage over Neepawa in Alberta. It is an extra-hard bleaching wheat which has not been grown long enough or in sufficient quantities to establish a market, the Swift Current release says.

Prior, a soft wheat, is popular with livestock and poultry producers. Since it has not been promoted in world markets, there is no export demand for it. Prior yields considerably more than the bread wheats and Glenlea in all areas of the Prairie provinces, but it is late maturing and susceptible to rust. Farmers who grow Prior should plant it early and make sure it is ripe before cutting it. They would also be wise to make sure they have a market before planting it.

Wakooma and Wascana durum wheats both do well in all areas of Western Canada where the type of wheat is grown.

ASTRONOMERS SAY

Universe forever expanding

The universe is open and will go on expanding forever, a group of astronomers said recently.

Based on an analysis of the most recent astronomical data, the astronomers agreed that eventually, in perhaps 30 billion years, the universe as we know it now will have changed.

Then there will be "island universes," islands of galaxies clustered together, widely separated from each other and there will be no stars in the night sky.

"All the bright stars will be gone," said Dr. Frank Drake, director of the National Astronomy and Ionosphere Centre at Cornell University.

The astronomers discussed the nature and structure of the known universe at the opening session of the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

"The sky ought to be very empty, in tens of billions of years", said P.J.E. Peebles, professor of physics at Princeton University, who described the island universes.

However, Peebles said, computer analysis of the latest observations indicate that the separation of galaxies into well-defined islands has not yet begun, meaning perhaps that the universe is still very young.

"It isn't very open yet," Peebles told reporters. "I don't see any evidence of this taking place."

The astronomers said their conclusion that the universe is truly open is based on such factors as the expansion rate of the universe and the density of the universe.

Drake and Peebles were joined at a news conference by Robert Wagoner, professor of physics at Stanford University, and James Gunn, professor of astronomy at the California Institute of Technology.

"This is one of the oldest subjects in philosophy and theology," Drake said. "What is the nature of the universe? What is its age, origins, size, motion, its future?"

The astronomers place the age of the universe at somewhere between eight billion and 20 billion years. Wagoner put it at 10 billion years. The earth is about 4.6 billion years old.

The alternative to an endless expansion, Gunn said, is an eventual total collapse, a "violent cataclysm" 50 billion years from now.

The Eskimos are the only native people who live in both Asia and America. They form part of four nations — Russia, the United States, Canada and Denmark.

Alberta blackfly control

Researchers have begun fieldwork on the third year of a study into the control of Blackflies - - a biting insect which hinds livestock production in parts of Alberta.

The research along the Athabasca river involves the Federal, Provincial and local governments and is being coordinated by the Alberta environment department.

The insecticide methoxychlor will be introduced into the river at two points this spring and the river will be monitored to determine the chemical's effect on the river water, sediments and organisms.

Sampling now is underway both upstream and downstream of the treatment sites to determine the current state of the river. Monitoring of the river will continue until late September.

The first application of methoxychlor will occur about 160 kilometres downstream of the town of Athabasca in late May. The second treatment will take place about one week later at the bridge a short distance downstream from the town.

The concentration of methoxychlor in the river at each treatment site will be 0.3 parts per million for 7.5 minutes. By treating the river in this fashion, the researchers will test whether the Black Fly larvae - - which develop in swiftly flowing water - - can be killed without severe effects on other organisms.

In 1975, the same concentration of insecticide was used for the same amount of time but it was introduced only at the bridge site.

In 1974, the concentration of methoxychlor was the same but it was maintained for 15 minutes. It was introduced only at the bridge site.

Results from 1975 showed that few Blackfly larvae were affected by the insecticide than in 1974. This result correlated with an increase attacks on their cattle.

No direct toxic effects of methoxychlor on adult fish were detected, however, there were indications of toxic effects on the young of one species of fish and of indirect effects on adult fish. The populations of non-target insects were drastically reduced during and following exposure to the insecticide, long term effects on the non-target organisms still await study.

Analysis of water and bottom sediment should no long-term methoxychlor residues. In 1975, the level of methoxychlor residues in fish was lower than the background levels of DDT and other organochlorines detected in pre-treatment fish samples.

Another part of the research program involves development of a mathematical model to describe the physical movement of a chemical spill in reaches in a large river system.

Also involved is a study of Blackfly attacks on cattle in the County of Athabasca including evaluation of repellants for use on cattle. Preliminary results on repellants showed they were 100 percent effective only for six hours.

The Alberta Environment Department will spend about $160,000 on the program this year including travel and living expenses for researchers, and provision of equipment and materials. Not included are the salaries of the researchers.

The Alberta Departments of Agriculture and Recreation, Parks and Wildlife are participating in the research with environment Canada, Agriculture Canada. The County of Athabasca, the Alberta Research Council, and the University of Alberta.

The grain will disappear

An announcement by the U.S.S.R. indicating that wheat stocks in that country are sufficient to avoid the necessity of large scale purchases from Canada this year has excited the market watchers. With a big crop in both Canada and the United States and no large scale movement to China in sight, the prospect of increased carryover of wheat looms.

Alberta Agriculture notes a prediction that U.S. trade in wheat will likely be down about 3.7 million tonnes from last year. Slow market prospects for wheat are causing American farmers to keep more wheat on the farm, presumably a wait and see attitude. Canadian wheat exports are also running behind last year.

We suggest that it is to be expected that importers will play their wheat import cards carefully, at least until spring. The sight of stocks on the shelf in two countries, combined with higher prices on the export market for the last year or two, with extended credit and budgets of importing countries, cause importing nations to buy carefully. They will now buy on a week-to-week basis, secure in the knowledge that they can purchase a reserve next spring, perhaps even at a lower price. Such purchases will also be in a new fiscal year.

The availability of feed grains and oilseeds is somewhat different. European supplies of feed grains are limited, and demand for barley and corn has been active ever since 1976 crop stocks became available. Oilseed meal demand is closely tied to feed grain, a factor which stimulates crushing of soybean and rapeseed. The supply of soybeans in the United States is greater than last year by 16 million bushels, but soybean meal production is high.

Speakers at the 1976 international seminar on Wheat viewed any downward pressure on wheat prices with alarm because world farmers might well withdraw some production as cost-price squeeze takes effect. There is however, no general agreement that wheat prices will decline beyond the present level, which is about $1.10 per bushel lower than last year. The threat of shortage put prices where they are, and reserves are still sufficiently low that any climatic or market threat would likely send buyers into the market-place.

It remains to be seen how much the U.S. government will intervene in the grain market this year. A new support price for wheat and reintroduction of the foreign aid concept (guaranteed loans, etc.) may have an increasing effect as visitor goes along and the new United States government takes hold.

From an Alberta point of view, the market for grain will be something of a reverse from previous years. With barley in good demand and moving early, special wheat such as red winter moving slowly, shipments will be good from more northerly areas, slowest in the south. As the season progresses, wheat and south Alberta shipments should pick up.

MEMBER, THE ORDER OF THE GOLDEN RULE

Una MacLean Evans is citizenship judge

Appointment of Una MacLean Evans as judge of the Court of Canadian Citizen ship in Edmonton was an nounced recently by Secretary of State John Roberts. The ap pointment is for a term of five years.

Despite the appointment being announced only on February 8, Judge Evans ap pointment was effective Jan 13 and she was sworn in by Chief Justice McGillivray in Jamuary.

Judge Evans succeed Judge Orville Allan who held the same office until he retired in December Judge Allan made a special trip to California to administer the oath to Mrs Evans as well as Judge Allan

Mrs Evans age 50 was educated in Calgary and later attended the University of Manitoba She served with the Royal Canadian Women s Air ary Corps from 1942 to 1945 She was elected MLA for Edmonton Strathcona in 1964 and re elected in 1967 and 1971

Mrs Evans is married and has three children

Mrs Evans was born in Calgary the daughter of Mr and Mrs Alexander MacLean She received a degree in Arts from the University of Alberta in 1949 and a degree in Law from the University of Manitoba in 1952 She was called to the Alberta Bar in 1953 and practised law in Edmonton until her appointment to the bench

She is a member of the Law Society of Alberta, the Canadian Bar Association and the Canadian Association of Women Executives and Professional Women s Association

A new world of measurements

Welcome to the new world of metric measurement Not since you were in most parts of the world, major measurements, red tape, but starting February 1st the Canadian government is going to issue such definitions pounds, bushels, pounds per bushel (unless you are a farmer) and gallons per hour, and replace them with kilograms, litres and kilometres per hour

The main reason for the change is to make the trade measures Canadian manufacturers and exporters have to meet the specifications of other countries that have converted to the metric system Foremost people the difference between weight and mass is well important The term kilogram is often used when people are pronounced kilo-ah with the accent placed on the first syllable

One thousand kilograms 1,000 kg equals 1 tonne The metric tonne, note spelling is pronounced to rhyme with "bun" Kilometres, to approximate, is pounds than the customary unit of 5/8 pounds Remember that the metric unit is larger than the imperial unit so it appears metric is per unit

All weights on the grain in shortly and be based on the tonne after February 1st

Alberta's land owners

In the matter of land owner ship, there are two ways to decide who shall own land The first way is to allow the market to decide The second way is for someone in authority to decide on the basis of whatever criteria seems appropriate as to who shall own a particular piece of land

Truck weights reduced

Axle loadings on many of Alberta's highways have been reduced as of last Monday, the minister of transportation, Dr Hugh M Horner announced

Unusually warm weather has caused the frost to move out of many of the roads in the province, and therefore no overweight permits will be issued for highway south of No 1 Weather conditions are approximately a month ahead of normal

In Central and Northern Alberta, the situation will be studied on a day to day basis as long as overnight freezing temperatures are being experienced, but loading restrictions on thin pavement and gravel roads will soon become a general necessity because of the warm weather

However, said D J Bunard of Alberta Transportation on Tuesday, no restrictions have yet been placed on roads in the Camrose area, and only when the frost starts moving out more rapidly will this become necessary

Mr Bunard added, even if severe weather moved in, there would be no change in the southern area, because the frost has moved out of the ground

Mint coins for Queen's anniversary

The Royal Canadian Mint is to strike a silver dollar and a medallion to commemorate the 25th anniversary of the accession to the throne of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II In addition, upon approval of Parliament, the Mint will strike a $10 gold coin to

The issue of these coins and the medallion not only celebrates the accession of Her Majesty to the throne but also marks the appointment of the first Canadian Governor General to the office of Governor General of Canada

The silver dollar (340 P will be issued in March 1977 and bear the effigy of Her Majesty on the obverse and on the reverse will feature the Throne of the Senate

The medallion will commemorate the four Canadian-born Governors General It will be struck in silver in a limited quantity and an unlimited amount in cupronickel The obverse will bear the effigy of Her Majesty and the reverse will portray the four Canadian-born Governors General - Vincent Massey, Georges Vanier, Roland Michener, and Jules Leger All four have held office during the reign of Her Majesty

A brochure and reservation form on each issue will be mailed to customers of the Royal Canadian Mint The can be obtained from the Royal Canadian Mint P O Box 670, Station A, Ottawa, Ontario, K1N 8S5

In Alberta both systems are used, as approximately 60 per cent of the land area is privately owned and changes hands according to the market, while 40 percent is Crown land which may be sold to citizens or leased to them on criteria that have been developed over the years by the department of government

As many people appear to be concerned about land ownership and land use, statistical data reveals the situation of Alberta farms is as follows

— two-thirds of the 50 million acres of farm land is privately owned and operated and one-third is leased, including leases from the

— in the matter of tenure, 60 percent of farms are totally owned, 36 percent are partly owned and partly rented, and 4 percent are entirely rented

— in the matter of organization, 90 percent of the total number of farms are individually owned, 7 percent are partnership, 2 3 percent are family corporation, 1 per cent are other corporation, 3 percent are community pastures and institutional farms, and 1 percent are commercial properties

— 65 percent of farmers are under 55 years of age, while 35 percent are from 55 to 65 years old, and 10 percent are over 65 years

We can summarize by stating that the great majority, well over 90 percent, of Alberta farms, are typical family farms operated by an individual who owns two-thirds of his land and leases one-third These farms are declining in number, but the average size is increasing and the age distribution of farmers is not greatly different than that found in other segments of industry

The Mercury

Forecast of farm operating costs

A general cooling off of farm input prices is foreseen for 1977.

Prices in Alberta are expected to increase by an average of only 5 per cent during the next 12 months compared with 12 per cent a year ago and 18 per cent between September 1974 and September 1975.

Hugh Bryce, head of Alberta Agriculture's statistics branch, says he is confident that the trend predicted for Alberta will apply across Canada even though the absolute price levels of farm "inputs" in other provinces may vary.

Chemicals

The main herbicides are expected to show little price change a year from now due to good world supplies. Veterinary products will probably slightly exceed 1976 prices in response to expected improvements in the cattle industry.

Over the past two years the price of 2,4-D increased considerably, while the price of Avadex rose by 10 per cent in 1975 and by 5 per cent in 1976. Nominal increases were recorded for antibiotics and vitamins during the two-year period. These small increases were mainly due to the depressed cattle industry.

Fuel

Between now and September 1977, the chartered banks prime rate is expected to drop by half a percent from its current rate of 10¾ per cent because of the lower demand for credit by farmers. With most commodity prices down from a year ago, and farm expenses continuing to rise farmers are experiencing a tighter financial situation than was the case over the last two years. Consequently, they are reluctant to commit themselves to long-term payments at relatively high interest rates.

Feed

Assuming a fairly cold but not harsh winter, and an average crop in 1977, barley prices in September 1977 should be about the same as they are now. Hay prices will probably be slightly lower than present levels.

Slight increases are forecast for prepared feeds, mainly as a result of an expected 4 to 5 per cent rise in overhead costs. Ingredient costs in the feed industry in 1977 will be mostly the same or lower than they were this year. The one exception, meat meal, will probably go up in price. The prices of hog and chicken feeds will increase more than those for beef and dairy cattle rations.

Since 1974, the price of feed barley has declined but the price of hay has increased. However, the prices of most prepared feeds remained comparatively stable during the two-year period.

Feeder Cattle and Land

Feeder cattle prices are forecast to be about 85 per hundredweight higher in 1977 than they are now because of an anticipated decrease in cattle inventories and a general improvement in the meat situation. Land prices are expected to hold at current levels.

Over the past two years feeder prices have reflected the depressed cattle industry. However, land prices have risen considerably since 1972 because of higher grain prices, inflation and some influx of "urbanites". Even though grain prices have dropped recently, land prices have continued to increase due to a lag effect.

Fertilizers

A much smaller increase than that recorded over the last two years is forecast for ammonia fertilizer due to increased industry capacity. Phosphate fertilizers will probably decline slightly due to an expected decline in phosphate rock prices.

Since 1974, the price of ammonia fertilizer has increased by an average of $33 per ton, while the price of phosphate fertilizer has risen by an average of $46 per ton.

Fuel

Further increases are expected in 1977, but at a lower rate than during the past two years.

Since 1974, farm gasoline and diesel fuel have increased by 10 cents per gallon, while propane has increased by 6 cents per gallon.

Labour

Labor rates are expected to increase again into 1977, but by a smaller amount than has been the case previously. The smaller increase is credited to a general cooling off of the economy and to the influence of the Anti-Inflation Board's rulings.

Since 1974, labor rates in Alberta have increased 16 to 20 per cent.

Machinery

Even though grain prices are declining and most farmers are now fully supplied with equipment, prices will probably go up a further 6 per cent across the board in 1977 as manufacturers adapt to increased overhead costs.

During the past two years farm equipment and machinery prices increased by an average of 17 per cent per year as grain producers attempted to fulfill their needs after several years of belt tightening.

Miscellaneous

Baler twine prices are expected to drop by $1 per bale, but much will depend upon the Mexican stockpile, which is thought to be large.

Antifreeze prices are expected to be about the same in September 1977 as they are now, but they will fluctuate between 50 cents and $1 per gallon, depending upon the season.

Barbed wire prices are expected to remain stable due to a continuing moderate demand.

Truck tire prices will probably show a slight increase next year.

Rugged cement prices are forecast to go up slightly, mainly because of a reduction in the use of this product.

Lumber prices will probably have increased by 20 per cent in the spring and then dropped back to current levels.

Plywood prices are expected to increase by 5 to 10 per cent due to low supplies.

Paint prices probably increase slightly.

Storage battery prices are forecast to increase 10 per cent.

Mr. Bryce obtained much of the information on which his forecasts are based from the Alberta Agricultural Input Monitoring Service, a joint project between Alberta Agriculture and Uniform Approximately 65 farm reporters throughout the province collect price and availability information on 39 main farm "input" items on the first trading day of each month. The data is then compiled, analyzed and distributed to anyone interested in the information.

Luke 9 62 And Jesus said no man having put his hand to the plow and looking back is fit for the kingdom of God

A true disciple of the Lord Jesus must be willing to go straight on for God, regar dless of what it may cost him personally The victorious life demands unreserved con secration, unremitting diligence and unwavering perseverance In his recent book "Remember all the way", William Townsend relates the story of an evangelist who felt like resigning from his task because he had run into problems and criticism So one day he said to a colleague "I'm going to quit" "Why do you give your resignations to me" the colleague replied "When you began your service you said the Lord Jesus Christ was calling you to tell others about Him I think you had better present your resignation to the one who call you Let's get down on our knees here and you tell Him that you are going to quit Let Him hear what you've just told me – that it's too hard, that too many people criticize you Tell the Lord what you wanted to tell me He's the One who sent you" "Well, I hesitate to do that" he replied "I'm afraid He will tell me to stay with the job" "If that's what He wants don't you think you had better stay" "Yes I think I should" Taking new courage and refusing to look back, the evangelist went on to plow a straight furrow for God Perhaps some other dedicated servant of God is disheartened and ready to give up his position because there are so few true followers of the Lord Jesus Christ today The devil tries very hard to discourage those who are most needed Remember Jesus words in Luke 9 62 and don't quit.

That Lydia Woman – by Wiethaup & Frances Hallsen
The story behind the legendary beauty who blazed – and almost lost – the earliest trail in Christianity. Lydia was beautiful, independent and prosperous a widow who parlayed her husband's purple cloth trade into the most respected business in Philippi A Jewish convert she was a friend of Paul the first in all Macedonia to follow him into the new faith She became a Christian, heart and mind, her home a place of worship

Poe Pourri

by Lorraine Poulsen

Step one was simple enough It's true Bob's T-4 slips looked so neat next to his countless receipts etched on paper napkins, cigarette packages and corners of the May edition of Field and Stream magazine But, receipts are receipts

Follow the blue SIX EASY STEPS" the 1976 tax guide booklet advises in bold print and that, I vowed, is exactly what I would do

Getting ready was simple enough had step two caught me a bit off guard. Identify yourself They know who I am when it comes time to send the tax forms, why now am I such a stranger?

Step two done, I move briskly along to Stress Stop three says to list your income BUT – that's not all it says here the "bonus" of Ex-Je Wednesday, Pastor tra" the total on line 61 and, if the new Tax Laws do not affect you, enter the same amount on line 94 " I'm sure before I started nothing would affect me and on I went to step four

Stepping to four meant calculation of Canada Pension Overpayment of which should go on line 71, page 2 AND line 70, page one I know that "contributory earnings" referred to in the calculation is normally the amount shown in Box (C) of your T-4 unless there is a smaller amount shown in Box (1) . . . (or is that the other way around?)

Struggling with which amounts should not be included in income (item 11 on who deducted what for Canada Pension Plan (items 20 to 25F) or if an inability to finish the income forms would class be eligible for a Disability Deduction (item 47) or if the set of 12 glasses I sent my mother in Saskatchewan would fall under the gifts to Canada or a previous item, I slowly lost my control

I knew there was more to come the list of year-end stock would have to be typed, the cost of renovations calculated, bank statements to check and re-check and the cigarette box and napkin receipts would have to be put in some sort of respectable order

With coils of cash register tapes circling my feet, bills scattered across the table top and income tax instructions and forms forming the adding machine to play hide and seek, I calmly decided a more direct approach was needed to complete the tax chore

Ever so carefully I dug my way out of the ever-increasing paper maze, found an appropriate sized (empty) chocolate bar box and carefully, oh-so-very carefully, packed receipts, bills, T-4s, stock tapes and income tax forms into it

Somebody at Lachnaa, King and Co., Edmonton, is going to be disappointed when they open that Area Chocolate Bar box but if they are patient enough to work their way to the bottom of the box, they'll find a couple Area hidden bet ween the napkin receipts and the swirls of register tape

I've done my income tax for another year

Hastings Lake news

Lea Fregos

The Pirat Tofield Club pack had an early spring outing on Saturday, when they hiked over Mrs Muir's land in excellent weather conditions, eating out afterwards at a winter resort.

At the Pony Club meeting at the Hall on Monday, visiting speaker Dr David Cook talked about conditioning a horse, and preparation for show jumping. Colleen Tetford will be representing the club in the Camrose Rodeo Queen contest, in which the winner is judged on personality and riding ability as well as ticket sales. The rodeo is scheduled for April 1st to 3rd.

A good deal of the action in preparation for the Tofield Ice Carnival is taking place at Lynn Tiedemann's right now, where Lynn is in charge of skaters' costumes and reliable evidence suggests that she is doing a great deal of the sewing herself.

A notice from Strathcona County Recreation Department asks us to register for forthcoming bus-to-swim programs at 7:00 p.m on March 22nd, at the South Cooking Lake Community Hall. The lessons will be at the Sherwood Park Pool.

The next wheel drive at the Hall will be Friday at 8:30 p.m and the Ladies' Club is invited to Lynn Gates' home on Thursday, March 17th, at 1:00 p.m for the monthly meeting.

On Saturday, March 19th, there will be a Macramé workshop at the Hall starting at 9:00 a.m and ending at 3:30 p.m Participants need no prior knowledge, but should have $3 and a lunch with them. If you would like to join in, or need further information, phone Lynn Gates at 666-2517.

Nature lovers may be interested in a Spring field tour on on birds, to be held on the weekend of May 7 and 8. This will take place at the Minnik Hills Field Study Centre, two miles south of Hastings Lake and if you are interested, please write or phone for more information to I. Penne, R.R. 2 Tofield, 662-2389

Swimming program opposed by P.T.A.

The Tofield Parent and Teacher Association held its monthly general meeting on March 1st at the Tofield School.

A relatively large gathering discussed program scheduling for high school students, optional subjects at the junior high level and the proposal of a swimming program in the schools of the county.

Al Pollock, principal of Tofield School, discussed the problems of offering the variety of courses now available by the Department of Education to the students of Alberta. The size of the student body and the limited availability of staff were cited as reasons for the difficulty.

Filling in for Mr. Jack Lampitt, Mr Pollock also discussed the power high option program. He accepted the suggestion that a detailed description of course content and cost be distributed to parents before selection of option subjects is made by students. However, Mr Pollock pointed out that it is possible that alterations to the course content will be made as the year progresses and as the need arises.

The meeting ended on a provocative note as the recent proposal of the implementation of a swimming program, using the pool facilities at Ryley, was discussed. The pro's and con's of the program were discussed.

A motion to communicate the objection of the Tofield Parent Teacher Association to any such program was unanimously approved.

The lack of details as to the implications of such a program for the school curriculum and the financial burden were cited as reasons for the position.

The next meeting of the PTA will be announced through The Tofield Mercury and on posters displayed around town.

Tofield scouts, guides enjoy active programs

The last weekend in January twelve scouts and three leaders attended the Fifteenth Winter Jamboree in Stettler

With one hundred and fifty other Scouts from Alberta they took part in activities such as Arctic survival, hauling, curling, football and a turn on the rifle range on Sunday

After church parade and a delicious roast beef dinner, the boys caught up on their sleep in the cars coming home

In February, Guide Scout week was commemorated by a color parade and service conducted by Rev Meddle Attending were Father Carswell and Rev Nelson, as well as parents and friends

Baden Powells birthday was celebrated with a combined Mother Daughter and Father-Son banquet Rev Nelson acted as m c and head table guests were Mrs. Van Hus, District Guide Commissioner, Jules Hall, District Scout Commissioner, Mrs Gudmundson, District Guide Camp Advisor and her husband, Mayor and Mrs Prosbury, Mr and Mrs Stan Vollmer, representing C W L, sponsors of Guides and Brownies, and Mr and Mrs Alno Jensen, representing Lions Club, sponsors of Scouts and Cubs

Approximately 200 people attended and parents had an opportunity to see the groups together and listen to leaders' reports of what each group has been doing in the year

Recently, Scouts and fathers enjoyed a hockey game in Edmonton Cubs went on a nature walk and weiner roast at Hastings Lake

The weekend of March 5, Tofield Guides joined guides from Hay Lakes and New Sarepta in a weekend at Hastings Lake Community Hall, under leadership of Mary Van Hees and Betty Gudmundson, assisted by Carol Huebner, Gladys Donnan and Laura Eglauer

The girls assembled bird houses, with mud and grass built bird nest replicas and did their own cooking Outdoor activities included some snowshoeing, camp fire-building, some star finding and observation of a ground squirrel

Mrs Robert Jones is interested in starting a Beaver colony and as she has considerable experience in this field it should be a success

The age group is five to seven and we need parent participation Watch for announcement of a coming meeting

Plans are going ahead for the seven boys who are attending the Canadian Jamboree in P E I The boys are looking for ways of earning money to cover part of their expenses Please save newspapers If you have any old batteries or any odd jobs, these boys can do, please phone 662 3616 or 662 3252

Students do baking

by Grace Phillips

The tantalizing aroma of fresh doughnuts floated on the hall of the round wing of the Tofield School last Thursday as the excited students at Mrs Yvonne Allan s Grade 4 room culminated a reading unit on a practical fashion by making doughnuts

The reading unit had consisted of both factual and fictitious stories about various foods, recipes for practice in reading for detail, and charts of food values

So that the students could enjoy the culmination of their reading unit, Mrs Allan brought the necessary supplies and equipment to school where a happy morning was spent in making and eating the doughnuts

Other members of the Burkin rink were Marg Sabourin, Gerry Langdeau, and Gladys Brown

Stricken of Ryley came in second in the 1st Event while Helekson of Gladstone finished third and Lund of Bruce was fourth.

Top honours in the 2nd Event went to Giroux of Edmonton with Badry of Camrose in 2nd place while third was taken by Fredericks of Bruce with Kushner of Edmonton coming fourth

The Third Event was won by Janet Hedenychuk of Round Hill with Lessa Kostke of Holden second while third went to Tkachyk of Trochu with 4th place going to Hargreaves of Ryley.

Carnival goes this weekend

It's carnival time again and with only two days left before the big event, eager skaters from the Tofield Skating Club can often be found at the arena working hard on their routines.

One hundred skaters will be taking part in a concerted effort to show off the skills acquired over the past sixteen weeks.

Of special note during this year's show will be the exciting and very professional lighting effects which will be under the able direction of Everett Norris

The carnival, to be held at the Tofield Arena on Saturday, at 7 30 p.m. and Sunday, at 2 00 p.m. will be highlighted by the crowning of the carnival queen during the intermission ceremonies

Emcee for these ceremonies will be Rev David Meddle while Dave Dykeman will be commentating throughout the skating program.

It's going to be a great show Tickets are available at the Bakery, Robinson's, T'se Sports Shop and Town and country Drug Mart

4-H club has contest

Around the town

Irma (nee Penner) and Warren Evanson of Grand Cache were visiting relatives in Tofield one evening last week Irma has completely recovered from major surgery she had last fall

Tofield and Ryley Stage Band performed at the Alberta Hotel in Edmonton last Thursday for the teachers' convention with Bobby Cairns as guest conductor.

Tofield WCTU held its annual meeting at the Peter Bjornson home with 10 members and three guests present. Reports on the past year's activities were given and the party for children participating in the poster contest was set for April 1st after school in the Baptist Church Election of officers resulted in the same executive staying on for another year Refreshments were served by the hostess at the end of the meeting.

Burchards celebrate "60th" anniversary

Mr and Mrs Reed Burchard were honored at an open house on March 6th when friends gathered at the United Church to congratulate them on their 60th wedding anniversary

Harold Shults was Master of Ceremonies with Thomas Jacobs, an old family friend, giving an account of the Burchard's early years here Mr and Mrs Burchard came to Canada from Nebraska in the spring of 1924 and for a year lived on what was then the Blackburn place east of town.

The next year, they bought a farm north of the creamery formerly the home of Dr Tofield and farmed there until 1945 when they moved to Kelowna.

There, Mr Burchard worked at a juice plant until 1955 when he retired and they decided to return to Tofield.

Mrs. Stinson spoke of Mrs Burchard's nursing career She took her training in Chicago and of her activities in the U F W A as well as the United Church Ladies Aid.

Ronny Goeglinz spoke on behalf of the farmers' curling club and said how much they enjoyed curling with Mr Burchard

Melita Wall sang two solos, "How Great Thou Art" by special request and "May The Good Lord Bless and Keep You"

Rev Meddle presented scrolls from Lieutenant Governor and Premier Lougheed.

Also present to celebrate the occasion were their special friends, Mrs Lucille Morrison, her three sons and their families, all of Edmonton.

Mr. Burchard made a fitting reply after which the ladies served lunch. After lunch, Rev. Meddle closed the ceremonies with a very fitting message.

Tofield will bring dogs under control

The Town of Tofield is looking into the possibility of using a tranquilizer gun to bring the town's dog population under control

Town Council, at a meeting on Tuesday night, were responding to the fact that there were running at large within the town, with owners ignoring the dog control by-law which was passed in February

Council was told that only six owners had purchased dog licenses and that the deadline for having licenses was April 1st In anticipation of dog owners not following the by-law, council authorized the administration to look into the possibility of buying a tranquilizer gun which would likely go into service after the April 1st deadline.

All three readings for the regulation and licensing of dogs had been given at the February meeting of council.

Mathieu Engineering presented plans for development of Main Street at an estimated cost of $18,000 which would include sidewalks and benches. Council approved the plans and authorized Mateon Engineering to submit the plans to the Devonian Foundation for a development grant Council decided not to hold a meeting of ratepayers this year.

A brief, written by John Baerg, regarding the opening of the east side railway crossing, connecting the town and Highway 14 was presented and council decided to forward the brief to Hon. Dr. Horner, Minister of Highways, to see what expenses could be expected from the Provincial Government and to determine the need and cost of opening the crossing, if it is needed

Prior to attending the meeting, councillors inspected the new maintenance garage and agreed that it was acceptable and decided to insure the structure for $160,000

First reading was given to a by-law to provide for maintenance and control of the Tofield Cemetery Further consideration of this by-law was to be discussed at the next regular council meeting

Councillors were told that the cost of providing service on 55 Avenue, east of 48 Street would amount to $40,700 This sum would include water, sewer, services, curb and gutter.

Some park plan ideas were turned over to the town for future consideration, by Mateon Engineering.

Other routine business matters were handled.

Information for this news story was obtained from the unapproved minutes of a council meeting held on February 28th Information regarding the tranquilizer gun was forwarded by the town administration following a council meeting on Tuesday of this week.

Legion wins dart playoff

A team from Tofield will be competing in the provincial finals in Legion dart competitions.

A four-player team from Tofield won the District championship when they competed in playoffs in Wainwright. Members of the team are Ian Blomefield (captain), Millie Bagnall, Ada Shubaer and Marie Eagleham.

The provincial finals will be held on March 26th at the Edmonton Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion.

Six teams win hockey tourney

Six different centers emerged with winners in the finals in Tofield's annual minor hockey tournament were held on Sunday

All teams had participated in tournaments earlier with the two finalists in each category meeting in deciding games on Sunday in a day-long playoff tourney

Fultonvale whipped Camrose Seals 5-1 in the Mite finals while Smoky Lake doubled Camrose Drillers 8-3 in Pee Wee Level 1 finals and Viking walloped Tofield 7-1 in Pee Wee Level 2 playoffs

Tofield trounced Redwater 5-1 in Bantam Level 1 finals with Westlock blanking Viking 7-0 in the Bantam Level 2 finals and Edmonton Schaffer edging New Sarepta 4-3 in the Midget finals

Scoring in the six final games follow:

Fultonvale 3 Camrose 1. For Fultonvale—Buffy 2, Laughlin. Easterly, McEwen. For Camrose Peterson.

Viking 7 Tofield 1. For Viking—Ayerbek 2, Tomczyk 2, Hoffman 2, Graham For Tofield—Miskiw

Smoky Lake 6 Camrose 3. For Smoky Lake—Hapka 3, Gorge, Beebuck, Senetza, Melnyk. For Camrose - Kuntz, Truch, Aspenas

Westlock 7 Viking 5. For Westlock—Montgomery 3, Lyon, McInnis, Arnold.

Tofield 5 Redwater 1. For Tofield—Reid 2, Robichaud 2, Tofield For Redwater—Rozychuk

Edmonton 4 New Sarepta 3. For Edmonton—Schaffer, Brochuk 2, Pellmann For New Sarepta—Kapp, Donnan, Faryna This game was decided in overtime with both goalies having been taken out.

Making the law more meaningful to Albertans

"The law" according to Irwin Doerksen, president of the Canadian Bar Association," is merely a set of rules that enables people to live together and respect each other's rights.

However occasional changes to the framework of society necessitate changes to that set of rules. Such alterations to the law in Alberta are the business of the Institute of Law Research and Reform at the University of Alberta.

And business is brisk, courtesy of the institute's own list of suitable subjects and requests from government and from private groups and individuals for the institute to undertake certain projects.

The institute, which is located on the university's Law Centre, is presently involved with 15 law reform projects including aspects of administrative law, labour law, conflict-of-laws, government documents, condominium tenancies and family law.

A topical accomplishment of the institute was a report on the matrimonial property section of family law. The current law on matrimonial property is a century old and a survey conducted by the institute found that the public regard the law as unsatisfactory.

Acting on a provincial government request and a recommendation of the Royal Commission on the Status of Women the institute spent more than four years researching the problem of a fair distribution of property owned by married persons when their marriage ends by reason either of divorce or the death of one spouse.

The institute's recommendations for reform of the law and draft legislation by which to implement the proposed new law were detailed in a recently released report.

The majority proposal, favored by four of the institute's seven board members, is based upon deferred sharing, a principle which defers the division of property until the marriage is ended. It preserves the existing law of separate ownership of property by husband and wife during marriage.

Upon divorce or after a period of separation, property gains made by the spouses during marriage would be shared equally.

Property owned before marriage would not be subject to sharing, nor would property received during marriage by gift or inheritance.

Deferred sharing would only apply to those who marry after the new law is passed.

The institute's minority proposal would provide for the sharing of all the property owned by the couple and not just the increase during marriage. The sharing would be in proportions thought to be fair in all the circumstances.

The institute's recommendations would not affect ownership of the matrimonial home. However it was recommended that the court be given power to award possession of the home to one spouse or the other something it would normally do only when there are children.

The report has been forwarded to the attorney general's department.

The length of time and the range of research involved in the publication of the report characterize the institute's approach to its mandate.

Director W. H. Hurlburt, who is also a professor of law, and the six other lawyers serving on the institute's board of directors select projects carefully. An outline of the scope of a particular project is prepared and research is then conducted. The latter is basically an examination of the Canadian jurisdiction concerned, but the institute also studies the law in other countries as well sometimes a committee of lawyers, academics, and the public is established.

The research papers examined by a working paper or a discussion paper are then circulated to respondents for their comments.

Recommendations for reform arising from the discussion papers are then examined by the institute's board of directors and, if approved, are published in a final report. Sometimes draft legislation is also prepared.

The institute's staff of lawyers, commissioners members of the Faculty of Law on specific projects and engages several law students each summer to do research assigned by the director.

Professor Hurlburt who has practised law for 23 years, succeeded W. F. Bowker as director September 1 1975.

The chairman of the board is Judge W. A. Stevenson and the board members are W. F. Bowker director emeritus, R. P. Fraser, William "Bud" Hunt, Isadore Frederick Lunn, and Dr. Myer Bloomenthal. All are lawyers with the exception of Dr. Bloomenthal who is vice-president (academic) of the University of Alberta.

Ex-officio members of the board are the attorney general, the deputy attorney general, the dean of the faculty of law, the university librarian, the additional duty of encouraging and completing research apart from that leading to law reform.

To help facilitate its research the institute employs a staff of five

Peter Ward's Ottawa Viewpoint

Canadian comment

OTTAWA — (W) — Within the next few weeks we will likely be seeing the first experimental broadcasts of the House of Commons proceedings on television. Parliament passed the bill to allow television and radio coverage of its affairs in mid-January, and presently a committee of the House is discussing just how broadcasting will be done.

It's expected that this year's budget presentation will be offered to the public via the tube so that both Canadians and budding Parliamentary technicians will get some experience. It's also possible that the proceedings of some Parliamentary committees will be shown sporadically between now and the time when Parliamentary television becomes a regular thing.

Moving Parliament into the 20th century for communications will certainly be a good thing in the long run but until Canadians get used to seeing their federal representatives doing their thing on the box it will be dangerous.

Preliminary plans call for television cameras to be concealed in the woodwork of the House of Commons and operated by remote control much the same as the present microphones are switched to cover the member who happens to be speaking.

Last fall the CBC made an application to the Canadian Radio and Television Commission for the use of one cable TV channel coast to coast, and promised that if the application was granted, 24 hours daily of Parliamentary proceedings would be carried while the Commons was sitting. That is enough to cover all sittings of the House and incidentally to provide the CBC with some great prime time television facilities when Parliament isn't sitting particularly on weekends.

But few Canadians are going to sit down and watch the entire proceedings of the House of Commons. Some channel hoppers will watch sporadically, but the main effect of television in the House of Commons will come from the big networks.

Parliament's visual and audio records will be made available to the networks for them to edit and present as they see fit, and it is here that the dangers present themselves. Next week we'll continue exploring the issue of television in the House of Commons

BRTA gets action on highway signs

Executive members of the Battle River Tourism Association congratulated themselves at their meeting in Wetaskiwin recently, on their success in getting action from the provincial Department of Highways

Complaints from members in the Killam area over the signing of intersections on Highway 36 were passed on by the Zone 3 board, to the province, and the February meeting received information that the two problem intersections mentioned would be rectified. Specific problem areas mentioned were the intersections with Highways 9 and 12

The big news at the meeting was a total amount of $32,350 will be received from the Province during the year to augment revenues received from membership dues, for the purpose of work being done by the association. The notice was received from the Review Board of the Travel Industry Zone Assistance Program, and basically reflects the steady increase in financial support accorded to the organization in the three (3) membership dues from a variety of supporters, including municipal governments, business firms and individual supporters throughout the entire length and breadth of the zone

The meeting also received confirmation that Andy Russell, one of Alberta's famous authors and lecturers, will be the guest speaker at the annual meeting, slated for October

The middle of March the association should be receiving 30,000 1977 tour guides reported Len D'Albertanson of Wainwright Chairman of the brochure committee, he said he is also working on a new edition of the hunting brochure, but these will not be available for quite some time yet. The new tour guides will be distributed widely as soon as they become available

Mrs Ellen Eaton

Ernie Collins, a former resident of the McKenzie District, recently of Tofield passed away on Saturday, Mar 4th in the Tofield Hospital following a severe heart attack a short time before. Ernie was well known to many oldtimers. He was employed at the Tofield coal mine for several years many years ago before purchasing a farm in the McKenzie district where he lived until retiring to Tofield. He leaves no relatives but several friends. The funeral was from the Tofield Anglican Church on Mar 9th with interment in the Tofield Cemetery.

On March 4th Charlie and Mickey Nesmeth accompanied Mickey's brother, Howard and Mae Ferguson on a motor trip to Whitecourt where they were visitors at the home of Howard's and Mae's daughter, Donna and Frank Edwards and family over the weekend. They returned home Mar 6th

Ellen Eaton accompanied several members of the Golden Club on a shopping trip to Edmonton on Friday going in the recreation bus driven by Henry Schroeder

Sunday visitors at the home of Carl and Marge Jacobsen were their daughter Chance and Peter Anderson and little son Leif of St Albert. Carl's parents, Hans and Martha Jacobsen of Edmonton who accompanied Clarice and Peter; and Marge's nephew Dennis and Janette Jacobsen and four boys also of Edmonton All were guests at a birthday supper in honor of Carl's birthday

Weekend visitors at the home of Howard and Mae Ferguson were their son Nelson Ferguson and Ren-Ai Stem, both of Sherwood Park

This last week the weather has been quite changeable as Thursday evening our district had around 2 inches of snowfall overnight, then Friday most of it melted but by evening it started turning colder with a few flurries again overnight, clearing again Saturday with winds quite strong, then Saturday evening much colder and more snow flurries and Sunday it continued quite chilly and cloudy most of the day. The moisture is needed to provide subsoil moisture for the crops but warmer weather is also needed to bring the frost out for an early spring

Church Services

John 6 9 — There is a lad here who hath five barley loaves and two small fishes.

A woman came to G Campbell Morgan one day and said "I would give anything to be active as the Lord's service. I want to have a part in winning men and women to Christ, but I don't know what to do. The wise minister answered, "are you prepared to give the master the five loaves and two fishes you possess?" She replied, "I was not aware that I had any loaves or fishes"! The preacher persisted, Have you any talent that you have used in a special way?" "No, I don't believe so." she said. "Can you sing?" he inquired, "well yes" she answered I

The Mercury

Poe Pourri

by Lorraine Poulsen

There is no truth to the rumor that Poe has been invaded by outer space visitors driving orange trucks and sporting rounded yellowish helmets.

Those steady burning lights across from the Poe Store are not secret headquarters and the flashing yellow lights about a mile down from the store are not launching pad flares.

Basically, Poe is pretty much the same as always.

True, the population has increased considerably in the past few days but the new "sorta-Peeries" are earth people here to complete a very earthly job.

Although I was pre-warned about the arrival of the Alberta Department of Highways bridge crew to Poe, I too was taken aback when the crew actually started moving in.

The trucks, the trailers and the individual cars I could easily understand but when they drove that long-necked crane into the camp, I almost prayed that they really were on "our" side.

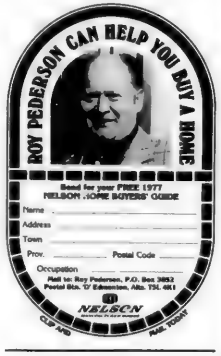
They are.

Seems the highway bridge about a mile from Poe is being replaced. While I don't claim to be knowledgeable in regard to bridge building (or any type of highway maintenance) I have every confidence that the foremen, the workers AND the crane operator know exactly what work must be done and how to do it.

They tell me that traffic on Highway 14 will be reduced to one lane traffic for a few weeks but, aside from that, motorists and locals will not be little inconvenienced.

Forget the alien space stories you may have heard. These hard-hatted workers ARE on our side and they are here to construct us a brand new bridge.

Not only that, they're nice people.



Beaverhill Community

It was moving day for the old Mackenzie Hall on March 6th. After several busy days of bracing, lifting and putting skids under it, the old hall was shedded some eight miles to the site of the Beaverhill Hall where it will later be annexed. Pulled by three tractors at an average speed of two miles per hour, it moved without an difficulty, even to going under the power lines. Under the able management of Glen Francis all went smoothly and the hall was at its new location by 1 p.m. A pot luck dinner was waiting for the movers when they arrived. Helpers getting the hall ready to move included Glen Francis, Bert Teetzmann, Russell Ferguson, Arne Sagmoen, Ed Ferguson, Harry Dale and Edmund Ferguson. Those on hand during the moving - Glen Francis, Leonard Ferguson, Harry Dale, Ed Ferguson, Clifford Ferguson, Edmund Ferguson, Arnie Sagmoen, Ruth Ferguson and Pat Sagmoen.

The Mackenzie Hall was built in the early 1920's with volunteer labor under the supervision of Albert Roberge who was a skilled carpenter. It was built on two acres of land donated by the Chris Moos family. The orchestra for the first dance was the Harris' from Lamont. After the Mackenzie School was moved into Tofield, the hall was moved to the old school grounds in Poe to use it as a community center never materialized and it has stood unused since early 1940's.

The annual meeting of the Beaverhill Community Association was held March 8 in the hall with all board members being returned for another year. Plans are underway for a bingo in March and a dance in April.

The Kids Dance last Friday evening was well attended and everyone had a good time.

INSURE

1977 could be a good crop year — but don't bet on it. Conditions so far do not reflect normal weather patterns. This year, to even a greater extent than usual, precautions are justified against the losses which can occur from drought, hail, frost, snow, excessive moisture or other natural hazards.

If you are a farmer who regularly insures with the Alberta Hail & Crop Insurance Corporation, you may want to increase your level of coverage this year.

If you are not already insuring in the program, you should consider All-Risk Crop Insurance. It is the only way in which you can get an overall guarantee for each crop you plant. If your production falls below the guaranteed level, you will be paid for the shortage.

Applications for All-Risk Crop Insurance can only be accepted up to April 30.

We've helped all kinds of people with business financing

All kinds of people running all kinds of businesses are eligible for loans from the Alberta Opportunity Company, a provincial government lending agency

So if you want to start a new business or expand an existing enterprise, and if banks or other financial institutions are unable to help, give AOC a call

AOC isn't easy either, but it does go further in loaning funds that can't be obtained elsewhere Priority is given to small businesses in the smaller Alberta centres

The Homemaker

And a Happy St. Pat's to You!

St Patrick's day always brings happy thoughts I remember happy days spent in Ireland. Crazy friends who come calling bringing green Prawns one St Patrick's day Happy music This week's columns has two special recipes you might like to try

Bran Stew

1 lb stewing lamb, cut in pieces
Water
½ c. diced carrot
½ c. diced turnip
1 onion, sliced
1 potato, cubed
1 c. sliced potatoes
Salt and pepper

Cover lamb with water and simmer for 1 hour Add carrot, turnip, onion and potato and simmer for one-half hour Add sliced potatoes, season to taste and simmer one-half hour longer Authentic Irish Stew needs no thickening but, if you prefer, mix one-quarter cup cold water, into the stew Cook and stir until gravy is smooth and thick For darker gravy, flour the meat and brown in fat before cooking.

Fruit Tidbits

6 medium pears
one-third golden raisins
one-third cup slivered almonds two-thirds cup sugar
one-third cup lemon juice
1 cup granulated syrup
Select 6 best pears and carefully core from bottom, leaving stems intact Cut a thin slice off each pear so it will stand up In small bowl, combine raisins and almonds, use to fill the cavities in pears Place pears in 8-quart Dutch oven, add sugar, lemon juice, and 2 cups hot water; cover and cook over low heat for 20 minutes or until pears are tender Serve pears with 2 tablespoons grenadine poured over each. Makes 6 servings.

Prairie Rich

There is no error in the Refrigerator Bran Muffin recipe It contains 2 cups of flour The corrected recipe is as follows

Refrigerator Bran Muffins
2 eggs
½ c. oil
1 c. sugar
3 c. milk
2 c. flour
1 c. bran
2 tsp soda
1 tsp salt
1 c. raisins

Sift dry ingredients Mix wet ingredients and stir in Don't overmix Stir in raisins Spoon batter into greased muffin tins and bake at 400 for 15 minutes

And remember they're so good right out of the oven they don't even need butter of jam

Game Farm Should Stay!

I had the opportunity to engage in the Throne Debate last Wednesday and raised the question of the Alberta Game Farm

The Game Farm is a credit to the people of Alberta. The owner, Dr and Mrs Gunning and their family should be applauded for the honor they have brought to Alberta through their establishment of the Game Farm

I have suggested the Provincial Island buy the Farm and turn it into a Provincial Park. The government has rejected this

I now have proposed that the Game Farm be purchased and operated, as it is, by an independent foundation This would enable the Game Farm to remain here and at the same time we would not need to increase the Civil Service to run the Farm

The Heritage Trust Fund is to be used for future generations If we lose the Game Farm will we not lose part of our future generation's heritage?"

I would appreciate your direction on this matter.

Cooking Lake Jamboree

Gene Zimmerman and Larry Fisher and all the leaders in the area are to be commended for their fine games programme last weekend. It was a beautiful weekend for the games and races, and I thank the group for the opportunity to help with the opening

Any comments or problems will be appreciate, please or write: c/o the Legislature phone 427-2251

LINES AND WRINKLES

By MARY KAILUA

Cosmetic science has extracted a skin beauty substance from the bean of a tropical plant that works wonders by making rough, lined face and dry chapped hands look years younger last Use it tonight and you should see vast improvement in the morning Many small lines around the eyes and mouth may already have disappeared and wrinkles you have given up as hopeless should start to vanish in a few days But that isn't all That discouraging weather-darkened old-age skin tone fades away But don't take my word for it use this exciting substance yourself for 7 days satisfaction is guaranteed or return for refund It's the tropical nut extract that works wonders for wrinkles and lines It's called Cerenna Dry

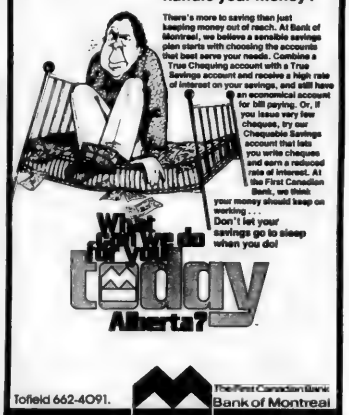
Is there a better way to handle your money?



There's more to saving than just keeping money out of reach. At Bank of Montreal, we believe a sensible savings plan starts with choosing the accounts that best serve your needs. Combine a True Chequing account with a True Savings account and receive a high rate of interest on your savings, and still have an economical account for bill paying. Or, if you issue very few cheques, try our Chequable Savings account that lets you write cheques and earn a reduced rate of interest. At the First Canadian Bank, we think your money should keep on working . . . Don't let your savings go to sleep when you do!

CKUA asks input on program change

In a move designed to encourage listener response, Radio Station CKUA has issued a White Paper outlining proposed changes in CKUA programming The White Paper outlines changes to CKUA programming to comply with both federal and provincial broadcast requirements The White Paper is an official statement about CKUA, and has been prepared by the Alberta Educational Communications Corporation, known as ACCESS Alberta

"Basically, CKUA has been asked to increase the amount of educational and instructional content" says John Chalmers, ACCESS Director of Communications Services "Listener response has always been very important to CKUA in the last fifty years," he added, "and now that CKUA is heard throughout most of Alberta, we hope the response will come from all corners of the province, and that it will be a reflection of the needs and interests of Albertans"

The CKUA White Paper, entitled "Planning For Change", consists of three parts The Introduction gives a brief history of the radio station and a summary of federal and provincial broadcast requirements The second section includes detailed government guidelines and a complete CKUA broadcast schedule The paper concludes with a questionnaire to which listeners may respond by expressing their opinions on CKUA broadcasting

Copies are available from CKUA, 10836 Jasper Avenue, Edmonton, T5J 1Z7; or by phoning CKUA at 423-0161 in Edmonton

ADC keeps on growing

The Agricultural Development Corporation will continue in business for some time, with operations continuing to expand

"WHY UNIFORMS?"

Holden Alta
March 9, 1977

Editor,
Tofield Mercury
Dear Sir

Parents of Holden School students were informed last week, that next year, their children, taking Physical Education, would have to wear a uniform for that class This uniform would consist of a tee-shirt, a pair of shorts and knee socks, all in the students house league colors, and would be bought from the school for about $10 00 I object to these uniforms, not because of the cost, which is reasonable, but, because it is being inflicted on us what our children are to be allowed to wear

I have no objection to a student wearing shorts to a Phys Ed class it is a good idea for a number of reasons, among them, ease of movement in a strenuous class and for the sake of health and sanitation But, why can't the student take shorts and tee-shirts from home for this class" Most young people wear shorts in the summer time and so already have them Those who don't, can make blue jean cut-offs, or whatever

One of the arguments I have heard to the above idea is that if I don't submit to my children having a certain book for Social Studies or mathematics, then why should I object to them wearing a certain pair of shorts in Phys Ed class" This is a ridiculous argument because my children learn from the Social Studies book or the Math book, but they are not going to learn any more in Phys Ed whether they are wearing a pair of blue jeans cut-offs or a pair of stretch nylon shorts

Another argument I feel has no validity is that these uniforms would make it easier for the teachers to differentiate between the four or five house leagues

If the outfit were left to the student's discretion, they would be in all different colors One solution would be varied colored arm bands As for the rest of the uniform being different, so what! Does it really matter that one student will be wearing an orange tee-shirt and black shorts and another will have a red top and brown shorts"

If the students could bring their own outfits from home, these, when out-grown, could be passed down to the younger brother or sister By the house league color rule, this is impossible because the younger sister or brother will probably be in a different house league, and, therefore need a different looking suit

We are told that these uniforms "grow with the child", we were told this a year ago about house league tee-shirts I, for one, box the two of these shirts in two different colors for our two daughters The shirts did not "grow with the child" they fit about six weeks The larger tee-shirt could not be passed down to the younger girl because she was in a different house league and needed a shirt of a different color Everyone I have talked to had the same problem Now, a scant year later, no one is wearing the house league tee-shirts This same problem is almost a certainty this time, but on a grander scale because now it involves a three-piece outfit instead of a $2 00 tee-shirt

And what of the student who has a weight problem? What of the student who feels he or she has "ugly" legs" We all know that teen-agers in the junior-high age group are highly self-critical about their looks What of the student in the "hard-to-fit" category" These students will feel extremely uncomfortable if they are forced to wear a stretch nylon or polyester outfit which, at best, will come in only three basic sizes, and, at worst, will accent every unsightly aspect of the child's figure If the student brought their outfits from home, they would obviously fit and would also detract from that student's figure problems The students would feel more comfortable and, therefore, would probably do better in class

In closing, may I say this" What are our teachers being paid for? To teach our children or to dictate to them what to wear? To teach them to be individuals and think for themselves or to inflict on them, their own ideas and judgements in something that has nothing whatsoever to do with the students capabilities in that particular subject

Yours truly,
Mrs. Margaret Christensen

Big "40"

Mr and Mrs. Joe Fleming celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary on February 28th. Former residents of Ryley, the Flemings now live on an acreage near Tofield. The flemings have four married daughters and nine grandchildren, all of whom helped them celebrate their anniversary.

Career planning goes March 23rd

According to Randy Ness, Registrarian in Career Planning Project Coordinator:

"A lot of people are putting a great deal of effort into making our Viking Career Planning Project a success.

We have 42 consultants and 30 teachers who have donated a whole day on March 23 for the express purpose of helping students in our County gain a clearer insight into what fantastic possibilities lay in store for our young people. We've tried to stress opportunities awaiting people who wish to live in the County or other rural areas and at the same time outline areas with a career progression - where a person can build on past training and experiences and move on to more challenging positions throughout his or her working life.

I personally feel that the staff members who have prepared the students for the March 23 E.C.P. Day in Viking deserve an accolade for their splendid cooperation in donating their time and their energies towards this end."

Parents are invited to sit and some classroom presentations at Viking School and may do so simply by coming to the school office where they will be met by Parent Participation Directors, Mrs Lorene Francis and Mrs Anne Wilmer and assist in their selection of an area to attend.

Students and parents will be able to choose from among the following areas: research lab, telephone industry, engineering, Armed Forces, construction, RCMP, Syncrude, accounting, petroleum industry, agriculture, health, horizons for women, social service, music, careers from NAIT, U of A information, information on Camrose Lutheran College, Concordia College, Keyano College, Olds College and Lakeland College, student finances, teaching and Grant MacEwan Community College.

Around the town

Mrs. Ella Allan and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Panting of Westlock, spent a pleasant two weeks in Havana. While there, they met Vi and Elmer Gaspian who are also holidaying there. Elmer had become a man-from-mantid

There was a large turnout of ladies for the World Day of Prayer which was held in the Mennonite Church, with every church being represented. Freda Regier was the guest speaker. Coffee and cookies were served at the end of the program.

The Tofield Garden Club held their meeting March 14th at the home of Marie Wavian.

Plans were made to have a flea market at the Tofield Arena, May 28th.

It was decided that the club would supply seeds and bulbs to anyone 12 years and under interested in entering in the Jr. Horticulture Classes for the 1977 Fair.

Myrtle Nerland will hold the April meeting.

Theone Jones, Lillian Bathe, Edith and Yvonne Bowers journeyed to East Iowa March 8th, and 9th to attend the Alberta Horticultural annual meeting. Keitha Brown accompanied them to Pincher to visit Elsie Bednar. At the meeting plans for the 1977 Provincial Show to be held in Stony Plain were discussed.

Yvonne Brown was nominated as a director of the A.H.A. for the coming two years.

Norman McClellan of Grande Prairie presented a medal to John Waller, manager of Beaverlodge Nursery for his contribution to Horticulture in Alberta. Norman McClellan is a son-in-law of John Thompson of Tofield. Norman, Theone, Lillian and Yvonne were overnight guests of Buck and Nola Godwin of Olds.

Mrs J.A.L. Smith spent Friday at the home of her parents, Mr and Mrs J.W. Robinson. Her daughter Edith - Mary is in Toronto attending a Directors meeting of the Canadian Cat Association. She is president of the Association.

Whitsons have 40th anniversary

Martha and Dick Whitson were recently honoured at a celebration on the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary.

Many relatives and friends gathered on Feb 20, at the Ryley Community Hall to visit with the couple, enjoy the program and a lunch.

Mr Whitson spent the early part of his first years on a farm at Partridge Hills, near Fort Saskatchewan. In 1926, the family moved to a homestead in the Independence District.

His wife, the former Martha Elliott, was born in England and came to Canada with her parents in 1926 and homesteaded in the Alcomdale District.

Mr and Mrs Whitson were married on February 23, 1927, at Westlock.

They lived at first on the farm of Mr Whitson's parents. However, soon after they were married, they moved into the Hamlet of Alcomdale where Mr Whitson was a grain buyer for United Grain Growers and later owner and operator of the general store and post office.

In 1950, they moved to Ryley where Mr Whitson was the owner and operator of a service station until his retirement.

Mrs. Whitson has been an active member of the Cavell Rebecca Lodge at Ryley since 1956, a member of the Ladies Aid of the United Church and has served with the Arts and Music Festival for the past 4 years. She also worked at the Alberta Government Telephone office as an operator from 1960 until it closed in February, 1967.

The Whitsons have two children Fairena of Chauvin and Gordon of Edmonton and four grandchildren.

Called up

Lionel Williams of Tofield has been signed for the balance of the hockey season by the Medicine Hat Tigers of the Western Canada Hockey League. He had been invited to join the Tigers in 1975 and had been sent to Grand Forks on one year lined up with Spruce Grove Mets who have been eliminated from the playoffs. He is completing his grade twelve with the help of a tutor. After the hockey season is over, he'll be returning to Tofield to spend the summer with his parents, Jean and Ed Williams.

Tofield wins hockey crown

Tofield has won one hockey championship and are leading in another final series in minor hockey playoffs.

The Bantam Level 1 team took the Highway 14 League championship when they outlasted Fort Saskatchewan 7-5 in a highly entertaining contest played in the Tofield Arena on Monday.

The win put paced the Tofield attack as he potted two goals with singles going to Walker, Blakley, Thomas, Robichaud and Telford. Scoring for the Fort squad were Tomlinson, Nowak, Freeman, Young and McClay.

In Bantam Level 11 competition, Tofield took a two-goal lead in the two-game total-goal series when they toppled Ardrossan 3-1 in the opening game of the finals.

Donnan led Tofield as he notched two markers with Marshall picking up the single tally. Heilens scored Ardrossan's lone goal.

Proctor wins bonspeil

The John Proctor rink of Tofield defeated the Dave Sears rink of Tofield in the final game to win the Grand Challenge at the annual Tofield Men's Curling Bonspiel held at the local curling rink from March 7 to March 13.

In addition to John Proctor who played third, the winning rink consisted of Wayne Mayer, skip, Larry Schroder, second, and Marvin Trimble, lead.

A total of 42 rinks participated in the spiel.

The Les Phillips rink of Edmonton won the second event and the Darryl Jewett rink of Ryley was the third event. The Hall rink from Edmonton captured the fourth event.

Oldtimers set tourney

Tofield is hosting an oldtimers hockey tournament this Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Teams involved in the three-day tournament will be from the Tofield Area, Edmonton, Sherwood Park, St Albert and Morinville.

Action on both Friday and Saturday will begin at 8:00 p.m. while Sunday's action will start at 9:00 a.m. The tournament finals are scheduled for Sunday afternoon, beginning at three o'clock.

The tournament is sponsored by the Tofield Oldtimers Hockey Club and the Hamiltonville Hockey League.

Vanda Jones crowned as Carnival's queen

The Tofield Skating Club's annual carnival, "Silver Blades" was presented to large and appreciative crowds last Saturday and Sunday at the Tofield Arena.

Wendy Bradshaw, their professional instructor, choreographed the many routines, demonstrating the skills which the smarty 100 children learned during the past season.

The first theme was 'At the Circus', with many balloons, popcorn, candy and even a clown solo (Diane Robichaud) Next favorite comic book heroes demonstrated their power skating prowess and managed to subdue the 'villainous Joker' (Tim Donnan). The second main theme was 'Over the Rainbow', featuring a variety of colourful routines and a solo by Laura MacNutt. The third portion of the program focused on dance numbers, all the way from soft shoe to Hitler jive and a modern disco solo by Kelley Heigh. Linda Jensen and Elaine McMann planned the crowd with their variety dance demonstration. Audiences were also treated to two solo performances by teacher Wendy Bradshaw.

Many group routines were accompanied by solos performed by the Club's competent amateur coaches, who have done so much for the younger children all winter. Linda Jensen, Susan McLeod, Kelly Morris, Elaine McMann and Ed Donnan.

A highlight of the post intermission ceremonies, emceed by the Reverend David Meddle, was the crowning of Vanda Jones as Carnival Queen. Vanda was sponsored by the Beaverhill Light Horse Association.

All sponsors' shares of the Queen contest raffle will go to either the non-profit organization itself, or, in the case of a commercial sponsor, to the Heart Fund. The winner of the raffled radio cassette player was Glen Francis of Tofield.

Arts Festival plans are being finalized

Plans are rapidly being finalized for the holding of the annual County of Beaver Arts and Music Festival.

Adjudicators have been appointed for this year's festival as follows: Drama-Mr. Phipps; Creative Writing-Alistair Calhoun, Piano-Mrs. Ivany, Photography-Jim Wesley, Choraies and Choruses-Bill Simon.

Indications are that the Honorable Horst Schmid will be on hand to present awards at the wind-up.

At a recent meeting of the Beaver Regional Arts Committee, Clay Schlamp was named as committee chairman while Faye Hulkovich is the secretary.

Beaver Regional Arts Committee has now been incorporated and has received its certificate.

Jeff Arnold has been named as master of ceremonies for the Concert of Finalists while Pearl Allan and George Baker will play the roles of hosts for the adjudicators.

There will be an arts and crafts demonstration during this year's festival as the Tofield Garden Club has accepted an invitation to provide such demonstrations.

Because of noise problems with some members of the audience during drama and musical selections, the committee has decided to post "Quiet" signs in those areas for this year's festival.

Attending the recent committee meeting were Val Charteris, Jeff Arnold, Clay Schlamp, Mary Ogrodnick, Anne Medkoski, Pearl Allan, Faye Hulkovich, Martha Whitson, Bertha Winnens and George Baker.

Three region girls seek queen's title

Three girls from The Mercury's coverage area will be trying for the Rodeo Queen title as the Camrose Kinsmen hold their annual Winchester Rifle Rodeo early next month.

A total of nine candidates are in the running in this year's Rodeo Queen Competition, more than double the usual number of entries.

Eighteen year old Valerie Gudmundsen will be in this year's competition representing the Ryley Light Horse Association. Miss Gudmundsen is employed as a junior clerk typist with an Edmonton firm and in addition to being active as a horsewoman, she enjoys sketching and oil painting.

Carrying the hopes of the Ryley-Holden 4-H Horse Club will be fourteen year old Kathleen Hisey. She is a grade eight student that likes participation sports and especially likes to ride and train her own horses. She is musically inclined, playing the bass guitar and piano in the family band.

Sixteen year old Colleen Telford will be representing the Hastings Lake Pony Club in this year's competition. Miss Telford is a grade ten student and is an avid rider and trail rider. Other sports that she likes include hockey, baseball and volleyball. Other contestants are Marilyn Rinke of the Camrose Light Horse Association, Dennise Hansen of the New Sarepta Gymkhana Club, Bennie Sellin of the Hay Lakes Gymkhana Club, Lynne Connolly of the Double Diamond Riding Club of Bentley, Wanda Zaparzy of Peace Pipe 4-H Light Horse Club of Wetaskiwin and Velvetanne Wilson of Nead Inner Riders Club of Ponoka.

The Winchester Rifle Rodeo will be held in the Recreation Center in Camrose on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, April 1, 2 and 3.

Queen competitions will be held on Friday and Saturday nights with the 1977 Queen being crowned during intermission on Saturday night.

Progressive Farming

Sainfoin Pasture

Sainfoin has great potential as a legume pasture crop for central and southern Alberta, according to Larry Gerson, forage crops specialist with Alberta Agriculture.

He believes the use of sainfoin could contribute significantly to cattle production in the province. This opinion appears to be borne out by a five-year study carried out by the federal research station at Lethbridge and reported to the Alberta Forage Crops Advisory Committee by Dr. Dan Wilson.

In the study the performance of yearling steers on a sainfoin irrigated pasture was compared with that of yearling steers on irrigated orchardgrass. Results over the five-year period showed that the steers on the sainfoin pasture averaged a 2.4-pound per head per day gain compared with 1.8-pound per head per day gain for the steers on orchard-grass. The average length of the grazing season was about 100 days each year.

Some of the steers on the sainfoin reached market weight while still on pasture and the remainder required only a short feeding period. On the other hand, all the steers on the orchardgrass had to be fed for a considerable period before they were ready for market.

No cases of bloat were recorded in the animals on the sainfoin pasture. In fact, the scientists involved in the study believe sainfoin to be completely non-bloat inducing.

The sainfoin pasture did not require any nitrogen fertilizer to maintain good growth, but the orchardgrass needed a 200-pound per acre application of nitrogen every year.

The most apparent deficiencies of sainfoin compared with orchardgrass are its lower dry matter yield, its slower recovery after grazing, its shorter productive life and its susceptibility to invasion by weeds.

Studies at Lethbridge have shown that the carrying capacity of a sainfoin pasture is only two-thirds that of an orchardgrass pasture. Originally its productive life appeared to be only two or three years under intensive grazing, but certain management techniques can increase its productive life considerably.

It was found, for example, that mowing the pasture after it had been grazed to remove weeds left by the animals has a very detrimental effect on sainfoin. When this practice, which is appropriate for grasses, was discontinued, the sainfoin stands regained vigor and remained in good condition for at least six years.

Weeds, however, are still a serious problem in sainfoin pastures. At the present time there seems to be no completely satisfactory way of controlling them, but the scientists at Lethbridge expect to start research into this problem next year.

The Homemaker

Agriculture Canada suggests the following idea for brightening up winter menus:

Summer isn't summer without salads! But how about those long winter months when salad greens are a luxury item? Don't panic there's always a way!

Consider the winter standbys: cabbage, carrots, beets, potatoes, onions, celery. All of these are good alternatives to the old tossed green salad cliche. There are many winter salads which are flavorful, tasty and nutritious that can be made with available home grown produce.

For use in salads, cabbage may be coarsely grated or shredded with a knife. Combine cabbage, green onion and cucumber with hard-cooked eggs salad dressing and seasonings to produce a green and gold slaw. Or, use a sour cream dressing to mix with cabbage, canned beets, onion and celery.

For a most unusual treatment of a cabbage salad pack a salad mixture of strips of ham and pieces of red apple with a mayonnaise salad dressing into a ring mold and turn out on a plate. Fill the centre with a mixture of grated carrots, peanuts and mayonnaise. A "hot" cabbage salad is another idea. Cook coarsely shredded cabbage for a few minutes before mixing with a hot salad dressing.

A hot potato salad is also in the limelight during cold days. Mix left-over boiled potatoes with French dressing, chopped onion and celery and seasonings. A cold potato salad remains of course one of the old favorites. Combine diced cooked potatoes with sweet pickle, green onion, chopped celery and green pepper, hard cooked eggs and seasonings. Mix with a salad dressing or mayonnaise. For variety, add cottage cheese or crumbled bacon.

Apples make delicious salads with shredded carrots and nuts or raisins. Canned tomatoes can be used in place of fresh tomatoes as a side salad or in combination with other vegetables.

So if the word salads to you creates the image of lettuce and tomatoes served with a dressing, then you've got a lot to learn. These suggestions are only a few of the many winter salad fixin' possibilities!

The Custom Home Builder

DARLINGTON Homes (Edm.) Ltd.

Mazankowski reports:

More for Ottawa than all West and Territories

On February 16th, the President of the Treasury Board tabled in the House of Commons the government's estimated spending levels for the period from April 1, 1977 to March 31, 1978. The Estimates call for a record $45.1 billion to be spent, up $3 billion over the current year. In the ten years of the Trudeau government the yearly spending level has risen from $8.8 billion, an increase of over 420 per cent. This years expenditure amounts to $1,861 for every man, woman and child in Canada.

While increases in federal government spending would appear to have moderated somewhat, upon closer examination the claims of restraint are more cosmetic than real. Much of the decrease in growth came from transferring spending responsibility to the provinces and from factors totally outside the government's control.

An interesting fact to come out of the Estimates is where the money is being spent. The federal Public Works Department will spend more money on new capital construction in the Ottawa-Hull national capital area than in the four Western provinces and two northern territories combined. This comes after repeated commitments by the government to decentralize its operations and to spend the taxpayers' money in the areas in which they live.

Another fact of particular interest to Western Canadians is that the Department of Agriculture will be spending less than 2 per cent of the federal governments total. This seems very unfair for an industry which has a direct or indirect share in 45 per cent of Canada's Gross National Product.

The recent decision by the Supreme Court of Canada has dealt a setback to Transport Minister Lang and his federal colleagues in their continuing quest for further centralization of power. The Court rendered a unanimous 9-0 decision upholding the Alberta government's right to purchase Pacific Western Airlines without first informing the federal Canadian Transport Commission. The Court's decision is regarded as a clear victory for Alberta.

The event which has received the most media coverage this week is the Prime Minister's visit to Washington. It is obvious that the Canadian government is taking a more positive approach to Canada-U.S. relations. The response to the Prime Ministers speech, especially where it dealt with national unity, was positive and encouraging. Another aspect of the speech which warrants attention is the emphasis which the Prime Minister put on a new world order. He stressed that many complex, technical issues are involved and that the problem must be solved by innovation and effort. In general, the speech was well received in the United States and this can only be viewed as promoting harmonious relations between our two countries.

Around the town

Vanda Jones' grandfather, Frank Wiltzen of Fort Saskatchewan, was able to be present on Sunday when she was crowned as Carnival Queen. His grandson, Dale Wiltzen brought him down and after the crowning, Vanda, Irwin, Ann, Dale and Mrs Wiltzer went out to celebrate with a supper.

Cpl Vernon Whillans from Trenton Air Base, Ontario visited last Thursday with his parents, Mr and Mrs Roy Whillans while on a stop-over flight through Edmonton where he also visited with his brothers and other relatives.

Illustration of Gasoline Tax

Last Thursday, I called on the government to eliminate the provincial tax on gasoline and fuel oil. If it were agreed to do this, it would get rid of the ten cents per gallon tax on gasoline and twelve cents per gallon on diesel fuel.

It is difficult to believe the government needs the money, and necessity for revenue is the principal reason for taxation. By the end of 1977, the government will probably have a 300 to 350 million dollar surplus in the budget and that's after putting 725 million dollars in the Heritage Trust Fund. How can it be argued that the 91 million dollars received from the tax is essential?

Like all sales taxes, the tax is regressive, meaning it hits working people and the poor much more than it does the wealthy. The government already gets huge amounts of money from oil and natural gas royalties, which is one form of tax. Why should the government get even more on the retail end, unnecessarily taxing those who can least afford it?

Checking prices around the province has shown price ranges from 75 cents a gallon for regular gasoline in our cities to a high of $1.60 per gallon. A true average of our prices would, I suggest, be almost as high as in a number of other provinces incidentally gasoline prices in neighboring States are even lower, when converted to Canadian currency, than even our most modest gasoline prices.

I see no real reason why we, as Albertans, should be paying tax on a product which is already producing massive income for our government!

Last week I participated in the menu open at Tofield. The fellowship was great, the banquet was excellent and the people we curled against thought we were very nice losers!!

Last Thursday Laura-Marie and I were guests at the annual banquet I do wish to sincerely thank the teachers for a most interesting evening

Poe Pourri

by Lorraine Poulsen

I am going to try once more

If the Department of Agriculture would see my house plants it would place a quarantine on all of Poe

My once happy, healthy Wandering Jew has lost its wandering spirit and has given way to life within the confines of the plastic flower pot.

The African Violet which was in full bloom when Bob brought it home from the city last is blooms two days after coming into my care and despite my efforts, has never since bloomed

The crawling vines don't crawl and the "what-ever-they-are" plants just stay the same size as they were the day I bought them

Perhaps I should talk to them all

I have tried everything else

I have given the very sickly looking ones aspirine dissolved in specially melted snow water, placed tablets of fertilizer in all the pots and made sure these plants needing sun get sun and those not needing it, don't

Still, they refuse to grow

I have spent many hours reading about plants and the care of the same. In fact, I feel rather wordly about my plant knowledge and only wish I could spry the book knowledge to making plants healthy

But spring is almost here and when I see all those lovely green plant displays appearing in stores, I just can't resist buying a few more baby plants and bringing them home

I have everything I need from new pasteurized all-purpose potting soil to miniature garden tools and I am going to try just once more

Maybe if I let the new healthy plants sit among the not-so-happy looking plants the desire to live and bloom will rub off

If that, along with the potting soil, the new decorative pots and the Plant Grow foods don't work I vow that I will be the first to alert the Department of Agriculture officials anti-smut campaign

VITAVAX is a systemic fungicide that cleans up diseases of wheat, barley, oats, flax and rye, and controls true loose smut in barley. It's available as a dril box formulation. Or, for wheat and barley, as a dual purpose treatment combatting wireworms as well as smut.

BRTA scores trophies

Proudly proving their slogan "Time 4 is alive," the Battle River Tourist Association received three awards at the Annual Meeting of the Travel Industry Association of Alberta held in Lethbridge on March 17, 18, 19 and 20.

For the third time, the BRTA was presented with the Brewster Gray Line Award for having the best performance of the fourteen tourist zones in Alberta. It had earlier received this recognition in 1974 and in 1976.

In making the presentation, Don MacIntyre, a representative of the Brewster Company, mentioned a number of the projects carried out by B.R.T.A. during the last year. These included the preparation of briefs to the travelling Cabinet Committee, the Battle River Regional Planning Commission, Travel Alberta individual Cabinet Ministers and local governments. The organization of an essay contest in the schools, the encouragement of a "clean - up campaign" throughout the zone and the involvement in the Heritage Day Celebration last summer were also mentioned. The support granted to the Killam Homecoming, the Annual Hospitality Seminar and the assembly of "an impressive library" of history books written about various parts of the zone also received praise; as did the program to assess the performance of the eleven information centres operated throughout the zone during the summer months.

The week-end "Cavalcade" carried out for the first time last spring was mentioned, and the increase in membership support from $10,700.00 to $15,500.00 was noted. During the year, three new pieces of promotional literature were produced - a zone map in July, a C.B. Guide in August and an attractive Winter Brochure in October.

The Zone was particularly delighted that their manager, Sylvia Clemens, was named "Manager of the Year." This is the first year that this particular award has been available, and the selection was made by the managers of the fourteen Alberta zones, "in recognition of her outstanding work in Zone five."

The third award, also presented for the first time, was in recognition of the best track record for "Inter - Zone Participation." This is in recognition of the zone which puts forth the greatest effort in visiting other zones, the advantage being the exchange of ideas. During the last year, 95 members of B.R.T.A. travelled 3,570 miles to attend seven meetings in other zones.

Nineteen people from Battle River Tourist Zone 5 attended the Lethbridge Convention. Those were Mr. and Mrs. John Cant, Bashaw; Mr. and Mrs. Les Duthus and Edna Palmer of Killam, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Rattan of Provost, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Brown of Leduc, Mr. and Mrs. Herb Tesone of Stettler, Mr. and Mrs. Bryce Woodrow of Castor, Mrs. Blanche Hagen, Forestburg, representing the County of Flagstaff, John Anson of Castor, representing the County of Paintearth, Georgean Taylor of Chauvin and Sylvia and Dick Clemens of Camrose.

During the Klondike Gold Rush, partners would often spend the winter whip-sawing lumber to build their boat for hauling supplies to the gold fields. The rigorous work often caused tempers to flare. Occasionally a partnership was dissolved by sawing a boat in two after a quarrel. It took about 880 feet of whip-sawed lumber to build a boat to haul one ton of freight.

Beef in the Crockpot

The crock-pot or slow cooker has gained tremendous popularity over the past couple of years.

This relatively inexpensive appliance has several advantages.

Because there is little evaporation, combined with low cooking temperatures, the flavour and nutritive value is retained in the food.

The crock-pot saves energy. You can cook all day for only a few pennies.

It can be left unattended for several hours, while you work or go shopping.

It does not heat your kitchen in the summertime.

It enables you to make inexpensive dishes such as stews and pot roasts with ease. The pot makes them deliciously tender and there is less shrinkage.

It is very helpful when entertaining, since it allows you to do the preparation early in the day. This reduces last-minute fussing to a minimum.

However, there is one caution! Because the crock-pot cooks at low temperatures, you should check to ensure that liquids reach at least 185 degrees F. (moderately the boiling point (212 degree F). This temperature range is necessary to destroy most bacteria. Since beef does not need to be cooked as thoroughly as chicken or pork, it lends itself well to slow cooking.

Many of your favourite beef recipes can be easily adapted for the slow cooker. Here are a few helpful hints:

1. Browning the beef first is not necessary, but it does tend to improve the flavour and allows you to drain off any excess fat.

2. Because there is little evaporation, less liquid is necessary. For most recipes, use approximately ½ the normal amount of liquid.

3. Some vegetables require as much cooking time as the beef so arrange large chunks of celery or carrot on the bottom and cover them with the liquid.

4. To thicken the gravy or sauce, stir in cornstarch or dissolved flour after the meat is done. Cook on high for 5-10 minutes.

5. To decide if beef is done, cook the minimum length of time and then remove one piece. Test to see if meat is fork-tender.

6. Don't worry about overcooking. The food will not burn or taste over-cooked.

The Home Economists at the Beef Information Centre receive hundreds of requests for slow cooker recipes. Here are some of our favourites:

STAYABED STEW

2 lb. Stewing Beef, round steak, brisket or cooked ground beef
1 cup sliced carrots
3 onions (sliced)
3 large potatoes (in small chunks)
1 small can tomato soup, Diluted with ½ cup water
salt and pepper

Mix above ingredients together. Cover and cook at low setting for 6-8 hours. Tomato soup can be replaced by celery or mushroom soup. Celery, frozen green peas or any vegetable you have around can be added. For variation, try chili powder, bay leaves, oregano, rosemary leaves or garlic salt.

WESTERN STEAK

2 lbs. blade, chuck, round or flank steak cut as thin as possible. Sprinkle with flour, salt and pepper and pound into meat. Brown meat in fry pan with ¼ cup oil. Transfer to crock-pot.

Sauce
½ cup catsup
2 tbsp. brown sugar
2 tsp. dry mustard
1 tsp. chili powder
½ cup water
1 tbsp. horseradish
½ cup chopped onion
2 tbsp. chopped green pepper
2 tbsp. vinegar

Heat sauce and pour over meat. Cook on high for 3-4 hours or low for 6-7 hours.

BUDGETER'S BEEF STROGANOFF

One-third cup flour
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. pepper
½ tsp. garlic salt
2 lbs. chuck, rib, sirloin or short-rib cut into 1½ inch cubes or stewing beef
¼ cup oil
1 medium onion chopped
½ cup water
1 bay leaf
½ tsp. thyme
½ cup sliced mushrooms
½ cup dairy sour cream
1 tbsp. horseradish
¼ cup sauterne or other white wine (optional)

Dredge cubes of beef in flour which has been seasoned with salt and pepper and garlic salt. Heat the oil in a heavy fry pan. Add floured meat and brown quickly on all sides. Add onion, water, bay leaf and thyme Cover and cook on low setting for 8-9 hours. Five minutes before serving, add mushrooms, sour cream, horseradish and wine. Just bring to a boil.

Serve with green rice - cook long grain rice by normal method, just before serving, stir in approximately 1 cup finely chopped parsley. Arrange rice in a ring around the outside of the platter. Fill the centre with the stroganoff.

SPICEY POT ROAST

3 lbs. blade, chuck or small shoulder roast
2 tbsp. shortening
½ tsp. thyme
2 tbsp. sugar
1 tbsp. vinegar
1 minced clove garlic or ½ tsp. garlic salt
2 cups tomato juice
1 cup chopped onion
1 bay leaf
½ tsp. salt
½ pepper

Brown meat on all sides in shortening. Transfer to crock-pot. Combine next 7 ingredients and pour over meat. Cover and cook on high approximately 6 hours. Strain gravy and thicken with flour if desired. Serve with mashed potatoes and buttered carrots (or baked potatoes and French green beans).

The Slow Cooker is an excellent way to cook meat stock

BASIC BEEF STOCK

3-5 lbs. beef bones with meat
3 cups water or vegetable water (saved from cooking)
1 onion sliced
2 carrots in large chunks
1 cup celery chopped (include leaves)
1½ - 2 cups canned tomatoes
1½ cups turnip - cut in wedges (optional)
2 peppercorns
½ whole clove
1 clove garlic minced or ½ tsp. garlic salt
1 bay leaf
1 tsp. thyme
1 tsp. dried parsley
1½ tsp. salt (adjust if necessary)

Brown meat and bones in 375 degree oven. Place in crock-pot and add water and remaining ingredients. Cover and cook about 8-10 hours until meat is very tender. Check and adjust seasonings. The meat may be removed from the bones, to be added to the soup later. Pour the mixture through a sieve and strain. Refrigerate and when it is cold remove the fat from the surface and discard. To make soup, add fresh vegetables or mixed vegetables and cook until vegetables are tender.

A BRIGHT NEW CROP

The naked oat variety, Terra, was licensed early this year. According to Dr. Ron McKenzie, a cereal breeder at Agriculture Canada's Winnipeg, Man., Research Station, the variety has great potential in the Prairie Provinces.

Dr. McKenzie says Terra is high yielding, high in well-balanced protein, has low levels caudmi, early maturity, strong straw and large harvests, but it is susceptible to rust. He says the last step before farmers can switch to Terra will be the establishment of grain grades for naked oats that recognize the variety's food and feed value.

Parents & babysitters

Last year, according to the Dominion Fire Commissioner, 823 people died in 30,786 residential fires in Canada.

Most fire deaths are usually caused by asphyxiation and not by burns. For this reason, seconds can mean the difference between life and death when a fire starts.

Parents and babysitters should take the following precautions when it comes to caring for children.

— If you have smoke detectors in your house, test them according to the manufacturer's instructions to make sure they are operating properly.

— Never leave children and babysitter are familiar with the sound of the smoke detector alarm and know what to do if it goes off.

— Make sure your babysitter is familiar with all exits from the house.

— Always have a list of emergency telephone numbers for your babysitter while you are away

Report from Parliament Hill

DON MAZANKOWSKI, MP

Agriculture and transportation have been two of the most active areas in Parliament in recent weeks. On February 28th, Agriculture Minister Whelan announced the final details of the 1976 support program for slaughter of cattle.

The support level for the entire 1976 calendar year has been set at $48.16 per hundredweight, liveweight. Payments will be made on a quarterly basis. Steers and heifers, A, B and C grade, sold for slaughter from January 1 to March 31 will be supported at $2.34 per hundredweight. From April 1 to June 30 there will be no payment, as the weighted average market price exceeded the support level. From July 1 to September 30, the payment will be $3.00 per hundredweight and from October 1 to December 31 it will be $2.98 per hundredweight. Individual producers will be able to apply for the deficiency payment on up to 200 head of cattle in total sold during the three eligible quarters of 1976. Producers will be allowed to claim their third and fourth quarter sales first, and - as their heaviest animals. Additional payments may be made in the case of partnerships where each partner is supporting a family unit and derives his or her principal income from farming.

The Minister of Agriculture made another announcement which will be of interest to farmers. On March 4 he stated that all pesticides sold, distributed and used in Canada must now be registered under the Pest Control Products Act. This means that producers will no longer be able to import pesticides from the U.S for their own use. Those farmers who already ordered U.S. pesticides before the change in rules will be threatened by a substantial economic loss. Progressive Conservative M.P.'s have pressed the Minister to allow those farmers to take delivery this year. As of March 9, the Minister had made no decision on the request.

Speculation has been growing about a possible agreement between Canada and the U.S. on export prices for wheat. The Minister responsible for the Canadian Wheat Board, Otis Lang, has said that there was renewed hope of an agreement being reached. However, on March 8th the U.S. has no plans to join with other nations in an attempt to fix world wheat prices. It would appear that some confusion surrounds the negotiations ostensibly taking place.

Mr Lang was in the news again recently in his capacity as Minister of Transport. He announced that St Lawrence Seaway tolls will be doubled. Estimates are that western farmers will be paying another three cents a bushel for the handling of grain from Thunder Bay to world markets. Not only will this impose a costly burden on farmers, it could also affect Canadian grain sales abroad, due to the increased prices.

Debate has begun on the Bill which would make many amendments to the National Transportation Act. The amendments will give Otis Lang, as Minister of Transport, sweeping individual powers over the transportation system in Canada. The amendments include the elimination of long-haul and short-haul differentials, regulations of prices where no competition exists and the establishment of a formula for the subsidization of maximum and maximum freight rates.

The Bill represents an attempt to correct the "mess" in the Canadian transportation system which the former Minister of Transport described. However, putting the massive power of arbitrary decision-making into the hands of the very bureaucracy which caused the mess to begin with, does not inspire much confidence. To make matters worse, the man now in total command, Otis Lang, is the same man who has given us Mirabel, huge bills for his Jet-Star and his nanny's international flights, and no improvement in the transportation field at all during his years as Minister

The eastern part of the N.W.T is almost devoid of forests but in the Mackenzie district there are areas of forest with species of trees varying from conifers and birch to poplar and spruce.

Tan your own sheep skin

"You can get a white, pliable sheep skin with home tanning, but it takes work" says Kelly Handy, who spent last summer researching tanning methods for Alberta Agriculture

Skinning

Skinning should be done as soon as the animal has been slaughtered and it should be done in such a way that the skin is as free as possible of flesh and fat, but not cut or otherwise damaged. Use a short, sharp knife to make the initial incision in the skin and then use a closed fist as much as possible to punch the skin off the carcass

After the skin has been cooled slowly and evenly, lay it out flat and pour fine salt on to the centre. Then rub in well, work the salt out towards the edges of the skin. Fold the skin in half and roll it up, leaving it like this for 36 hours

Fleshing

It is a good idea to leave the salt on the skin while fleshing, although it will seem shortening your knife more often. Fleshing entails removing all traces of flesh, blood, fat and membrane from the skin. It is much easier to flesh a skin if you put it on a curved surface such as a large log which is lying on its side

Proper fleshing tools are available from taxidermy supply houses, but a butcher knife works reasonably well, providing you are careful not to score the hide with the point. The fleshing operation has to be repeated several times and the skin should be well salted, folded and rolled up between each operation A hacksaw works very well for breaking up and removing any remaining membrane during the last stage of fleshing When fleshing has been completed, rinsit the skin, lay it out flat in a cool, dry place and allow it to dry for three days

Bleaching

Soak the skin for two hours in soft water (always use soft water when possible in the tanning process) If you leave the skin soaking for longer than two hours the wool will detach itself from the skin Next, spray the wool with a high pressure spray to remove the dirt, and wash it in eight to 10 gallons of water to which has been added one tablespoonful of borax per gallon of water and a small amount of mild soap. Then rinse the skin several times until the water is clear Spin-dry the skin or hang it in the shade (never expose a skin to direct sunlight) until most of the water has dropped off it If you run a stick over the wool side of the skin, you will speed up removal of the water. Then, blot the wool dry.

Tanning

Stretch the skin on a wooden frame Next 1¼ gallons of water, add 1½ pounds of alum (potassium aluminum sulphate) and 1½ pounds of pickling salt and stir well When the solution clears, pour about a pint into a covered container Then add enough whole wheat flour to the remaining solution to make a medium thick paste (not runny or doughy) and spread it one-eighth inch to one quarter inch thick on the stretched skin Now cover the skin completely with any type of cloth that will allow it to breath Leave it for four to seven days, keeping the paste moist by sprinkling it with some of the solution that was put aside in the covered container

After three or four days, scrape off the paste and apply another coat, leaving it for another three or four days Repeat this process until all the paste has been used up When you apply the last coat, leave the skin uncovered and leave it to dry Then remove as much of the paste as possible and rinse the skin in a solution of baking soda and water (four ounces to 10 gallons). Now repeat the excess moisture from the skin as you did after washing it

While still damp, stretch the skin on a sheet of plywood and coat half a bar of Sunlight soap in a double boiler (the addition of a little water helps) Then rub the melted soap well into the skin, and allow it to be absorbed by the skin for several hours Next, heat a small quantity of Softol oil and spread it thinly and evenly over the skin. Rub it in well with your fingers.

The skin is ready to be staked when it turns white when stretched (at this stage it is still damp but not wet) Staking entails pulling the skin (skin side down) back and forth over an upright stake which has been slightly rounded on top and tapered to a width of an inch thick Any stretching, pulling and twisting at this stage will help to soften the skin.

If the oil that was worked in to the skin during the finishing process has slightly darkened the skin, or if the skin is still somewhat stiff, lay it out flat and apply a solution of warm water and a little borax to the flesh side with a nail brush Scrub the solution in well, stretch the skin so the plywood and re-stake it when the skin turns white when stretched.

When the skin is dry, sand it with course sandpaper Sanding softens and whitens the skin Then comb out the wool with a wire dog brush or a large toothed-comb and your sheep skin is ready for use

Alberta Agriculture's sheep branch has a collection of tanning techniques, submitted by people who have used them but none of the techniques have been officially tested yet However Alberta Agriculture is planning to publish a book later this year on handcrafts related to the sheep industry

Former Tofielder passes in B.C.

Professor Lorne M Kendall of Coquitlam, B C, founding head of the Department of Psychology at Simon Fraser University, has died suddenly at the age of 61

Professor Kendall, who has suffered from heart trouble for a number of years, collapsed on Sunday, March 6th, while curling with his wife, Mary

His death comes as a great shock to his friends and colleagues As first head of Psychology, Professor Kendall worked diligently to recruit faculty and chart the early course of his department.

Lorne Kendall, born in Tofield, graduated with honors in psychology from the University of Alberta in 1956. He attended Cornell University where he received his M.A. in 1961 and Ph D in 1962 He spent three years in the Canadian Army, including a period as research psychologist in the Personnel Selection Service in Ottawa, before joining Simon Fraser in 1965. He was head of the Educational Testing Service at Princeton N.J Professor Kendall believed that the role of the volunteer and much of his spare time was devoted to community work.

He was a member of the advisory committee of SFAR (Social Policy and Research)

Professor Kendall lived at 949 Perth Ave., Coquitlam, B.C He is survived by his wife, Mary, sons, Robert and David, mother, Edna, a brother, Floyd, and sister, Mrs Yvonne Miller A memorial service was held in New Westminster on March 11th

A memorial fund in Lorne's name has been established

Contributions should be addressed to the Simon Fraser Lorne Kendall Memorial Fund, and sent to Dr A.R. Blackman, Psychology Dept., Simon Fraser University, Burnaby, B C

It is expected that the fund will be used to provide an annual prize to a student whose work best exemplifies Lorne's approach to scholarship Contributions will be income tax deductible with receipts for that purpose issued to all contributors

The Macrame workshop supervised by Lynn Gates at the hall on Saturday was attended by thirteen participants, who learned about texture, colour, knots and the coordination of the basic knots in constructing a design.

Further workshops will be held at the hall, the first being an Primitive Weaving, on Saturday April 2nd from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m The instructor will be Doreen Strang, and interested people should phone Bob Frederickson at 662-2181 to register, because there will be a maximum of fifteen in the class The fee is only $3. and you are asked to bring a lunch.

The next workshop will be on cake decorating, on Saturday, April 16 at the same times and for the same fee. Barbara Charnick will be the instructor, and enquiries should be made either to her at 662-2742 or to Bob as above. Participants should bring with them a cake or a simulated cake, with the intention of adorning it.

The Ladies Club met on Thursday, and cards of sympathy were sent to Lynn and Howard Gates, following the death or Howard's father in Calgary, and to Ethel, Ray and Kathryn Paterson on the death of Ray's brother, Floyd. Floyd, the youngest son of Ethel Peterson, passed away on March 8th in Kamloops, B.C at the age of 58, after a long illness. He was born and raised in Hastings Lake and attended school at Hastings Lake and Minnesik.

He is survived by his wife, Maureen, and family, his mother, four sisters and two brothers.

Coming events at the hall are the wrist drive on Friday evening, the Pony Club meeting on Tuesday, April 8th, at which three films on riding and horse management will be shown, and the German supper on April 20 This will be at 6:00 p.m., and will be followed by bingo. Barbara Charnick is looking after the culinary arrangements

On Monday, when the thermometer signalled -10 degree C, the first crow of the year signalled spring from the trees beside our house.

Lena Reid

The Tofield Ryley Stage Band were hosts to Sunland on Monday where they played at a concert in the school gym under the direction of Everitt Norris. Rosalind High School and Junior High school choir sang a number of songs which was enjoyed by the nice crowd that turned out for the event.

Bob Elson and Tamara were visitors at home on Sunday.

Donald Law and Jergen Davick are patients in the Tofield Hospital.

The Ryley Bethel Lutheran Church women's annual craft fair day had a large turnout. Everyone enjoyed waffles, sausage, pie, etc. Many lovely sewing articles and a delicious looking bake sale went fast.

The Auxiliary Ladies of the Royal Canadian Legion are busy with the history of the Ryley area and are compiling it for publication.

In an exhibition hockey game held in Tofield, Ryley beat Vermilion 10 to 2.

On Tuesday, Ryley and Lamont will start their games to see who will come out the winners in hockey.

A good crowd turned out for the carnival held in Tofield on Sunday. The children enjoyed taking part in skating skills acquired over the past few months.

Mr. and Mrs. Antoni Podruzny are enjoying a visit from their daughter, Francis of Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Gara and Mrs. Agnes Lundin of Ryley motored to Viking on Sunday to visit Elmer Lundin who has been a patient in hospital for a couple of weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. John Reid of Tofield visited relatives in Ryley.

ANNOUNCEMENT

We, the members of the Mennonite Brethren Church of Tofield, would hereby convey an important announcement to the people of our community.

For some forty years we have served people, mainly of the Mennonite culture and ethnic background. To more effectively meet our responsibility of ministering to the spiritual needs of persons residing in our immediate community we have taken the following practical steps:

1. In keeping with our new policy we have changed our name and will henceforth be known as
"THE TOFIELD GOSPEL CHURCH"
2. Our services are now designed to accommodate all people seeking friendship, fellowship and a Church home.
3. We are endeavoring to cultivate and increase a spirit of love, understanding and acceptance to everyone.

In view of the above changes, we are happy to extend a warm christian invitation to our varied services and functions.

In a day when packaging is supreme, God put together a package of pure dynamite when He mixed the elements that make up Maxine Hancock. By the time she wrote the best selling Moody Press book, LOVE, HONOR & BE FREE she had taught school, written award-winning radio programs, been her husband's publicist in a political campaign, and spoken to many women's and mother daughter banquets, while mothering four children. When her idol book appeared she had already been selected by the WESTERN PRODUCER as one of western Canada's leading women.

Now Maxine has put together her down-to-earth insights on how to cut costs and make a reduced budget work for you. She shares from practical experiences with her usual sense of humor and inspirational style. A book guaranteed to make inflation seem less formidable!

Report from your M.L.A.

by John S. Bullah

March 16, 1977
Report From Your M.L.A.
John S. Bullah

On Friday, March 11th the Minister of Education introduced to the legislature three grade nine students, one from northern Alberta, one from central Alberta and one from southern Alberta. The students were award winners of an essay in a province-wide competition. The topic for the essay was "Can I Really Be What I Want To Be."

The debate on the throne speech was concluded and a vote was taken and accepted.

In the afternoon I joined four other MLAs who represent part of Zone 3 of the Alberta School Trustees Association and drove to Leduc to meet with the School Trustees representing the Zone, to listen to their concerns and recommendations as an legislature, we could try to convince the government to favour their requests. As usual I always left Edmonton, except the trustees invitation to attend their meetings. The meeting of Friday proved very informative and fruitful much like all their meetings do.

On Friday evening the Provincial Treasurer, the Hon. Mary Leitch, brought down the budget for the fiscal year. Many areas of this budget are very favourable to the people of this province and I will try to outline some of these items.

(1) Since our government agreed to participate in the Anti-Inflation Program and our grants to school boards, municipal councils, hospital boards, etc. have been increased by 10 percent yet our own spending is restrained to only 8 percent.

(2) A very nominal increase in civil service and this is necessary because of government's decentralization programs which forces us to have a larger civil service.

(3) A 50 percent increase in the Natural Gas Protection Plan to shelter homeowners from rising natural gas prices. As I have often said, I indicated that I had received several letters from constituents and Gas Co-ops urging me to oppose an increase in gas pricing. I indicated in responding, that I could not oppose a price increase because I felt that due to exporting nearly 50 percent of our gas, it would be a big loss to Alberta. I also indicated that I would urge the government to further rebate our Alberta consumers or provide a benefit in some other way. With the announcement of increasing the rebate by 50 percent from $70 million to $105 million will mean that Albertans will pay only a few million dollars more for all gas over $105 million. These increases in income are a must if more funds or grants for the various jurisdictions are increased by $300 million this year.

(4) Increased funding for housing in Alberta, particularly for senior citizens. With approval of all applications for senior citizen lodges last year, and probably again this year, will provide accommodation for many more senior citizens.

The Senior Citizens Home Improvement Program will again provide assistance to senior citizens to improve their homes.

(5) There will be increased assistance to Municipalities with special provision for those municipalities experiencing unexpected or unforeseen rapid growth.

(6) The grants to libraries will be more than tripled this year. Over the past while I had several requests from Library Boards. I am glad that support for libraries has been forthcoming.

(7) Being one of three MLAs on a caucus committee to review the problems and financial difficulties of Rural Electrification Associations, particularly those needing to replace lines. After many meetings with various groups our Committee recommended to our government to provide financial assistance to those R.E.As needing help for line replacements. It was gratifying to see $1 million budgeted for this purpose.

(8) New and expanded programs in the field of education with particular emphasis on smaller schools.

(9) A very important part of the budget is that there will be no increase in taxes for Albertans.

The Provincial Treasurer made a ministerial report to the Legislature on an interprovincial gasoline price survey. The lowest price in Canada for regular gas at the pumps is in Alberta. The average price is 74.9 cents per gallon in Calgary, Vancouver 79.5 cents, Saskatoon 80.5 cents, Winnipeg 82.3 cents, Toronto 82.7 cents, Ottawa 83.4 cents, Montreal 83.7 cents, St. John, N.B. 85.7 cents, Halifax 91.1 cents and St. John's, Newfoundland 97.8 cents.

The debate on the Budget carries on and very noteworthy were statements made by the Leader of the Opposition to the effect that it is very easy to produce a good budget by a government with $3 billion. I am sure the opportunities were open for the previous administration during their 36 years in office.

The approval was announced by the Minister of Recreation, Parks and Wildlife that applications for financial assistance under the Major Cultural-Recreation Facility to the Beaver Heritage Agricultural Society in Ryley for $80,000 and $30,500 to the Holden and District Agricultural Society.

It was a pleasure to introduce to the Legislature nine grade twelve students from Holden school accompanied by their principal Mr Slaykora and bus operator Mr Grinde. Have a nice day.

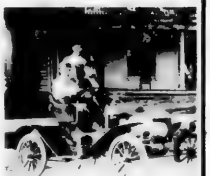
The History of the Ryley Area



The material for our history of the Ryley area is now on hand and we are compiling it for publication. Our first material has gone to press. Your co-operation has been outstanding, and we have been amazed at the extent and variety of the material received.

The book will be 8½ by 11 inches in size and will have approximately 350 pages. It will include stories of events from the earliest days of the area, accounts of life as it was lived in the early days in the village and in rural areas, and histories of pioneer families, all highlighted by accompanying pictures.

Due to the large amount of money required to publish the book, we are anticipating your co-operation in prepaying a portion of the cost of the book. This will also ensure that you receive the copies you require, as there will be a limited number of copies published. You will receive notice of the publishing date and the final payment (due when this information becomes available). Please use the form below when ordering your copy.

Test hovercraft as ferries in Alberta

Alberta Transportation has begun development work, through a Calgary company, on a new all-weather method of river crossing using air cushion vehicles, Dr Hugh M Horner, deputy premier and minister of transportation, said today

Cable-propelled hovercraft as well permit the crossing of major rivers at less than 10 per cent of the cost of conventional bridges Such an installation could be completed within six months, compared with the three or four years now required to design and build a major bridge

The department has engaged Hovercraft Systems Ltd. of Calgary to provide the engineering design to build the 35 to 50-ton-capacity ferry. the first of its type developed in Canada for full-time service

It will replace an existing ferry at the La Crete crossing on the Peace River and allow traffic to cross the river in most all conditions The new service will permit crossings on a year-round basis.

The latter, all-weather type of crossing will eliminate the need for traffic to travel an additional 100 miles on the only alternate route via the Ft. Vermilion bridge.

Dr. Horner said the cost estimate for the hoverferry development by Hovercraft Systems, including two years of testing at La Crete, is about $600,000. Negotiations are underway for the National Research Council to participate with Alberta Transportation in the project, sharing costs on a 50 - 50 basis.

"We have three main objectives in this program," Dr. Horner said "First, we want to prove out under sustained service conditions the hoverferry concept of all-weather river crossings for public traffic, when bridges are too costly to justify La Crete will provide pertinent operating conditions

"Additionally, we want to see how air cushion vehicles can be used for immediate access to natural resources, where development would be otherwise delayed.

"Thirdly, we want to develop Canadian expertise and capability in the design, construction, and operation of air cushion vehicles, which will benefit governments and industry in Canada."

The installation of the 35 to 50-ton-capacity HL-104 air cushion ferry is planned for next summer

Enterprisers abuse customers

Canadian grain producers must have a sigh of relief and no thankful that several injustices were put in place many years ago in this country to protect our overseas grain customers. An article in the British publication, the Economist of January 22, p.77, entitled "The Grain Drain" summarized the abuses which grew in the United States export grain business, where inspections and standards have been entrusted to the industry through the years. The article states that the government of India has saved five grain companies for a total of $345 million.

Conservation book popular

Not many books published in Canada are "sold out" within three months and go immediately into a second printing. Nevertheless, this has been the success story of the pocketbook 500 Ways To Save Energy & Money in the Home, written, published and distributed free of charge by the Department of Energy, Mines and Resources. So great was the demand from individuals, corporations and libraries that the entire first edition of 250,000 English copies has been sent out, along with over 70,000 copies of the French version. Several large companies requested bulk shipments to distribute to employees or customers, these include Shell, Westinghouse, Northern Electric, and B.C. Hydro which plans to make "500 Ways . . . " available at its display at the Pacific National Exhibition.

Some employees of Cook Industries at New Orleans were instructed to ship West European customers one-eighth of one percent less grain than they had paid for. Middle East customers like India and Pakistan were to get one and one-half percent less than they had paid for. This cheating system worked so well, said the Economist, that the grain elevator operators were instructed to increase the shortweighing of grain loaned for India, Pakistan and the Middle East to 3 percent. The reasoning concerned the stability of ports such as Bombay, Calcutta and Madras to accurately weigh incoming shipments. According to the article, such shortweighing cheated customers for American grain out of about $800 million in the past five years.

This, however, was not the only malpractice Cookmen's with the connivance of grain inspectors, were shipped substandard or contaminated grain. In 1974 the British government's infestation control laboratories reported that 13 of 30 maize shipments from America were full of insects. Honduras said that grain sent to victims of Hurricane Fifi under the American Food for Peace program was so bad that it had to be dumped into the sea.

A large scale investigation is presently taking place in the United States. So far there have been 80 individual indictments and 41 convictions, said the Economist. A compassion article describes how grain inspectors at New Orleans who would not be bribed were obliged to conform. It mentions thefts, damage to inspectors' automobiles and other harassment. Inspectors were tricked by barges being diverted, scales fixed and grain sampling machines being tampered with.

Companies being sued by the government of India include Continental Illinois, Cook Industries, Louis Dreyfus, Peavey Company and Cargill Incorporated. They are charged with embezzling, stealing, taking away and concealing by fraud with intent to convert for their own use, grain bought by India.

Holden and district news

Mrs G H Taylor

The Holden and District 4-H club are sponsoring a pancake supper on Friday from 5.30 to 7.30 p.m. in the Holden Complex.

Holden Ladies Social Credit Auxiliary held their regular meeting on March 15th at the home of Miss June Clark with president, Mrs Mary Hardy presiding. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved, regular business and correspondence was dealt with. At the conclusion of the meeting, the hostess served lunch and a social hour was enjoyed.

Mr and Mrs Henry Keller are on a holiday trip to Hawaii and Grandma has been looking after the children while they are away.

The Friendship Group met on March 17th at the home of Mrs Edith Carlson. Mrs Kate Nichols was in charge of devotions. The minutes of the previous meeting held at the home of Mrs G H Taylor were read and approved. The ladies had also met at the home of Mrs Beth Campbell to trim used postage stamps. A parcel of almost 4 lbs had been sent last week to the Bible house and a vote of thanks was given to all who had donated stamps and those who had trimmed a good sized bushel brought in later by a lady from the Bruce district.

The meeting closed with a hymn and the Benediction by Mrs Campbell. The hostess then served lunch. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs Kate Nichols.

Mr and Mrs Ed Knudsen and family of the Ryley district were Wednesday guests with Mr and Mrs Roy Nichols to congratulate Roy on his birthday, bringing along a lovely birthday cake for the occasion.

Ladies of St Gregory's R.C.W.L. called on Mr and Mrs Roy Nichols on Mar. 15th to congratulate and help Mr. Nichols celebrate his birthday. The ladies took along a birthday cake.

George Grebeinaus is a patient in Vegreville Hospital suffering with an attack of pneumonia. He had had the flu severely before this.

The Holden Curling Club is holding an open mixed bonspiel on Mar. 29th., to April 3rd. Entries can be phoned to 688-3427.

The Holden Ladies' Legion Auxiliary are holding a bake sale on Saturday morning in the Holden Prairie Food Centre.

On March 15th, several ladies of Holden Lodge, Order of the Royal Purple visited at Irma, attending the regular meeting of Irma Lodge, taking along the Travelling Gavel which was presented with a very brief visit.

On March 17th, George Robert Massey of Edmonton, formerly of Viking, a brother of Mrs Vernon (Myrna) Koppel of Bruce, passed away at the age of 31 years. He is survived by his parents, Mr and Mrs Fred Massey of Edmonton, four sisters, Mrs (Myrna) Vernon Koppel of Bruce, Delores Massey and Mrs Corrine Koppel of Edmonton, and Mrs (Faye) Max Serafin of Calgary. Funeral service was held on Tuesday at Park Memorial Chapel in Edmonton with Rev. K. Harrison officiating and interment was in Westlawn Memorial Park.

A cash bingo is being held in the St Gregory's Church hall on Friday at 8:00 p.m., sponsored by the Parish council. Tickets may be obtained from members of the parish.

Mrs Jon Lenk is back home after spending a few days last week as a patient in Viking Hospital with a very bad attack of the flu.

Mr and Mrs Marshall Slywka and girls of Sherwood Park visited with his mother, Mrs Mary Slywka, during the weekend.

Mr and Mrs Alan Tiedemann and little girl of Edmonton were visiting with Alan's parents, Mr and Mrs Henry Tiedemann, during the weekend.

Mrs Nick Komarnisky, who has been a patient in Tofield Hospital for some time, had surgery last Thursday morning for gallstones.

Mr and Mrs Roy Nichols drove Mrs Sena Fjellstrom to Tofield Hospital last Thursday morning to have treatment on one of her legs which was giving her a great deal of pain.

Miss Lucille Pakrahs became ill Sunday morning and was taken to Tofield Hospital.

A long time resident of the Holden district and of Holden, Steven Deputan passed away in Tofield Hospital after a short illness on Friday, at the age of 78 years. He is survived by two sons, Ernie of Edmonton and Nestor of Chilliwack, B.C.; one daughter, Mrs Gene (Ollie) Bilyk of Westlock, eight grandchildren, three brothers, and five sisters, Bill, John, Henry and Mrs (Cathy) Fred Smolensk of Calgary, Mrs Ella Ed Coleman of Mesa, Arizona, Mrs Clara Wilson of Dawson Creek, B.C., Mrs Mary Pleshka of Edmonton, Mrs (Anne) Joe Berezanski of Morinville. He was predeceased by his wife Clara on June 14, 1976. Prayer service was held Sunday at Park Memorial Chapel in Vegreville. Requiem Mass was held Monday at St. John the Baptist Ukrainian Catholic Church Borschuv with Rev. Anthony Holowaychuk officiating. Interment was in the church cemetery. The late Mr. and Mrs. Deputan farmed for many years in the Holden district until returning from farming and then resided in Holden.

Buck seeks elimination of gas and fuel oil tax

Dr Walter Buck, Social Credit M.L.A for Clover Bar, has called on the government to eliminate the provincial tax on gasoline and fuel oil if passed by the Legislature, Dr Buck's resolution would urge the government to get rid of the current levies of ten cents per gallon on gasoline and twelve cents per gallon on diesel fuel

I would simply like to know how the government justifies this tax" said Dr Buck "It is a little difficult to believe that they desperately need the revenue, and I always thought the purpose of taxation was to raise money needed for financing the government"

"According to our calculations, after the impending oil price hike, and after the government borrows a few figures, the province should end up with a 300 or 350 million dollar surplus for this year alone, and that's after putting 75 million dollars into the Heritage Fund With a budgetary situation like that, how can it be argued that the 91 million dollars received from gas and fuel oil tax is essential"?

Dr Buck also pointed out that "like all sales taxes, the tax is regressive, meaning that it hits working people and the poor much harder than it hits the wealthy. The government is already receiving huge amounts of money from oil and gas royalties, which are one form of taxation Why should they get even more on the retail end, and thereby unnecessarily tax those who can afford it least"?

"As far as this business about having the lowest gasoline prices in Canada is concerned, a measly four or five cents a gallon less than B C and Saskatchewan, all I can say is big deal" Prices in the states of Montana and Washington are six to eight cents a gallon less than they are in Alberta I mean, are we supposed to congratulate the government because the province that produces 85 per cent of Canada's oil and gas has prices slightly lower than those in our neighbouring provinces, but substantially more than those in neighbouring states"

Furthermore, we have just checked various places around the province, and in many smaller centres and rural areas people are paying more from 98 cents to $1 a gallon, much higher than the so-called price announced by the Provincial Treasurer I would see if a true average was found, using both rural and urban centres, prices in Alberta would be at least as high in a number of other provinces", Dr Buck said

In addition, removal of this tax would help ease inflationary pressures in Calgary and Edmonton, where the rates of inflation are the highest in Canada. Skyrocketing energy costs are a major fact in this inflationary cycle At the same time other sectors of the economy, especially the tourist industry, would greatly benefit"

Falkenberg to speak to Beaver Unifarm

March and April are expected to be busy months for Unifarm's executive members who will be attending District Forums at points across the province in the organizations 18 districts

Howard Falkenberg, vice president will be in attendance at the Beaver District Forum to be held at the Holden Agricultural Complex on Wednesday starting at 10 00 a m

Intent of the forum, is to provide a broader view of Unifarm's role in Alberta agriculture through a two-way communication exchange between rural residents and senior officials of the organization

This will give Mr Falkenberg an opportunity to report first-hand to producers in the district on activities at the provincial and national levels, particularly on progress made toward implementation of policies set by members of the organization and provide the opportunity for producers to pose questions or take part in discussions with him

Local delegates or representatives of commodity groups and co-operatives will be in attendance and will help participate in the discussions

The forum should give the producers an opportunity at making their views known directly to a senior official of the organization

A summation of all the District Forums is expected to provide a good insight into how producers feel about their organization and provide a working basis for guiding it in directions that will provide the most effective united voice for agriculture in this province

Heibergs competing

The Heibergs from Tofield RR1 are making their presence felt at the Canadian Western Stock Show which is underway in Edmonton.

Gordon Heiberg won the Junior Exhibitor cup championship which was open to boys in the 10-14 years of age category.

Gordon's sister, Grace, was the runner-up in the Miss Canada Western 1977 competition.

Miss Heiberg came in second behind Vicky Halsteed of Carbon. Judges for this competition were Allan Zwarenicke of Holden and Marianne Cole of Wetaskiwin.

Cattlemen buy and sell

Tofield cattlemen were active during the Horned Hereford sale at the Canadian Western Stock Show in Edmonton last Wednesday.

Paul Kallal purchased the Grand Champion Bull from Pleasant Valley Colony of Clive at a price of $8,250. Mr. Kallal did some selling as his Banana Grand Champion Female was sold to [illegible] Simmons of Stony Plain for $1,325.

Bill Bilan Jr bought the Reserve Grand Champion Bull from August Cappello of Gunn for $4,500.

Two hundred and eighteen animals were sold during the eleven-hour sale, bringing in a total of $240,340

ATA Local has meeting

by Grace Phillips

A short meeting of the Tofield sub-local of the Alberta Teachers Association was chaired by president Bob Simmons on Wednesday.

Mr. Clements asked that the evaluation sheets for convention sessions be turned in and reminded members that elections in the sub-local and the Beaver Local would be held before the end of the June term.

He advised everyone to be mentally considering possible nominees for the offices which will be vacated.

Garden Club provides seed

by Doris Brown

The Tofield Garden Club will supply all Juniors who wish to take in the Horticultural classes of the Tofield Fair with free seeds and bulbs.

Junior Horticulture Classes are as follows: 1. Beets, 2. Carrots, 3. Turnips, 4 Peas, 5 gladiolus, 6 Calendula

All Juniors (12 years and under) who plan to complete should contact the Garden Club secretary, Thesme Jones, at 662-2182 and request seeds or bulbs by April 23rd.

It will be one of the rules that Juniors competing must have obtained their seeds through the Garden Club, as any Juniors planning to name order your seeds and bulbs now.

Lost books sought by Tofield School

by Grace Phillips

The staff of the Tofield School and especially Mrs. Louise Blakley, library clerk, is requesting the help of parents in locating many books missing from the school library.

Of particular concern are the missing encyclopedias because a broken set is practically useless. Books, especially encyclopedias, form a very large part of the school budget as their cost has risen sharply. Encyclopedias are essential to the teaching of many subjects such as social studies and science.

The missing volumes have been on loan to students who have omitted signing them out. Since these valuable books could be in the students' homes, or even in public buildings where students congregate, the co-operation of the public as well as of the parents is asked in locating these books and ensuring their safe return to the Tofield School.

Following is a list of the missing volumes:

Encyclopedias Missing - March 23, 1977

Americana - Volumes 6, 8, 11, 16, 18

World Book Volumes 1, 3, 6, 13, 16, 19

Compton's Volumes 1, 12, 15

Britannica Volumes 2, 16

Book of Knowledge - Volumes 2, 7, 12

Howell - volumes 8

World War II - Volumes 1, 3, 16, 17.

International Wildlife - Volumes 4, 6, 12

National Geographic - Volumes 119, 134, 136, 138.

Wonderful World of Disney - Volumes 13, 14, 16

World of Man - Volume 14.

In addition to the encyclopedias, many library books are missing from the shelves.

Since, if these books are in homes, they cannot be read by the students, Mrs. Blakley is asking that parents check the "due date" on library books their children have, and send the "overdues" back to school

Tofield stands firm on regional recreation

The Town of Tofield has reaffirmed its stand to withdraw from participation in regional recreation if participating authorities cannot reach an understanding on the new proposed recreation agreement.

for the sidewalk, curb and gutter construction on both sides of 51 Street between 55 and 56 Avenues and for curb and gutter on 1st Street, south from 55 Avenue to the lift station on the west side

Council was advised that the Village of Ryley was interested in sharing the costs for the purchase of a tranquilizer gun to be used on dogs running at large. Council decided to check into the costs of buying such a gun and to find out the rules and regulations for such a gun's operation

A by-law for the maintenance and control of the cemetery was referred to the Town Property and By-Law Committee for study and a recommendation to be presented at the next meeting of Council.

Councillors indicated that the Library Board should be notified that the Provincial Government had refused a grant to be used to assist in paying for repairs to the library

However, council decided, at the same time, to consider the costs for inclusion when the town's 1977 budget is being prepared.

Applications for a new building inspector are being sought after council accepted the resignation of George Lee from the position. Mr. Lee's resignation becomes effective on April 15th.

A letter from the County of Beaver School Committee informed council that school buses will be loaded just off of Street, on the west edge of school property just south of the school

Accounts in the amount of $55,672.80 were approved for payment

Instead of conducting a municipal census, county approved the use of the 1976 Federal census for the current year. The census showed Tofield to have a population of 1,101

A bid of $535 was accepted by council for the sale of a 1967 one ton truck to Wolf Revenue of Tofield RR2

Information for this news story was obtained from the unapproved minutes of a council meeting which was held on March 14th.

Where was the protest?

At last week-end's annual meeting of the Progressive Conservative Party, Education Minister Julian Koziak received the brunt of a long series of protests from parents over the "stuff" their children are being taught in school. Parent after parent demanded a "return to the basics", though a very few urged still greater breadth in the curriculum.

But one thing which seemed to produce more annoyance than anything else was the continued instruction dealing with American institutions, American flags, American presidents and so on, rather than their Canadian counterparts.

Now, Mr. Koziak was on the receiving end because he happens to be minister of education at this particular time, though he is by no means responsible for all the material dealing with the other side of the border, much of which was being taught long before he was elected. The fact it is still being taught, of course, more than two years after the appointment, can directly be thrown at him.

The point has often been mentioned by the public.

But, one wonders, where have the teachers been through all this public disenchantment with what they're teaching? What has the ATA done to concentrate study on the matter, to make it the focal point in a review over whether there is, indeed, a problem, or not? Surely there must be concern among many teachers about having to teach matters which are distinctly American, all the while there is no comparable time being spent on matters Canadian.

It's not the sort of thing that individual teachers can do much about, because of standardized curricula, even though there is probably greater freedom under school accreditation than there has ever been. Yet if only a restricted group of texts is authorized, teachers tend to be forced to use the material prescribed by the provincial department of education.

In this respect, it seems, there may be bright news on the horizon for those who favor concentration on our own country. We were reliably informed on a recent visit to the East that a new series of excellent texts is available now, dealing with Canadian subjects. They're the sort a book salesman could well be proud to display, according to our information. And the publisher? Not a firm of Canadian nationalists, as one might suppose. Not a British firm, intent on emphasizing the imperial connections. No, it's an American firm, working in Canada, and publishing to meet a demand they recognized was not being met by anyone else.

Good luck to them.

Faulty reasoning

It's fascinating to see the variety of ways in which government can "justify" the programs it initiates, and those it doesn't.

Just recently, for instance, Ottawa has decided that anyone who consumes what must be considered absolutely prodigious quantities of saccharin would be endangering his health, so saccharin is to be banned. It doesn't matter that anyone who ate similarly incredible quantities of hamburger, or potato chips, or even spinach would similarly ruin his health. They don't figure in the matter. Not yet, at any rate.

And it's quite okay to proceed, according to a department of health offical, because there have been only a little over fifty letters of protest so far, which means the public doesn't really care. Not until the stuff is no longer available . . . then wait for the crescendo.

By contrast, the same official says it is well known that tobacco is far more injurious to the system, many, many times more than saccharin.

So, quite logically you would suppose he is moving to ban the sale of tobacco on the same grounds.

But that's far from the case. Not only that, he has already admitted there will be no such action. The reason is because there are so many smokers, and they are so powerfully addicted that eternal perdition would be damned on his head for daring to move into such a field. The feeling is such legislation would produce exactly the same results as did the ban on liquor more than half a century ago, with rampant bootlegging, and all the evils that accompanys it, and feed on it.

And of course, that would be even more unhealthy for us than smoking. But saccharin somehow is different.

Parti Ward . . . Ottawa Viewpoint

. . . Ottawa's push so far appears to be coming quite naturally from Western Quebec, specifically the National Capital Region of Hull and the suburbs. Thousands of Quebeckers there work for the federal government, either in Hull or in Ottawa, and they are extremely aware of what Quebec separatism would do to their home territory economically.

Gratton, incidentally, is the member for Gatineau, immediately across the Ottawa River from the capital, and downstream a touch.

He's been holding a series of meetings at which emotional speeches have been delivered, and significantly, he's being criticized for emotionalism. It would be hard to imagine anything much more emotional than the PQ cause.

Gratton has applied for status as a non-profit organization, so that donations to the Quebec Canada Movement could be deducted from income tax, but the PQ Quebec government has turned him down. Perhaps the federal government will be more kind.

The organization certainly must be worrying some people in the PQ camp, who are plotting sort of a conversion to the separatism cause by osmosis on the uncommitted of the province. Not in line with PQ feelings to have the other side get equal time, apparently. Gratton says he has even had letters from obvious PQ supporters calling him a traitor to his race for promoting . . .

That amounts to an admission of racialism by those who are doing the writing in my book, and when you look at the Parti Quebecois stand on various issues inside the province that's exactly what the party is.

The problem Canada will be facing within the next few years is going to be rooted largely in attempts by the Parti Quebecois to make the rest of the country bowing to the separatists' wishes. Hardly a progressive, humanitarian, good neighbour way of doing things.

Ellen Exine

Mrs Elsie Lehman of Bashaw, Sask., arrived on March 9th for a visit with her sister Edna and Arnold Jones and family. On Mar 13th, Edna and Elsie went to Dawson Creek where they visited another sister, Mrs Agnes Pegian and spent the week there returning home on the 18th.

On Mar 22nd, several ladies of the district including Mrs Ann Jones, Mrs Mavis Jacobson, Mrs MacFerguson, Mrs Isabel Rudecki, Mrs Mary Schroeder, Mrs Helen Brem and Mrs Diane Pickula gathered at the home of Mrs Edna Jones to help her celebrate a belated birthday party. Also there to join in the celebration was Edna's sister Elsie who had been visiting her for two weeks. Elsie left for her home in Saskatchewan on Mar 23rd.

On Mar. 12th visitors at the homes of Deanna and Arnold Nelson and Gail and Ron McAdam were Deanna's and Gail's uncle Bob and Gwen Blanchette of Edmonton. Also visiting at Gail and Ron's the same day were Ron's parents and sister, Mr and Mrs McAdam and Sandra.

Arnold and Deanna Nelson and family and Ron and Gail McAdam and baby Michelle were visitors at the home of Deanna's and Gail's uncle and aunt, Bob and Gwen Blanchette on Mar 19th.

Howard and Mae Furgason and granddaughter Wanda Weir and her friend Tonia Van Der Kley of Tofield motored to Edmonton on Mar 23rd. On the way in, they stopped at Sherwood Park and picked up their son, Nelson Furgason and his friend Ron-Ai Olson and all attended the rodeo at the Edmonton Coliseum.

Susan, daughter of Arnold and Deanna Nelson was taken to the Royal Alexandra Hospital in Edmonton Sunday where she underwent surgery on Monday morning on her arm which she had broken last fall and which had been giving her some trouble when she couldn't straighten her arm properly. She is in Unit 36 Children's Ward.

Charlie Niemetz took sick on Saturday and was rushed to the University Hospital in Edmonton on Sunday morning by his son Doug Niemetz, where it was found he had pneumonia. His wife Mickey went to Edmonton Sunday afternoon with her brother Howard and Mae Furgason. She remained in Edmonton to be close to the hospital for the process.

Carl Blake passed away in the Tofield Hospital following a lengthy illness. Carl has been a resident of Tofield and district for many years and was well known to most of the old time residents as the Blake family were old time residents in Tofield. Funeral services were on Monday afternoon at the Tofield United Church with interment in the Evergreen Cemetery in Edmonton.

Jane Jansen accompanied Rod and Isabel Rudecki and children, Heather and David to Holden on Sunday afternoon to attend the 4-H County of Beaver Public Speaking spoonoff where Heather was one of the speakers in the senior class. Heather received first in her class and will go to Viking on Sunday to compete in the regional public speaking.

The home of Frank's brother-in-law, George and Ida Nemeth of Tofield on Tuesday.

A few gophers and crows have been seen in the district over the past week making spring official but, the weather isn't co-operating at present.

Viking ends as runners-up

Viking finished as the runners-up position in provincial AA girls basketball playoffs in Picture Butte recently

Viking won its opening game handily and then met Frechu in the provincial semi-finals and gained a berth in the finals with a close 36-30 victory

In the finals, Viking met the host school and in an exceedingly close contest, Picture Butte came out on top 35-38 to win the provincial championship

On the previous weekend, Viking hosted the Zone playoffs and were undefeated in three straight games to take the crown and earn the right to advance to the provincial playoffs

Viking walloped Forestburg 48-19 in their first outing and got by Tofield 36-25 in a real squeaker in the finals, it was strictly no contest as Viking walloped Devon 56-27

Devon finished in second place as they got by Tofield 28-21 and beat Forestburg handily by a score of 31-19 Tofield was third as they kept Forestburg winless by recording a narrow 23-21 triumph

The Homemaker

TODAY'S WOMAN

Betty Burch, D H E at Stettler wrote the following article which I feel deals with an extremely important subject

Are you an informed woman? Many wives do all the family business and money do sense Neither is a good situation It is important for both partners in a marriage to have a good knowledge of family affairs Today's women should be informed knowledgeable, competent, and most of all prepared for tomorrow

What kind of things do you need to know?

Insurance Policies

Know where all insurance policies (life, automobile, home, health, etc) are kept, when premiums are due, the amount of the premium, where payable, the name of the companies, policy numbers, and the person to contact about them How's that for a start?

Bank Accounts

All savings and chequing accounts should be known by each Know account numbers and all what banks they are held It's surprising how many bank accounts are never claimed after a death because the heirs didn't know of their existence or didn't know their exact location

Payments

Know when mortgage or lease payments are due, their amount and where they are payable Be sure to know about installment payments on equipment, where passing the payment date may cause repossession

Wills

Be sure to know where each others wills are kept and what lawyer, if any, has a copy DO YOU EVEN HAVE A WILL?

Securities

It's a good idea to have a list of securities like stocks, bonds, shares, etc as well as the names of agencies looking after them

Do you know where old income tax records are? Property deeds? Birth certificates?

If you're a farm wife, do you know generally what situation the farm business is in? It's not really necessary to know what kind of fertilizer was used on the back 40, but it is wise to at least know if the back 40 is paid for

Following is a list of important papers and a suggestion of where to keep them

HOME BUSINESS FILE: Insurance policies, tax returns, bank records, receipts, and bills, copy of your will, guarantees and warranties, financial plan account book, inventories, net worth statement, health records, employment records

SAFE DEPOSIT BOX: Birth certification, marriage certificates, citizenship papers, passports, original copy of wills, business agreements, deeds and titles, bonds, investment securities, inventories, insurance policies

If you're not aware of all these things, today's a good time to get started, tomorrow may be too late

Recreation Report

By Val Charteris

Well folks, this is it. This is my last chance to forward words of wisdom from my desk in the Regional Recreation Office

These past ten months have been very rewarding, interesting and even a little provoking for me. The people have been very exciting to work with, and I have gained a wealth of knowledge and experience working in the field of recreation.

I feel that the County of Beaver has much to offer. there are very talented and knowledgeable people set there who could be teaching or helping with the Regional Recreation Programs There are also many resources and facilities which could be utilized to a fuller extent But basically, I have found that people are unaware of what can be offered and do not know what to do or where to go once they purchase.

Come on People - Let your minds out of gold and let us, not in your neighbours, your family, or your postman.

I know there is mixed feelings out there, but, how can we help when you do not come out and tell us how you feel? We have a telephone - 352-3726, a mailing address - Box 3, Ryley, T0B 4A0 and we hold several monthly meetings.

What does recreation mean to you and what are YOU doing about it?

Now that I have given you some food for thought, I would like to thank each and everyone of you for making my stay in the County of Beaver a memorable one.

I would like to wish all the school principals, teachers and students, "good luck" and keep up the good work.

Thanks and good luck to the Ryley Senior Girls Basketball team - you are a great bunch of athletes and friends

Thanks to the County of Beaver staff - you are a great bunch to work with

Good luck and thanks for the wonderful memories to all the Senior Citizens and Senior Citizen Clubs in the County

Each and every person I have met and have come to know will form a link in my golden chain of eternal friendship. Thank you.

If you are ever passing through the renowned town of Kerrobert, Saskatchewan, please stop by or give me a call. I'll show you some good ol' Saskatchewan hospitality.

A smaller price

During 1975 there were 637 persons murdered in Canada, according to figures from Statistics Canada. This was 11 more than the previous year.

The 1975 total includes five cases of capital murder. Shooting victims claimed 280, or 43.5 per cent, of all victims killed, compared with 127 beating deaths.

Of the solved murders, 60.8 per cent involved domestic relationships while 12.7 per cent occurred during the commission of another criminal act such as robbery, rape, arson and arson.

Of 81 per cent of the people in Canada had their way, there would have been 637 more killings legally of course - all the killers had been caught and convicted.

But then of course we are overlooking the "degrees" of murder.

Don t hang Uncle Willie who is unrelained he didn't really mean to kill his fleeing friend and neighbour But by all means hang that pervert who attacked and killed the young girl!

Justice" Revenge" Fear" What motivates these proponents of capital punishment?

The message we have been trying to get across is that such an extreme measure serves nothing.

If we could get at the root of the matter, it would be to incarcerate, hospitalize or contain - whatever terms you wish - all those persons who are known molesters or perverts And keep them forever.

This would mean the sacrifice of some of the personal freedoms Canadians enjoy today, but isn't it truly a smaller price to pay?

Holowaychuk chosen star

Randy Holowaychuk of the CLC Vikings has been named to the Second team in the annual AAC/Eaton League All Star polls.

Holowaychuk was named as the starting for his second team as he finished only one vote behind Bob Hatchame of Red Deer and Steve Scott of Mount Royal who finished in a tie with nine votes.

Holowaychuk, the son of Mr. and Mrs Alex Holowaychuk of Round Hill, was the team's leading scorer during the past season.

Only three other Vikings received votes in the balloting. Mervinack got two votes for defence while Keech picked up one vote as a center and McMillan got a vote for forward.

Voting was done by coaches on a 3-2-1 basis

Report from Don Mazankowski, MP

Heavy Oil at Lloydminster offers industry challenge

Report From Parliament Hill by Don Mazankowski, M.P.

On March 17, 1977, the federal government brought forward two studies conducted by the Department of Energy, Mines and Resources.

The main study is entitled "Oil and Natural Gas Resources of Canada, 1976" and gives a broad overview of the existing energy supply situation in Canada. The companion document is entitled "Oil Sands and Heavy Oils - the prospects". This report deals specifically with these particular deposits which are Canada's largest known energy resources. It is this document which is of particular interest to the people of Vegreville constituency because it deals extensively with the heavy oil deposits in the Lloydminster area. The study states that "Lloydminster-area heavy oil could become one of Canada's important near-term oil sources".

Current estimates place the level of crude oil in-place in the Lloydminster area at between 6 billion to 18 billion barrels. The actual figure is considered to be most likely between 8billion &billion barrels. Whichever it is, though, this still indicates an enormous reserve of oil compared to that proven in conventional oil fields. The problem is that Lloydminster-type heavy oils are not recoverable by normal production techniques. Light and medium crudes, such as those in the southern and western Alberta deposits, are usually 33 per cent recoverable. This means that for every 100 barrels of oil in the reservoir, 33 barrels would ultimately be recovered. With the Lloydminster-type heavy crude, however, historically only 5 percent to 10 percent of the oil is recoverable.

The key to the development of the Lloydminster fields is an advance in the technology for recovery of oil. The research is already underway and prospects are promising. One such project is being undertaken by General Crude Oil Company Northern Ltd. on a 960 acre operation at Kitscoty.

The other major factor necessary before any full-scale development of Lloydminster-area heavy oil takes place is an improved operating environment for producers in the past, the limited market for heavy oils has been the major holdback in developing production at Lloydminster A good deal of that which was produced was exported to the U.S. The federal government's restrictions on oil exports a few years ago dealt a serious blow to the heavy oil producers and the entire Lloydminster area. Since that time, the National Energy Board has exempted heavy oil from the blanket export restrictions and agreed to license it separately As the study says, "this decision constitutes an important step in developing the production potential of the area". The study also points out that it may be necessary to provide some incentives to encourage conventional crude oil producers to undertake the study and, in the second alternative and, indeed, would be much more desirable one from the point of view of those of us living in the Lloydminster area. Besides the technological advantages of upgrading heavy oil prior to pipelining, the study notes that "the location of these large industrial facilities in the producing areas may well improve the industrial concentration across the country."

In order for development of both production capability and upgrading facilities to flourish, federal and provincial governments must cooperate and take initiatives. More favourable tax and royalty structures for heavy oil producers, funds and incentives for research, and a long [illegible] are all important and necessary steps.

The many factors brought out in the study "make Lloydminster-type heavy oils possibly Canada's best hope for near-term additions to the supply of liquid hydrocarbon fuels." With positive sensible action by the federal and provincial governments, these reserves could also be the best hope for the future economic prosperity of Lloydminster and the entire surrounding area.

FEED GRAIN OUTLOOK

Feed grain prices are expected to remain about the same as they are now until late summer when they could drop, if we have a normal American crop

Lynn Malmberg marketing economist with Alberta Agriculture, says that the price of wheat will probably be the main factor affecting the price of feed grains during the 1977 78 crop year Since wheat prices are likely to remain "soft" in the foreseeable future, they are expected to put a damper on feed grain export prices.

The size of the 1976 Soviet feed grain crop is the second factor expected to have a dampening effect on feed grain prices The 1976 crop was 125 million tonnes compared with approximately 65 7 million tonnes in 1975

The third factor is the American corn carryover The United States Department of Agriculture predicts the 1976 77 corn carryover will [illegible] compared with 617 million tonnes in the previous crop year World feed grain stocks are predicted to reach 52 3 million tonnes in 1977 compared with [illegible]

Assuming a normal corn yield in the U S this summer, corn production will be about the same as last year, but exports and domestic demand are expected to decline somewhat Hence, prices are expected to be slightly below current levels

"All the above factors," says Mr Malmberg, "must be considered potential price depressants to some degree We must also remember that the probably response to current wheat prices will be an expansion in world feed grain production this year, providing normal weather prevails in the major grain producing areas If 1977 crop prospects proceed in a normal manner [illegible] production can be expected to decrease export prices "

Mr Malmberg expects Canada's barley acreage to increase by 6 to 7 per cent, given reasonable seeding conditions. If yields equal the last five-year average of 60 bushels per acre, production will be around 18 3 million tonnes Even though exports and domestic consumption could increase to the point where the Canadian carryover level is around 2 million tonnes by the end of the present crop year compared with 2 7 tonnes at the end of the 1976 crop year this increased demand is not expected to have much effect on prices received by Alberta farmers

"By late summer", says Mr Malmberg, "it seems likely that barley will be trading in the $1 75 to $2 range, basis export positions, and not the former $1 50 to $1 75 per bushel. However, feed grain quotas will probably be relatively good for this year's crop"

Progressive Farming

FEED GRAIN OUTLOOK

Feed grain prices are expected to remain about the same as they are now until late summer when they could drop, if we have a normal American crop.

Lyn Mainberg, marketing economist with Alberta Agriculture says that the price of wheat will probably be the main factor affecting the price of feed grains during the 1977-78 crop year. Since wheat prices are likely to remain "soft" in the foreseeable future, they are expected to put a damper on feed grain export prices.

The size of the 1976 Soviet feed grain crop is the second factor expected to have a dampening effect on feed grain prices. The 1976 crop was 125 million tonnes compared with approximately 65.7 million tonnes in 1975.

The third factor is the American corn carryover. The United States Department of Agriculture predicts the 1976-77 corn carryover will reach 15.8 million tonnes compared with 817 million tonnes in the previous crop year. World feed grain stocks are predicted to reach 83.3 million tonnes in 1977 compared with 67.6 million tonnes in mid-1976.

Assuming a normal corn yield in the U.S. this summer, corn production will be about the same as last year, but exports and domestic demand are expected to decline somewhat. Hence, prices are expected to be slightly below current levels.

"All the above factors," says Mr. Mainberg, "must be considered potential price depressants to some degree. We must also remember that the probably response to current wheat prices will be an expansion in world feed grain production this year. If prevailing normal weather prevails in the major grain producing areas, if 1977 crop prospects proceed in a normal manner such an increase in production can be expected to decrease export prices."

Mr. Mainberg expects Canada's barley acreage to increase by 6 to 7 per cent, given reasonable seeding conditions. If yields equal the last five-year average of 69 bushels per acre, production will be around 3 million tonnes. Even though exports and domestic consumption could increase to the point where the Canadian carryover level is around 2 million tonnes by the end of the present crop year (compared with 2.7 tonnes at the end of the 1976 crop year), this increased demand is not expected to have much effect on prices received by Alberta farmers.

"By late summer," says Mr. Mainberg, "it seems likely that barley will be trading in the $1.75 to $2 range, basis export positions, and not the farmer $1.50 to $1.75 per bushel. However, feed grain quotas will probably be relatively good for this year's crop."

James 3 32 But he ye doers of the word and not hearers only

Some years ago, a magazine carried the story of a missionary who was visited by a Korean convert who had walked 100 miles to learn more about Jesus. After giving his testimony the young man revised the entire sermon on the mount without making one mistake. The missionary was delighted but felt he ought to warn him that memorizing the Bible was not enough. It's percepts must be put into practice. When he made this suggestion, the Korean's face lit up with a happy smile "That's the way I learned it", he said "When I first tried to master that long passage it just wouldn't stick in my mind. So I decided to grasp just one verse at a time and then to follow its instructions as I lived among my friends and neighbors. When I knew how well it worked, I had no difficulty in remembering it." The admonitions of God's word become firmly unbedded in our memory and character when we act upon them.

The happiest Christians are those who are not only hearers but also doers of the word. They have found the scriptures to be truth that works.

"Meet the Author Night"
In the day when packaging is supreme. God put together a package of pure dynamite when He mixed the elements that make up Maxine Hancock. By the time she wrote the best-selling Moody Press book "Love, Honor and be Free", she has taught school, written award-winning radio programs, been her husband's publicist in a political campaign, and spoken at many women's and mother-and-daughter banquets, while mothering four children. When "Love, Honor, and Be Free" appeared she had already been selected by the Western Producer as one of western Canada's leading women.
Now Maxine Hancock has put together her down-to-earth insights on how to cut costs and make a reduced budget work for you. She shares from practical experiences with her usual sense of humor and inspirational style "LIVING ON LESS AND LIKING IT MORE" is guaranteed to make inflation seem less formidable.

Anti-Inflation Program
Last week in the Legislature, a decision was reached that Alberta will remain in the Anti-Inflation Program until the end of 1977. This coincides with the Federal Government decision to retain price and wage controls for that period at least.
Ray Speaker, M.L.A. for Little Bow, on behalf of the Official Opposition, proposed that if the province was to remain in the Anti-Inflation Program, an immediate decision should be made to continue temporary rent controls as well. Government members voted down that proposal.
Consumer Affairs Minister Graham Harle argues that the rent control program is still being assessed and a decision will come in mid or late April.
It is my contention that if prices and wages are to continue under controls, it is imperative that rents also be controlled temporarily. Because rent control measures expire on June 30th, a decision should be made now so that landlords and tenants know the ground-rules.
School Bus Safety
I received a pleasant surprise when Solicitor-General Ray Farran thanked me for alerting him last fall that cars had been passing school buses discharging children. It is gratifying to know that the Minister directed provincial patrols to pay special attention to the problem. It's nice to know that Government Ministers pay attention to at least some issues raised by opposition!
Railroads - Blocks & Ties
On Sunday two of my children, David and Lisa, and I had the pleasure of participating in the fund raising project a Paliamrak Olympiette. The turn out of the community was certainly overwhelming. The organizers are to be congratulated on a fine project.
Who's Running?
Last weekend the Fort Saskatchewan Women's Open Bonspiel was on and I took the opportunity of dropping in and watching the curling. The draw was fully attended and the curling was certainly of excellent calibre.
Hockey
The Kinsmen Club talked me into coming out of retirement, because of a back injury, to participate in a game against the Edmonton Club. We lost, but the game was most enjoyable.

Poe Pourri

by Lorraine Poulsen

Probably in all of Canada there is not an unique a "newspaper office" as in mine

In fact, when coffee started its unbelievable spiral, I threatened to give up my "office"

I have visited with newspaper columnists in rundown, flea-ridden, dark offices in various parts of northern Ontario and marvelled at the stories and columns which were given birth in clumsy backrooms in various locations throughout Newfoundland and Saskatchewan (in fact, my favorite newspaper correspondent haunted a central office by working from the first table to the left inside the local pub!)

But none surpass my present office

Not only does the last stool at the coffee bar offer a good view of main street Poe, it also puts me close to the coffee pot and a fair distance from the kitchen and the work waiting there.

From my "downtown" perch I can easily keep an eye on all the local happenings and listen to area gossip-ons first hand when visitors stop in for coffee

While my "office" is up for grabs during most of the week, no Postie (Hoddenin or Rylerper) would try to occupy the Pearrie stool Tuesday mornings between 10 to 11 a.m

It's true, my office lacks plush carpet, a solid walnut desk and a matching desk phone but it does have a certain amount of class which these fixtures just wouldn't give

With my present office setup, I can easily put lunch on the stove and not worry about the soup boiling over or the open-faced sandwiches over broiling. I can write and keep guard on freshly washed kitchen and living-room floors by simply shouting when Bob tries to sneak into the kitchen through the back door. Not to mention the fact that I can, from my office, greet and serve store customers with no problem

Let them have their roomy, air-conditioned offices. I'll settle for the last stool at the coffee bar

Trudeau, Clark agree on Junior Citizens

One of the few projects to receive unqualified support from both Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and Opposition Leader Joe Clark enters its 10th year this September at Calgary.

Alberta's Junior Citizen program, sponsored by Calgary Power Ltd. and Alberta Power Ltd., "serves to bring to light outstanding young people who are so richly deserving of our admiration and respect," says the prime minister.

Any young Albertan, or group, between the ages of six and 18 can qualify for a Junior Citizen of the Year award.

Boys and girls are nominated, through their community newspaper, for any act of achievement which involves courage, initiative or selflessness performed during the 12-month period August 1, 1976 to July 31, 1977.

Tory Leader Clark, in a message to Junior Citizen organizers, says he takes particular pride in the program because he is a "fellow Albertan."

"In these uncertain times, it is important that we pause to honor the small, but nonetheless remarkable, gestures of social commitment undertaken by our young people," he says.

This year's Junior Citizen luncheon will be held Sept. 9 in the Calgary Convention Centre, as part of the Alberta Weekly Newspapers' Association annual convention.

Bill Kmill is Junior Citizen Chairman will be the premier Governor Ralph Steinhauer and AWNA president Bill Holmes, of The High River Times.

Lt.-Gov. Steinhauer will also present the Grant MacEwan Conservation Award.

The award was developed by Calgary Power in 1976 to commemorate the 10th anniversary of the province's 4-H Conservation Camp, and to recognize Dr. MacEwan's lifelong interest in conservation.

It is designed to motivate camp delegates to spread the conservation message - - and to honor a selected graduate camper who demonstrates outstanding efforts as a follow-up to attending the camp.

The award is presented annually.

Each Junior Citizen, and the MacEwan Award winner, receives a certificate of recognition and $300 in Canada Savings Bonds.

Nominations may be forwarded to the editor of this newspaper

ANNOUNCEMENT

We, the members of the Mennonite Brethren Church of Tofield, would hereby convey an important announcement to the people of our community.

For some forty years, we have served people, mainly of the Mennonite culture and ethnic background. To more effectively meet our responsibility of ministering to the spiritual needs of persons residing in the entire community, we have taken the following practical steps:

1. In keeping with our new policy, we have changed our name and will henceforth be known as -
   "THE TOFIELD GOSPEL CHURCH"
2. Our services are now designed to accommodate all people seeking friendship, fellowship and a Church Home.
3. We are endeavouring to cultivate and increase a spirit of love, understanding and acceptance to everyone.

In view of the above changes, we are happy to extend a warm christian invitation to our varied services and functions.

Good fish

Peter Kuc of Tofield is pretty proud of his catch. His prize Northern Pike weighed 15 lbs 6 ozs. and measured 38 inches. It was caught through the ice in Moose Lake with a single hook jig.

What prairie provinces?

Traditionally the three western provinces, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, are referred to as the "Prairie Provinces", a term denoting a vast region of flat treeless land seemingly stretching for miles and consisting of one continuous wheat field. The term suggests all agriculture in this vast area is the same with differences of very little significance. Such is not the case. These three provinces are possibly more different from each other than are Quebec and Ontario. Many differences, both economic and political occur, and they are significant enough to suggest that each province is almost separately and not grouped as a conglomerate.

Alberta, for example, leads in the production of beef, barley, tame hay, honey, forage seed, sheep and sugar beets. Saskatchewan is the largest wheat-producing province and leads in the production of oats, rapeseed and rye. Manitoba is noted for its flaxseed, buckwheat, pea and sunflower production.

The main sources of farm income vary from 64 per cent for wheat in Saskatchewan to 31 per cent for cattle and calves in Alberta and slightly less than 32 per cent for wheat in Manitoba. In Alberta farm cash receipts from livestock and livestock products generally equal the amount received from total crops. In Manitoba, receipts from crops surpass livestock receipts by one and a half times. In Saskatchewan receipts from crops exceed livestock receipts by four and a half times.

Farm operations also vary between provinces as do methods of farming. Many farmers in Saskatchewan alternate half their total acreage between crop and summerfallow. Approximately 18 million acres, or nearly 60 per cent of the total cropland and summerfallow acreage, are summerfallowed in Saskatchewan. In Alberta summerfallow acreage represents only about 25 per cent of the cropland and summerfallow acreage, while the figure in Manitoba is nearer 20 per cent. Summerfallow is rarely used in Alberta's ranching country.

Soils and climate vary considerably throughout the western provinces and dictate different cropping patterns and farming methods. In fact, [illegible] within the provinces themselves. Annual precipitation in Alberta, for example, varies from less than 20 inches in the south to more than 22 inches in the north. Similar variations occur within Manitoba.

With the diversity which exists within and between the Western provinces, why does excellent research and analysis, initially done on a province-by province basis, continue to be published in Prairie summaries? Too often the combination results in averages which are not descriptive of any one province or of the total area. The credibility of the report is destroyed and the results are shelved.

As Canadian agriculture continues to be altered by economics and political influences within separate provincial boundaries, the increasing importance of each province's agriculture emphasizes the need for separate analysis of provincial agricultural data. Grouping provincial data only to the detriment of the ultimate user.

Buys champ

Paul Kollal of Tofield purchased the Grand Champion Horned Hereford bull from Pleasant Valley Colony during the Canadian Western Stock Show held in Edmonton. Purchase price was $8,250.

Tofield will impose special frontage tax

The Town of Tofield has taken the first steps to impose a special frontage assessment for local improvement purposes.

At the most recent meeting of Town Council, two readings were given to the proposed by-law.

A motion to give the by-law the necessary third reading was won 3-1 but, since it was not passed unanimously, third reading could not be given and the by-law had to be deferred until the next meeting of council.

Second reading was given to a by-law which would provide for the maintenance and control of the Tofield Cemetery.

First reading of this by-law had been read at an earlier meeting with the third and final reading to be given at a future meeting of council.

A letter from the Assessment Equalization Board informed councillors that the 1977 equalized assessment stood at $2,745,530 which varied to the $788,920 for the School Fund.

Councillors decided to arrange a meeting with the Assessment Equalization Board to explain the basis for the assessment.

A letter from the Provincial Planning Board indicated that the 1977 requisition amounted to $1,372.76. It was decided that this account would not be paid until the equalized assessment matter has been settled.

The proposed 1977 regional recreation budget was brought to council's attention and was tabled for budget discussions.

It was decided that all members of Town Council would compose the Court of Revision with the Administrator, J.N. Brodie to act as Clerk of the Court. Dates for the Court of Revision are to be determined at the next regular council meeting.

Viking singer finishes 3rd

A singer from Viking made a strong showing during the 26th annual ACT Search for Talent competition which was shown on CFRN on Saturday afternoon.

Victor Dawson of Viking had two third place finishes to his credit after the ninety minute special on Channel 3 had reached its conclusion.

Dawson's vocal solo gave him a third place showing in the Sunwapta Division and he was also credited with a third place finish in the Variety Division.

Melissa Ryben of Vermilion emerged as the winner in the Junior Division. Peggy and Douglas Dolezuk of Vegreville were the lucky winners of a trip for two to Hawaii in a draw that was made.

Proceeds from the annual competitions are used to assist the Northern Alberta Crippled Children's Fund.

The firm of Shail and Mamula were named as the town's auditors for 1977.

A letter from Canadian National Railways requested information on planning for sewer and water lines on 51 Street southerly, under the tracks. CN were to be informed that this was private construction and was not being done by the town.

Attending the meeting were Mayor Prenbury and Councillors Nachtigal, Langtiw and Pittet along with Town Administrator J.N. Brodie and A.G. Clark.

Information for this news story was taken from the unapproved minutes of a council meeting held on March 28th.

Legion dartists still competing

The Winter Dart Leagues of the Tofield Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion wound up its season's activities with a banquet and awards night recently.

Currently teams from the Tofield Legion are involved in "open" championship playoffs in Wainwright, Fort Saskatchewan and Edmonton. Three teams will be competing in Wainwright on Saturday, April 16th.

Dart action will continue throughout the summer months on Tuesday evenings with any adults invited to visit the Legion and take part in the action.

The team of Vic Fairbrother, Ada Hosbaer, Jim Allen and Charlie McLeod finished the regular season in top spot and went on to win the league championship.

Ian Bloomfield finished the season in first place as far as individual competition was concerned while Vic Fairbrother was second.

Around the town

Karl and Florence (nee Eagleham) Myers and two children of Yellowknife were recent visitors with Florence's family, Marie and Vic Fairbrother.

The Mennonite Brethern Church was the setting for a well attended shower held in honour of Brenda Hosbert whose marriage will take place on May 7th. Brenda will be graduating, next week, from Red Deer Junior College.

Ceretzke to head association

Roberta Ceretzke was elected as president of the Beaverhills Light Horse Association at the club's annual meeting on Sunday afternoon.

Dennis Patrick was named as vice-president while Hilda Korobko was elected as secretary-treasurer. Directors for three-year terms of office are Marg Wylie, Deanna Norton and Barry Jones.

Club members decided to volunteer their services to the Town of Tofield as supervisors in the Tofield Theatre for a one-month period during the winter.

Highlights of the past year were reported, including trail rides, gymkhanas, July 1st celebrations in Tofield and anyone interested in participating is asked to contact Dennis Lawson.

Mrs Bill Friesen and her sister, Mary Becker, have returned from a holiday at Belleville, Maryland where they visited another sister, Mrs Betty Klassen and family.

A forty-member choir from Southern, Sask. performed at the Tofield Mennonite Church on Saturday and Sunday.

Visitors in Disneyland during the spring break were Mr. and Mrs. Purvis and girls as well as Mr. and Mrs. Art McCallister (nee Boston) and family.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Milton Sanders (nee Gwen Klassen) of Didsbury, on April 1st, a daughter, Mary Andrea.

March winner of the Tofield Curling Club draw was Rich Norton of Edmonton.

Mrs. J. A. L. Smith spent Friday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Robinson.

Dr Price was the guest speaker and showed a film at a recent meeting of the Youth.

Ryley committee will be active

For the second successive summer, the Main Street Program Committee will be active in the Village of Ryley.

The committee has received permission from Canadian National Railways to fix up the area where the old CN station used to be located.

An old building on Main Street is scheduled for demolition this summer. Other odds and ends to improve the general appearance of Main Street will also be undertaken.

Total Abstainers Group held at the Bill Wiens home.

The WCTU hosted a party on Friday afternoon in the basement of the Baptist Church for children who had entered the ST! poster contest and their mothers. Mrs Laura Francis led devotions while Mrs Bernice Hellberg presented the children with their prizes.

Winner in the different grades were Trevor Jacobson, Andrew Funk, Wally Rude, Terry Rempel, Kelly Jensen, Rena Siemens, Cindy Rude, Stephen Dennen and Evan Beergen.

Report from your M.L.A.

by John S. Batiuk

As the month of March comes to an end, a considerable amount of progress in the Legislature has been achieved.

Many members of the Legislature Assembly participated in the Budget debate expressing their views.

A delegation of Mayors from Bruderheim, Chipman, Lamont, Lavoy, Mundare and Vegreville met with the Minister of the Environment, his staff and myself. The purpose of the meeting was to express concern by the towns and villages experiencing water shortages to serve the growing communities. The delegation discussed a regional water system and requested that such a study be carried out to cover the entire area. The original intention was to make a study within a forty mile radius of Edmonton.

It is quite apparent that the desire of the delegation is that water obtained from the North Saskatchewan River is the only alternative. The staff from the Department expect to have the study concluded by the end of the year.

Considerable debate and questioning about rent control was exercised in the House recently. It is apparent that some landlords have indicated their intention to raise the rent substantially after the rent control period is over. The Assembly was advised that the decision would be announced next month as to whether or not rent controls will be extended beyond July.

A resolution introduced to the Assembly to urge the government to consider enabling legislation and other measures to identify donors of human tissue for organ transplant and for the rapid collection and transportation of these donated organs.

There are occasions when the donor has passed away that by the time the University is aware of the donation, it is far too late. Some identity could be provided whereby when a donor passes away the attending physician or funeral director would be alerted by the identity. A very favorable debate and discussion took place.

I, along with my wife and eighteen (18) other delegates from the Vegreville Constituency attended a three-day Annual Meeting of the Alberta Progressive Conservative Association held at the Macdonald Hotel, March 25th to March 27th. It was very encouraging to see several youths attending and participating in the convention. Over fifteen hundred 1500- registered delegates attended the very important and interesting annual meeting.

I observed that participation in the various workshops and the resolutions group was the most active that may be remembered. Mr. Joe Clark addressed the delegates and the Premier made his address Saturday afternoon. Both presentations were very impressive and well appreciated.

Seventeen of the nineteen Members of Parliament present were introduced by Mr. Don Mazankowski, the Member of Parliament for Vegreville. Some of the very important goals and objectives proposed by the Premier were:

1) To continue to provide the highest quality education, health care and overall public service in Canada with the emphasis on quality on quantity.

2) At the same time to provide sound and responsible fiscal management of the province's affairs.

3) To concurrently plan for the time when the resource [illegible] for all [illegible]

by creating new jobs in a diversified economy supported by a Heritage Savings Trust Fund that provides a strong legacy for the future.

4) To reduce the dependency of Albertans upon the whims and wishes of others by increasing the extent of decision-making by Albertans to control our own destiny in a private enterprise society.

5) To maintain the quality of our life and environment in the province by sustaining the pioneer traditions of fairness, family, meaningful work and respect for nature's endowment.

6) To minimize the inequities in our province and help the less fortunate - in a manner which does not destroy the incentive by the majority of individuals to contribute in a productive way.

7) To build a stronger province of opportunity - not on the basis of numbers or size but with the talents and skills of our own citizens.

8) To preserve and enhance our treasured protective land and valuable water and thus maintain our underlying strength which stems from Alberta families producing food for the world at large.

9) To balance our growth between vibrant cities where a sense of neighbourhood still exists in small centres where community spirit fosters prosperity.

10) And finally to sustain our motivation to serve all the people and not any special interest groups - and to do so - not by imposing our dogma - but by building upon the strength of diversity and cultural experience which our forefathers brought to this land.

May I at this time wish all the readers of this column a very Happy Easter.

Being an avid Easter Bunny fan, we never much of a problem for me.

Regardless of how "bad" we were as kids, the good old Easter Bunny always filled the nests we left empty under our beds with candies of all sizes and shapes. Colored farm eggs, generally bearing the name of the next owner, crowned each nest and I always knew that the Easter Bunny was some kind of a guy.

Despite all the pictures of the Easter Bunny which appeared in newspaper and magazine ads, I knew exactly what our Easter Bunny looked like. I knew the Bunny that visited our house had tall, pointed ears and silk whiskers which shimmered against his silk-sewn black jacket. I knew too that he wore a long red tie and never misplaced his black shoeshine kit.

And he was smart. That I knew for sure.

Somehow, much like Santa Claus, the Easter Bunny in his infinite wisdom, always knew which one of us liked a particular type of candy and which one of us didn't. And somehow, we could never catch him. When we would attempt to see the Bunny as he filled our nests but our efforts to wait up for him never succeeded.

Although my mother would offer to read to us to shorten our all night watch, somehow, that wee Bunny snuck in and out of the bedrooms without so much as a sound.

The springtime magic of Easter and the Christian importance of the festival celebrating the resurrection of Jesus always played a big part in our celebration of the holiday.

The Christian teachings surrounding Easter were always easier to understand come Easter morning when the church was filled with bright spring flowers and lively hymns.

But, while Easter carried an important Christian overtones, it also was the time for the return of the friendly white Bunny who made Easter just that much more special.

Happy Easter

County of Beaver Fourth annual Arts and Crafts Festival - April 15, 16, and 17th in Tofield.

Entry fees for the Festival have been questioned as to a maximum per class. There has been an announcement in the booklet. If there is only one item in a class you will pay $1.00.

Eg. Item - Class 25 - Oil painting

A. Abstract B. Still Life C. Landscapes

You would pay only $1.00 entry fee. You are allowed up to a maximum of three entries for the $1.00. On the other hand, if a teen or adult in the same family enters one article each they would pay $1.00 each.

The Festival will be held in Tofield this year, and the facilities being used will be the Community Hall, Royal Canadian Legion, lobby in the Arena and perhaps the Arts Centre attached to the Arena.

We invite you all to participate with your crafts, arts, bands, choirs, short stories, drama, etc.

There will be tea and coffee available in a different setting this year.

DEFENCE AGAINST DROUGHT

The lack of rain in late summer and fall and the shortage of snow during the winter is causing many cattlemen in southern and eastern Alberta some worry this spring.

The following recommendations, put forward by five successful mid-western U.S. ranchers as a guide to good defence against drought, appeared in a recent issue of the Rangeman's Journal, published by the Society for Range Management.

1. Maintain a 1-year supply of forage (standing Hay), and have a year's feed reserve.
2. Have a flexible herd composition. For example, yearling steers in addition to breeding cows. Have from two-thirds to three-quarters of total herd in the cow-calf operation.
3. Rest native pastures periodically through deferment or a grazing system. Always have a pasture to graze that was rested the year before.
4. Deferment is never a loss of forage - merely a period for increasing plant vigor and a forage supply for later use. It is like putting money in a savings account - just setting it aside to be enlarged in value and reserve in emergencies.
5. Sell early - cull heavy at the first sign of drought to reduce the need of leasing expensive pastures or buying high priced hay.
6. Adjustments in cattle numbers must be made before other range or stock suffer. Range will always suffer first. Buying or wintering stock should be based on what can be summered without hurting the range rather than on any surplus winter hay.
7. Have an orderly marketing system rather than trying to "outguess" the market.
8. Always leave some grass unused to maintain a mulch cover. It is the fiber we keep that counts, for unless we are efficient in this, we can't even hope to succeed in the others.
9. Do not get "married" to the livestock. Always keep some stock that are expendable in critical drought periods. Avoid situations where you have to sell at another man's price.
10. Our basic production is grass - investments in grass improvements and restoration are more important even than investments in improved breeding by any other investment on the ranch.

R.A. Wree, Alberta Agriculture's range management specialist, said all but the first and most recommendations apply to all ranches in Alberta.

The Homemaker

THE EASTER HEART

At the rose dawn of an April day the air is cool and sweet. It is like baby breath, new and fragrant with the perfume of daffodils and violets. It sings with the melodies of robins, cardinals and mockingbirds.

The horizon brightens. Tinting and color change quickly. The world comes into full bloom with a message that is full of life and vigor. All around one sees the clear sky through the willowy and lacy green branches of trees whose leaves are just unfolding. Little eggs nestled in the branches have broken into songs yet unheard.

The blue sky is clean and good for viewing. Puffy white clouds appear to have just been taken from the suds, now bleaching in the sun as they sail along.

There is life in the heart of the creek and on its banks. Blades of grass promise a new green carpet. Fern fronds growing on the curved edges of the stream unfold gracefully their interesting patterns. Boys throw stones in the stream and watch the eternal circles spread out into infinity.

April is a new, glad-inspired transparent world, a living canvas streaked with vibrant pastels, stretched out from horizon to horizon, declaring enthusiasm for life.

The responsive Easter heart feels the new season. It beats with new rhythm, and a strange and wonderful and urgent and apprehensive feeling of something great about to happen is known within the whole frame of life.

I wish you a Happy Easter.

As I see it

When I brought up the situation involving at least two provincial civil servants being involved in publicity for the Alberta Progressive Conservative Association annual convention, I was extremely surprised at the reaction of the Premier

There appeared to be no concern whatsoever about what I consider to be a serious situation, that of allowing partisan politics to creep into the provincial civil service. Three pieces of Tory Convention information, signed by a young woman identified as a member of the P.C. Publicity Committee, were sent to the media. They all carried a telephone number as a contact for convention publicity in the Legislature, the Premier treated the issue very lightly, rather than with concern. It also turns out that the Publicity Chairman for the Tory Convention was John Chalmers. Director of Communications for ACCESS, the government's educational broadcasting system. It is disturbing when Alberta taxpayers must subsidize partisan political activity. More disturbing is the attitude displayed by the Premier in this situation which violates the long-standing and traditional non-partisan independence of civil servants.

It's apparent that the Progressive Conservative Government of Alberta can't tell the difference between its government activity and its partisan political activity.

You can bet the Premier wouldn't be laughing if he discovered that civil servants on the job were actively engaged in promoting convictions for Social Credit, the Liberals or New Democratic parties.

Danny Assignments

A positive move in the long-awaited plan to amalgamate the counties of Thorhild and Smoky Lake is the government decision to request a plebiscite on the issue. The Municipal and School Boundaries Commission has recommended the joining of the two counties in a recent report. When I asked Municipal Affairs Minister Dick Johnston about the situation last week, he said a plebiscite is being sought. I had no fault with that proposition. The people in the region have a right to be fully involved in the final decision.

Hard Fyer #9

Last weekend, my family and I accompanied the Fort Saskatchewan Brass Flyers to Red Deer in support of the teams participation in the Provincial Bantam A Play Offs.

The Flyers won!! Congratulations to the team, their coach Gordon Galley, Wayne Eccleston and their fans. It was a well won victory.

Any comments or questions can be addressed to Room 204 Legislature Building, Edmonton, Alberta T5K 2B6 or phone 427-2211 (collect).

County Council briefs

mits be issued until further notice, except to move out of the County

Alex Bietz and William Bath from County of Flagstaff No. 20 attended the meeting regarding the following two matters:

(1) Fire Agreement between the County of Flagstaff and the County of Beaver - basic call of $450.00 for first two hours and $75.00 per hour standby

(2) Request for funds in the amount of $1,175.80 from County of Beaver for upgrading program of two County of Flagstaff Seed Cleaning Plants.

Moved that Council approve the proposed fire agreement between the County of Flagstaff and the County of Beaver

Moved that Council not provide funds at this time to the County of Flagstaff for the Seed Cleaning Plant Upgrading Program since Council must provide funds to the Holden Seed Cleaning Plant Upgrading Program.

Moved that the meeting reconvene on March 18th.

Moved that the meeting adjourn.

RECONVENED MEETING
March 18th, 1977.

Present were: Crs. Armitage, Brimacombe, Evanuik, Knodelsen, Kropelnicki and McIntosh. Also present - A. Robert Cross, Secretary-Treasurer, Ronald G. Pepper, Assistant Secretary-Treas.

The meeting was called to order by the Reeve, Cr. Knudsen.

Moved that the request of Hodnes's Bay Oil and Gas Company Limited for a road crossing in the NE 24-48-12-W4 be approved.

Moved that Council have no objection to the request of Northwestern Utilities Limited for a tie-in on Section 4-48-12-W4.

Moved that Council not approve the request of C.U. Engineering for Lanco Gas Co-op Ltd. road crossings until specific locations are provided.

Correspondence was received from Alberta Transportation regarding the 1977 Bridge Request with the following comments:

George Baker, Administrator, Beaver Regional Recreation and Parks Department attended the meeting and reviewed the tentative 1977 Budget.

Moved that Council agree in principal to the tentative 1977 Beaver Regional Recreation and Parks Department Budget with the following exception:

(1) Council not agree there should be a deficit as indicated in the Parks section.

(3) Council not agree that the Regional Board should be responsible for additional staff to provide Tofield and Viking with a program supervisor in each of these towns. The Council would not approve any increase in the mill rate at this time.

The 1976 Financial Statement was presented and discussed.

Moved that Council accept the 1976 Financial Statement as presented.

Moved that Council cancel Road Plan 4307 C.L. in the N.W. 36-52-18-W4.

Moved that the request of Rohnjan Engineering Ltd. for road crossings by Voyager Petroleums Ltd. be approved.

Moved that the Report of the County Fire Chief presented by Neil Reid be accepted.

Moved by Cr. Brimacombe that Janice Jeffrey be employed on a part-time basis in the County Office

Moved that a letter be written to the Minister of Transportation requesting additional funds to upgrade RR 864.

Moved that Council have no objection to the "Deer Drainage Project" as proposed.

As there was no further business it was moved that the meeting adjourn.

1977 Forage Crop Recommendations

"Varieties of Hay and Pasture Crops for Alberta 1977" contains only two changes from last year in its 1977 list of recommended varieties.

Alta alfalfa has been deleted and Trek alfalfa has been added. Developed at the federal research station at Lethbridge, Trek is mainly an irrigation type of alfalfa that is resistant to stem nematode and suitable for dehydration. However it has shown good winter hardiness in all areas of the province.

Two new forage varieties are listed in the recently revamped variety section of "Varieties of Hay and Pasture Crops for Alberta 1977". They are Cabree Russian wild-rye and Fraireland aka wildrye. The former is a seed shatter resistant variety with good seedling vigor, while the latter is a good variety for pastures that will be grazed in the late fall and during the winter. Commercial seed of the two varieties should be available to farmers in the spring of 1978.

"Varieties of Hay and Pasture Crops for Alberta 1977" also lists eight varieties suitable for special situations. They are:

Chimo alfalfa which recovers quickly after having been cut and is suitable for dehydration.

Titan, WL 302 and Valor alfalfa all have better winter hardiness vigor and quality than Vernal.

Tardus a orchardgrass is a winterhardy variety which may be suitable for northern areas of the province.

Toro timothy is a very early variety that may be desireable for early pastures.

Linnea timothy is similar to Climax in both yield and general performance.

Lemtal Italian ryegrass is suitable for irrigation areas as an annual pasture crop.

Seed for all the above varieties will be available this spring.

Copies of "Varieties of Hay and Pasture Crops for Alberta 1977" can be obtained from the publications office, Agriculture Building, 9718 - 107 Street, Edmonton, T5K 2C3.

Galatians 6:1 Brothers of a man be overtaken in a fault - restore such a one in the spirit of meekness. Whosoever there is an injury in the human body the healing process within the body begins to operate. In thinking of this wonderful provision God has made for returning an organism to health and strength I was reminded of the need for restoration among believers. If a brother or sister in the Lord is overtaken in some sin or fault, fellow believers have the responsibility of bringing that one back to fellowship with the Lord. The person who has fallen is a dislocated member of the Body of Christ and he needs the gentle, loving touch of strong believers who can help him find his way again to a place of usefulness, and service. This humanity of reconciliation is to be carried out with a humble and prayerful attitude a spiritual Christian will never approach others in a proud manner. One of the early Christian fathers said "He fell yesterday, I may fall today." In seeking to help a fallen brother do it in the spirit of meekness, considering thyself lest thou also be tempted."

"Down in the human heart crushed by the tempter
Feelings lie buried that grace can restore
Touched by a loving heart wakened by kindness
Chords that were broken will vibrate once more."

Living on less & liking it more

In a day when packaging is supreme. God put together a package of pure dynamite when He created the elements that make up the human body. Dr. Paul C. Jajonis, best selling Moody Press author, LOVE, HONOR & BE FREE, she had fourth school librarian elected secretary, both congress, been her husband a publicist in a political campaign, and spoken at many women's and mother daughter banquets, while mothering four children. When her last book appeared she had already been selected by the WESTERN REDUCER as one of western Canada's leading women.

How Maxine has put together her down-to-earth insights on how to cut costs and make a meaningful budget work for you. She shares from practical experiences with her usual sense of humor and insightful style. A book guaranteed to make inflation seem less formidable.

Report from Parliament Hill

DON MAZANKOWSKI, M.P.

This past week Parliament became embroiled in a debate which, to many people, may have seemed nothing more than a procedural wrangle and of little significance. Yet, the subject that was discussed, control and accountability over the spending of the Canadian taxpayers' dollars, is an issue fundamental to the existence of the institution of Parliament. The specific debate was about the government's use of a device known as the $1 vote. Basically, this is a method used to spend the taxpayers money without Parliamentary examination. There are legitimate uses for the $1 vote, but the controversy arose over it not being used to circumvent Parliamentary control over government spending. In the past there were only a nominal number of $1 votes used, however, this year there were 53 of which 19 were of a questionable nature.
